POET'S CORNER.

A STRANGE MYSTERY AND ITS EXPLANATION.

Old Ven he had a great store-room
With his laboratory
And in it was a demi-john
Connected with this story.

That demi-john was wondrous large
And truly could at best
Hold of that liquid alcohol
Ten gallons more or less,

That alcohol commenced to shrink
When "Ven" this fact did see
Much perplexed he asked himself
"What can the matter be?"

He knit his brow and thought a while
And said "I've got it now
Those rascally boys have been in here
And stole that stuff, I vow."

But "ah, says he, I'll stop that game
And marking-pot he brings
And smiling paints on the demi-john
"WATER FROM SEVEN SPRINGS."

And then he got a ladder long
And demi-john under his arm
Went puffing and grunting up aloft,
To place it safe from harm.

Back in a corner close and dark
The liquid placed he,
"If those boys get this any more
I will be darned," said he.

Then chuckled he and satisfied
He quickly cometh down
And strikes a match on the seat of his pants
And perigrinates down town."

SCENE II.

But oh there were some jolly boys
And they were monstrous dry
Says one "lets get some alcohol"
The other he, he said "aye"

Bottles quickly then they got
And slipped out very slow
Around behind the laboratory
And raised a back window.

Though this illegal orifice
They cralled one and all
And groped around without a light
To find that alcohol.

And when they found it was not there
Where it was wont to be Well I'll be d— said one of them
The other cursed loud and free.

They scratched their heads and thought a while
Till one said presentlee
I'll bet its up in yander loft
I'se gwine up there and see.

And up that ladder he did skin
His partner he came arter
And quickly they espied that jug
Late labeled "Seven Springs Water."

One stuck his snout into the jug
The other did the same
They punched each others ribs and cried
"We're onto "Old Vens game."

Into their bottles they did pour
This alcohol so fast
Says one to 'tother "lets be sure
And get enough to last."

Of this supply of alcohol
They quickly did make use
They biled it down with carraway seed
And turned it to "chartreuse."

That this chartreuse had wondrous power
Needless 'tis to say
For about a dozen "sewed up" boys
Around the room there lay.

And frisking 'round the festive room
A bevy yet unslung
Reached anon for their guitars
And many a song they sung.

SCENE III.

"Old Ven" stands in his great store-room
With darkly beetling brow
And wishes that this mystery
Could be explained some how.

For old man Harris has been aloft
And got that demi-john
And measuring out the alcohol
He's found a gallon gone.

Ber gosh!! says "Ven" and cursed an oath
These scamps I know full well
Would swipe the horns from off a goat
And coals of fire from hell.

What a pleasure it will give every one to hear the clank of the press and the click of the type in the new University Press Room. A sweet symphony of progress.

All athletic sports have been forbidden to the students of Kentucky University on account of the alleged gambling connected with them.
