

LOCALS.

The Phi Gama Delta and Kappa Sigma fraternities are building tennis courts.

We hope to see "Babe" Lanier out again soon.

Glad to see Bill Hendren, '94, back on the Hill again. He has returned to study law.

Harry Whedbee spent several days on the Hill before going down to Raleigh, to apply for his license.

H. R. Ferguson led the law class, which have just received license. Every member of the class, we are glad to say, made a creditable showing, not one failing.

Robt. Gatling has been quite ill for some few days past, with bronchitis.

David Wylie, '96, who has been quite sick, is out again.

Messrs. McKenzie, Patterson, Emery and Crawford spent part of Saturday and Sunday in Durham.

Dr. Winston has been appointed on the committee of expert financiers to test the purity and fineness of the U. S. coinage.

Dr. Battle delivered his lecture on "St. Paul," at Salem, the past week.

Messrs. George Graham, Booth and Myers attended the Capitol Club german, given in Raleigh, on Thursday night last. They report quite a pleasant trip.

At the "symposium"—
Who was it trying to light a turkey bone for a cigarette?
Who kicked the goal?

Grand chorus—
"Which were there but are not there now."

Moral—
"Don't buy your drinks from"—
Adam Applejack.

Glad to see Prof. Cobb out again after a week's illness.

Mr. Isaac Manning, '87, is on a visit to his father.

Mr. J. R. A. Hobson, of Washington, has been on the Hill a week or ten days on U. S. Government law business.

Mrs. Dr. Whitehead has returned from Richmond, where she has made a month's visit to the "old homestead."

The unusual number of visiting young ladies in Durham, has increased the livery bill of several of the "sports."

SOMETIMES as Rambler strolls around in a meditative form of mind he little notices much that an observing person would. But he had just knocked out his pipe as he was passing along Cameron Avenue where he glanced at the "New old Memorial Hall." We have little use for that place, but since we have it and do use it, he thought it ought to be properly looked after. He noted four or five of the big north windows wide open. It had been raining and a mean north wind was then blowing. Rambler shivered as he thought how comfortable it was inside—so nice and chilly, so "damp un vet"—like everybody else about the Hill though, he just went on, none of his business.

After his bracing walk and accustomed ham and eggs he sought entertainment at the Shakespear Club, although highly edified and interested in the excellent programme so well carried out, nevertheless he pulled up the collar of his big coat, to keep from freezing. A little forethought could have rendered the the chapel very comfortable even with the heating arrangements we have. Rambler feared the ladies, although well wrapped up would not come again unless assured of a warmth more material than that in the cordial welcome so heartily extended.

Apropos of grumbling any how a couple of young snipe came into the reading-room, cigarette in mouth, hat on head, hands in pockets, jabbering away,—a dignified Senior remonstrated as the rule is that men should conduct themselves properly in the reading-room. "Ugh! we've resigned. Societies can't fine us," they replied. The societies can keep them out if they don't care to respect their rules at least.

But Rambler has already given vent to too much gab. If he isn't kicked and raked too bad, maybe next week, he'll tell some of the gossip he hears.
