EDITOR TAR HEEL,

Dear Sir:—In reply to the question in your late issue relative to the use of the arc lights over the walks to the main street of our village I would say they were put there to furnish light and were fulfilling their mission until some one who did not appreciate their use fired a pistol bullet through the feeding mechanism and stopped their working.

Very truly,
J. W. Gore.

With all due respect to the management of the Company, we will state a few facts bearing on our first statement. We have been aware, for some time, of the darkness on the walks leading from the college buildings to the main street of the village. But does one pistol ball shot through one lamp cause the stoppage of four, they being arranged in two circuits? Has the Company taken into consideration the fact, that the loss caused by an ignoramus must be borne, and ordered the injured machinery? If this has been done the needed piece must be of foreign origin, as the the accident happened several weeks ago.

The destructive spirit, among some of our students is very annoying, but all should not be forced to suffer on account of the meddling of a few babies.

Have the other lights been on when needed? We noted on the occasion of the Dramatic Club's second appearance, all of the arc lamps were turned off. There must have been a scarcity of electricity or an avalanche of pistol balls, we are not prepared to say which one of the two.

Luna was shining on this occasion, but as she often does, behind a layer of dense clouds.

Culture Meeting.

Dr. Hume's class in Sacred Literature is doing some profitable work.

At its meeting several interesting papers were read on the "Reformers before the Reformation". Mr. Coker read a paper on 'Paulicians, Albigenses, and Waldensans'; Mr. Ray read one on "Wycliffe and the Lollard Movement in England"; Mr. Bahnson, on "The Moravians".

All the papers were thoroughly instructive and interesting, and an equally pleasant meeting is anticipated when the class will discuss the Reformation itself. The date will be announced later.

Outnumbered.

Once on a time I sought to woo
A girl who wore a number two,
Her father wore a number ten,
I never called on her again.

[Communicated.]

There was a college teacher once
Of Anglo Saxon bent
And when he late from breakfast came
Down through a hole he went.

First come a dainty pair of feet
A body short and lean
And then a pair of grey side burns
With a face stuck in between.

A pair of rhotorsmic eyes,
With a Miltonic nose,
A Classic broad Shakesperian brow,
And dust all over his clothes.

But scarcely had he reached the floor
When to the door he rushed,
With anger on his classic brow
Which caused the boys to hush.

Who stole my pants!, he squalled in rage
With fingers pointing straight
To where some luckless Sophomore
It happened alwasat(e).

You little imp! I'll run you out,
I'll hold you up to shame,
If you don't shut your little mouth
I'll call you out by name.

But now, dear reader, we will pause,
The curtain we will drop;
For he would cuss a long long time
Ere we could make him stop.

Then I Think of Her.

When the rain comes pouring down:
Pattering on the roof all day;
And I stay in my room alone,
And callers stay away;
Oh then I think of her my love,
The one so true, so fond and dear,
And rain drops falling on the roof,
Like sweet music bringing a tear.

When the sun comes blazing forth,
Warming flowers frail and sweet;
And people smile with joy and bow,
To others whom they meet;
Oh then I think of my love,
And think a lot I dare suppose;
For sun light never falls upon,
Fairer flowers than my rose.

A Dream.

A Normal and Industrial girl fell asleep,
Wrapped up in sweet innocence three layers deep,
She dreamed she'd make "E", but with far greater joy,
While dreaming she dreamed she had turned to a boy.

"Oh now I'll have pockets", she said with a laugh,
"And I'll know where to find my trunk keys at least half
Of the time my trunk's locked"—here her brain gave a whirl,
The rising-bell rang. She was only a girl.

Captured.

He asked fair Maude to marry;
By letter she replied,
He read it—she refused him;
He shot himself and died.

He might have been alive now
And she his happy bride.
If he had read the post script
Upon the other side.

Chicago has purchased the manuscripts and library of the late historian Bancroft for $80,000.

Vanderbilt's Indoor Athletic Exhibition seems to have been a complete success.

Pennsylvania's base ball schedule will number 28 games. They do not take a Southern trip.

Pennsylvania has recently had a gift of $500,000, for the encouragement of liberal studies.

Penton has resigned the captaincy of the Virginia foor ball team for the next season. His successor according to Topics, will probably be Groner, Hoxton or Coker. The resignation was caused through some clash with the authorities.

Applicants for teams at Lehigh must not have more than one condition in their studies. Of their applicants for the team this year, eight are debarred from playing until they better their record—Petriken, Nevises and Goss are among number.
