POET'S CORNER.

TO ———.

AFTER READING "ROSALIND."

Thou art no haughty Northern beauty,
Blue-eyed, languorous, pale and cold;
Such as this could never thrall me,
Never hope my heart to hold.
My dark-eyed beauty, chestnut-haired
Svelte, slender, chic, petite;
Thy long lashes glances veiling
Lightning-swift and honey-sweet.
Beautiful thou art as a dream
Of Aphrodite and her team of doves;
Oft I see in fancy near thee,
Hovering o'er thee, winged loves.
All the graces hovered round thee.
In the hour that saw thy birth;
All their goodly gifts they gave thee,
Made thee fairest on the earth.
The lark's quick-caroled strain
Than thy voice is not more sweet.
The Southern zephyr on the flowers
Bears not lighter than thy feet.
Thou art the very soul of joy—
Metal bright, without alloy;
Life bounds and dances in all thy veins,
And glances out in a thousand ways.
Thro' lips and eyes in subtle rays,
Thou car'st not for another's pains.
Thine eyes, twin stars, softly bright,
Watching always with keen delight,
Their lightning glances pierce me thro'.
Thy words are few and bitter-seeming,
Few and sharp and ever-gleaming
As a diamond in the light.
Come down, come down, my love, my queen,
My swift-winged falcon, fancy free;
Too long thou keep'st the upper air—
We cannot come anigh to thee.
Shall we lure thee down and tame thee,
From thy home so far above?
Nay—sometime stooping for thy quarry,
Thou wilt find thyself in love.
Bonds light as gossamer, strong as steel,
Thou wilt love away, for woe or weal;
The falcon will change to the dove.

THE PRESS ASSOCIATION.

The room on the first floor of the South Building, that has been the Registrar's office, has been turned over by President Winston to the use of the students as a Press Association room. Tables, chairs and writing materials have been placed in it, and newspaper correspondents can use them in writing their letters to the papers. News of the University and the village, and suggestions to writers will be posted on a bulletin-board in the room every week. Let each student write a letter at least once a week to his home paper, and thus keep the University before the people. Let them know what is going on here, and in that way arouse in them an interest in its affairs.

GERMAN AT BURLINGTON.

A very enjoyable dance was given last Thursday night by the young men of Burlington in honor of several young ladies visiting there. The Armory served as dancing-hall, and afforded ample space for the many and meshed figures led by Mr. W. A. Graham, of the 'Varsity. Among those from a distance were noted Misses Lizzie Taylor and Janie Andrews from Raleigh, Misses Graham and Collins of Hillsboro, and Misses Kate and Bessie Wood from the State Normal. The gentlemen were Messrs. F. Mebane and Paul Graham, Hillsboro, and Messrs. Graham, W. Steele, Borden, Myers, Lee, T. Booth and Thomas of the 'Varsity. The latter gentlemen speak of going that way again provided "grats" and permits continue.

ALUMNI NOTES.
