

Murder Will Out.

The team came back with a terrible tale.
If true it is truly a pity,
Of what happened to "Greg" just after the game.
With Georgetown in Washington City.

Of his wearing apparel he'd lost a part;
He was in a terrible stew,
If he went out on the field his stockings 'd
come down.
So what was the poor fellow to do.

But his brilliant mind soon hatched a plan,
The garters he got but he told no man
Exactly where he received the same,
But it all came out just after the game.

For when the game was o'er and the 'Varsity'd won
And the boys were telling the feats they'd done,
When in there rushed an excited maid
Where's the man who borrowed my garters, she said.

MAN AND HIS SHOES.

How much a man is like his shoes!
For instance, both a sole may lose;
Both have been tanned, both are made tight
By Cobblers; both get left and right.
Both need a mate to be complete.
Both are made to go on feet.
They both need healing, oft are sold,
And both in time will go to mould.
With shoes, the last is first, with men
The first shall be the last, and then

When shoes wear out, they're mended new;
When men wear out, they're men dead, too,
They both are trod upon, and both
Will tread on others nothing loth.
Both have their ties, and both incline
When polished in the world to shine!
And both peg out. Now would you choose
To be a man, or be his shoes?

Southern Football.

Football is primarily a distinctive Northern game, and was played in Northern colleges with a great deal of success and skill long before it was even introduced into Southern colleges. The South, however, in this, as in almost every other line of sport and effort, is rapidly coming up with her Northern brothers.

Football has been played in the South for only six years, but in that time Southern teams have shown wonderful improvement. Several games have been played, and more arranged for the coming season with large Northern University teams, a thing that a few years ago would have been considered preposterous. Every year the games between the Northern and Southern teams are closer and closer, and it may safely be predicted that in no great number of years some Southern team will hold the championship of the United States.

The first colleges to inaugurate football in the South were the University of Virginia, University of North Carolina, and Trinity College. Since that time, teams have sprung up all over the South, until now there is scarcely a single college or University that has not a football team. Of the three colleges named above, all have, at different times, held the Southern championship; in fact no other team outside of them has yet won it.

The University of Virginia and N. C. University have never failed to get out creditable teams, while Trinity has sadly deteriorated. Virginia and the North Carolina University are unquestionably the strongest Southern teams. They meet every year on Thanksgiving Day and the struggle is always interesting and exciting.

Virginia this year gives promise of sustaining the enviable record she made last season. The most important games her team has played this year are, Princeton 12 to 0, and University of Pennsylvania, 14 to 6. Although defeated in both games she was virtually victorious, and scoring against Pennsylvania is a thing she may well be proud of.

The University has only played two games of any importance, the one with Trinity last Wednesday and with Sewanee on Saturday last. Both were easy victories, 28 to 0 and 36 to 4. The University eleven also has games scheduled with large Northern teams. The first will be at Bethlehem, Pennsylvania, next Wednesday, when the "Tarheels" play Lehigh. The season will close as usual with the Thanksgiving day contest with Virginia at Richmond. The present outlook is in favor of the Virginians, but it is a well known fact, learned by other colleges through sad experience, that the "Tarheels" are never beaten until the end, and invariably "die in the last ditch."

No matter what over-righteous and officious persons may say to the contrary, football is a great game, worthy of encouragement. Every North Carolinian should take a pride in and encourage the University team. "Root" for the University.—Raleigh Evening Visitor.

Caps and Gowns.

The Senior Class met on Friday afternoon, President Graham in the chair. The committee on caps and gowns, consisting of Howell, Kimball and Carr, F., made a report, recommending style 5 gown and either 3 or 4 cap, of Cottrell & Leonard, Albany, N. Y., which report was adopted. The outfit will be ordered immediately, and every member of the class supplied.

A motion was made and carried that the class petition the faculty to dispense with Senior final examinations, a committee of three, J. O. Carr, H. Bingham, and F. L. Carr, were appointed until the next day at 2:30 P. M.

On Saturday, the class met at the stated hour and the committee presented the following petition, which was unanimously received, and sent before the faculty by a committee consisting of J. O. Carr, Bingham, F. L. Carr, Horne, and Alexander.

The University German Club will give another german in the gymnasium on Friday night, Nov. 16th.

W. A. Graham '95, will be leader, and R. T. S. Steele '95, and Murray Borden '95, floor managers. Contrary to the usual custom, no printed invitations will be sent out, and there will be no supper after the dance. Several young ladies are expected from Durham and Raleigh.

A Wonderful Invention.

Zoology teaches us that the hairs of the head are hollow, and contain an oil that gives them life. In clipping the hair with scissors, this hollow is left open, and the hair loses its life-giving properties.

I have a Machine named the Singeing Machine, which removes the hair and at the same time closes up the hollow causing the hair to retain its life-giving properties, and therefore stopping the hair from falling out or dying and giving it a soft life growth.

Call and examine this machine and have your hair singed.
Special attention given to dressing Ladies hair. Cutting hair done with exquisite and artistic skill by the old University Barber of twenty years experience.
The Singeing Machine is highly recommended by scientists throughout the country.
Very respectfully,
T. D. DUNSTON,
Professor of Tonsorial Art.
