BASE-BALL.

The annual series of two games of base-ball between the University of Vermont and U. N. C. was played in Charlotte on 5th and 6th insts. The game of the 5th was spoken of by the Charlotte Observer as a "comedy of errors," and verily it was. The game was Carolina's until the ninth inning, when, by loose playing, they simply gave Vermont the game.

One was reminded of the first Lehigh game, when in the ninth inning the score was twelve to five in our favor. With two men out Lehigh scored two runs by our boys' loose playing. Then the game was ours anyway, and it seemed a matter of little consequence, but in this case the score was six to five in our favor. Our boys fell to pieces when they couldn't afford it. Two of the Vermont men had fanned out, and then they made two runs and won the game.

Stephens pitched a good game, but was poorly supported. The team played without any snap whatever. The hitting was very poor and the fielding worse. The score by innings was as follows:

North Carolina took the bat on toss. Robertson led off with a pop-up fly, which was taken in by Woodward. Gregory, hit by pitcher, gets his base. Lanier cracks out a base-hit to right field, which passes through Stephens, and Gregory scores and before the ball is secured Lanier reaches second. Honeycutt, by a sacrifice hit, advances Lanier to third. On a wild pitch by Pond Lanier scores. Kenan is struck out and retires the side.

Allen comes to the bat for the Green Mountain boys and is given his base on balls. Pond also gets base on balls. On passed ball Allen attempts to cross the plate, but is put out by Stephens. Pond advances to third. Balcolm's fly is caught by Gregory on second. Woodward's grounder to first passes through Honeycutt, and is secured by Gregory, who makes a wild throw to first and Woodward reaches third. Corley fouls to Oldham, and is out. End of first inning. Score: Vermont, 0; U. N. C., 2.

SECOND INNING.—Robertson, R., goes out on pop-up fly to Corley. Oldham makes a base hit. On passed ball she goes to third. Stanley's grounder is picked up, and he is thrown out on first. Oldham scores. Stephens' fly is "pulled down" by Daggett, and Vermont is again at the bat. Cooke's pop-up fly falls in Stephens' hands. Hewes hits a weak grounder to Lanier, and is thrown out at first. Daggett pops up another fly to Stephens, who muffs the ball, but recovers and gets the ball to first. End of second inning. Score: Vermont, 1; U. N. C., 3.

THIRD INNING.—Robertson, W., came to the bat, and went out on a foul to Balcolm. Gregory flied out to Daggett. Lanier came to bat, and swiped out a rattling two-bagger, went to third on a wild pitch, but got no further as Honeycutt flied out to Stephens, and then the side. Vermont leads off with Stephens at bat. He hit the air twice in succession, but while the crowd geyed him he led off with a safe hit, but was thrown out by Lanier to Gregory. Allen reached first on a scratch, went to second on Stephens' error, was advanced to third on Pond's base hit, and scored on Balcolm's sacrifice. Pond went to second on same sacrifice, and scores on Woodward's two-bagger. Balcolm is thrown out by Gregory to Honeycutt. Woodward is left on second by Corley being thrown out by Lanier to Honeycutt, and retiring the side. Score: U. N. C., 3; Vermont, 3.

FOURTH INNING.—Oldham gets his hand hurt and goes to first, while Honeycutt takes his place behind the bat. Kenan reaches first on base hit. Steals second, steals third, but gets no farther. Robertson, R., strikes out. Oldham sacrifices Daggett to Allen. Stanley out on foul fly to Balcolm. For Vermont, Cooke goes to first on Oldham's error. Is advanced to third by Hewes' hit, but is caught asleep on third and thrown out by Honeycutt to Lanier. Hewes steals second and is left there by Daggett's being put out by Oldham unassisted, and Stephens being thrown out by Stanley to Oldham. Score: U. N. C., 3; Vermont, 3.

