MISCELLANEOUS NOTES.

A hen-pecked man is fowly treated—says "Courier:"

The University of Michigan has just enrolled two Chinese women as students.

Nearly half the graduates of Monmouth College have selected their wives from the girls who were with them in college. Who says co-education is a failure? It is probable that old maids think it an excellent institution.

That "Courier" is "full of little jokes." They take us off our feet by the following:—"A contemporary editor wants to know why it is that so many persons refer to his publication as a 'sheet.' We would suggest that it is because so many people go to sleep over it." Come again!

South College is no more. The veriest bricks of this venerable remnant of old Yale have been removed, in order to furnish room for the foundation of the new Vanderbilt dormitory, now in process of construction.

EXCHANGES.

The recitation periods at Yale have been changed from one hour to fifty minutes.

The enrollment at Stanford up to date is 860.

The campus at Yale is to be lighted by electricity.

The University of Leipsic is worth nearly $20,000,000.

A department of oratory is the latest addition to Chaddock college.

An electric course in swimming has recently been opened to the juniors at Vassar.

The Oxford undergraduate is portrayed to his American brother in a most interesting and amusing fashion by Richard Harding Davis in the October Harper, and the American does not suffer greatly in the comparison that he naturally draws between the life portrayed by the clever journalist and his own.

The American student may be, as Walter Besant claims, crude but he has certainly few of the astonishing views of existence which have been developed in the mind of the Oxford undergraduate, who, Mr. Davis asserts, is without exception the most marvellous mixture of slyness and audacity possible to conceive.

The description of the boat race given presents a scene which an American cannot regard as anything but the height of the ridiculous.

Thames river being too narrow to permit more than one boat to pass at a time, the shells are started in single file the first about a hundred feet in advance of the second, and so on in like arrangement until all of the shells engaged in the race have fallen into line.

The object of each crew is to keep the boat in their rear from bumping into their own, while they endeavor to bump into the one in advance of them. This remarkable performance is known as the vumping race and seems to us to be scarcely as impossible for one to take seriously as an ordinary tub race.

Mr. Davis throughout the whole article shows his usual bright sketchy style which never fails to attract large number of readers.

Robert College, of Constantinople, has 203 students, and of the twenty professors only seven or eight have American names. Bulgarians, Greeks and Armenians largely predominate among the students. Among the prescribed studies for the junior year are the history of the Byzantine Empire, Critical Periods in European History and the History of Europe since 1815.

Why are the foot ball men's stockings like Dolly's? Some body said, "they don't mate."
