

LOCAL AND PERSONAL.

Dr. Battle was in Raleigh Wednesday and Thursday.

Dr. Egbert Smith will preach in the Chapel 7:30 Sunday evening.

Mr. Overman, law '96, and bride are visiting friends on the Hill.

Messrs. Price and Murphy, two old U. N. C. boys, are running for the Legislature in Rowan.

Mr. Bellamy, of the TAR HEEL, has been in Raleigh the past week, the guest of Mr. R. L. Gray.

The TAR HEEL is indebted to Mr. F. O. Rogers for the account of the second game with Guilford in this issue.

The Charlotte Observer for Sunday gives in full Dr. Venable's paper before the Health Conference and also Prof. Cobb's "Beginnings of Science" previously reviewed in the TAR HEEL.

Mr. W. D. Carmichael returned on Tuesday from a trip to Danville, where he has been making arrangements for next Saturday's game with Blacksburg.

A. Burwell '99 and A. R. Berkeley '00 went up to see the game in Greensboro last week.

President Alderman saw the game in Greensboro on Saturday, and went on to Princeton the same night.

The Glee and Mandolin Club is contemplating a trip to Norfolk during the latter part of the Christmas vacation.

Dr. Alderman dined Thursday with President and Mrs. Cleveland at the home of Dr. Patton, President of Princeton University.

Quite a number of the boys went down to the fair at Raleigh on Wednesday and Thursday. It was rumored beforehand that the Normal girls were going down Thursday.

The Med Class will put out a foot ball team. They met Friday morning and elected H. E. Meckling Captain, and Geo. H. Kirby, Manager of their team.

The Senior Class met Tuesday and elected A. T. Allen, Captain, and J. H. Andrews, Manager of their team.

E. B. Lewis, who studied Pedagogics with us in '94-5, writes President Alderman that he has been called from the management of the White Mt. Reservation of Apache Indians to teach Geography and Manual Training in the Browning School W. 55th, St. N. Y. He states that he is now in "The Four Hundred". (By the side door, as he has the children of the Vanderbilts, Rochefellers etc., under him.)

Chapel Hill was treated to a speech Tuesday night by a real gold bug. The boys gave him a respectful hearing, but, we are sorry to confess, were rather discourteous to the speaker after his address was finished. The feeling of the crowd changed, however, and as the crowd dispersed the air resounded with Rah, Rah, Raahs with the speaker's name tacked on at the end. Chapel Hill boys cannot cherish resentment for any length of time.

The many friends of Miss Angela McCaull will take great pleasure in reading the following clipping taken from the Philadelphia Ledger:

"The ability to express, in voice, and face and motion, the ideal which the mind conceives; not to represent a character, but to be it—" so wrote one of the best-known trainers of stage folk, in describing the art of acting, and he could have no better example of his thought than Miss Angela McCaull, who has been for a year and more enacting the part of Nannie McNair, a little southern girl, in "The Heart of Maryland." That Miss McCaull should have thoroughly grasped the ideal of the part is not strange, for she is a southern girl herself. Brought up in the heart of North Carolina, she is imbued with that charming personality which makes southern women so attractive. Miss McCaull is only in her third season. Her first experience in stage life was with Richard Mansfield, under whose rigorous training she learned more than could have been acquired by years of study in a school of acting. Fair to look upon, dainty in figure, and with a voice in which there is not a trace of affectation, she leaves with an audience the pleasure of having listened to a woman who throws her own personality into the character delineated by the author.

Mr. A. J. Bagley is A. T. O. editor of the Hellenian instead of Mr. G. M. Ruffin as was stated in the TAR HEEL two weeks ago.