FIFTH INNING.—Stephens goes to first by Daggett's error. Takes second, reaches third on Robertson, W., sacrifice scores on Gregory's scratch hit. Robertson, R., out to Allen unassisted. Gregory steals second, and goes home on Honeycutt's grounder, which is badly fumbled by Corley. Lanier strikes out. Honeycutt reaches second on fumble by Corley, and is left there by Kenan striking out. In this inning Vermont goes out in one, two, three order, viz.: Allen is thrown out by Stephens to Oldham, Pond foul flies to Honeycutt, Balcolm is thrown out by Gregory to Oldham. Score: U. N. C., 5; Vermont, 3.

SIXTH INNING.—Robertson, R., is out by Woodward to Allen. Oldham makes a pretty base hit and scores on Stanley's two-bagger. Stanley is put out while trying to steal third by Pond to Woodward. Stephens takes his base on balls; steals second, also third, but is left there by Robertson, W., striking out. Vermont is retired as follows: Woodward is thrown out by Lanier to Oldham; Corley strikes out; Cooke makes two-base hit, but gets no farther as Hewes flies to Robertson, W., who makes a beautiful running catch, and retires the side. Score: U. N. C., 6; Vermont, 3.

In the seventh, Gregory goes out to Allen unassisted. Lanier makes base hit, but is put out trying to steal second, Balcolm to Daggett. Honeycutt strikes out. Vermont did not remain at the bat very long. Stephens struck three men as follows: Daggett, Stephens, Allen.

In the eighth, Kenan goes out to Allen unassisted. Robertson, R., flies out to Daggett, Oldham out to Allen unassisted. In this inning Vermont succeeds in knocking two apples off the tree; Carolina went to pieces. In this inning the "comedy of errors" began, which resulted in a tragedy for U. N. C. Pond hit a high fly to Robertson, W., in centre, who was asleep, and although the ball hit in his hands, before he awoke it had struck the ground. Pond went to second on it, was advanced to third on Woodward's base hit, and scored on Honeycutt's rotten error. Balcolm reached first on Oldham's error, advanced to third on Woodward's hit, and went home on Stephens' wild pitch. Corley struck out; Cook went out on fly to Ross; Robertson and Hewes struck out. Score: U. N. C., 6; Vermont, 5.

Here the ninth opens. Prepare to shed tears gentle reader. Stanly went out on a liner to Woodward, who threw him out to Allen. Stephens rolled one to Pond, who sauntered up to first and handed it to Allen. Robertson, W., was put out by Allen unassisted.

Look at this, Vermont comes up with defeat already upon their brow; but no, they were destined to be pleasantly surprised. They reached in the grab basket and pulled a bundle of victory.

Hear it ye Gods, Daggett strikes out; Stephens strikes out; and Allen, he walks to the plate, and goes to first on four balls. Pond hits a beautiful high fly to Kenan, who is wrapped in the arms of Morpheus; the ball strikes the earth with a dull thud, is thrown wild, and all is over for University North Carolina. Score—University North Carolina, 6; Vermont, 7.

SECOND GAME.

The result of the second day's game proved that the North Carolina team fairly out-classed the Green Mountain boys. They showed that they were sluggers by making seventeen base hits off Mr. Lou Cooke, the gentleman whose "daily food is rattle-snakes, forked-lighting, pin-wheels and merry-go-round." The fielding of both teams was good. Kenan fully atoned for his errors of the preceding day by gathering in everything that came near him, and making two beautiful running catches. Robertson, W., made one of his phenomenal catches and got in a double play, throwing out Pond on second. Stephens played good ball at third, and Oldham on first was out of sight.

The game was called at 3.45 by Mr. Harrell, umpire, with Carolina at the bat. Robertson, W., leads off with a base hit to right and steals second. Gregory gets his base on balls. Cooke makes a wild pitch and Robertson goes to third. Lanier hits Cooke for a two-bagger to right and Robertson and Gregory both cross the rubber. The crowd goes wild. Lanier steals third, and scores on wild pitch. Honeycutt gets his base on balls. Kenan makes a base hit to left. Robertson, R., fouls to catch and is out. Oldham's base hit to left. Stanley's sacrifice to short brings in Kenan. Stephens' grounder to second is
