

LOCAL AND PERSONAL.

We are sorry to note the continued illness of Dr. Hume.

Prof. Cain is just recovering from quite a severe attack of "la grippe."

Go to J. Webb's room for first grade chewing tobacco.

Mr. T. M. Green, of Wilmington, has returned to resume his medical studies.

Rev. Mr. Winecoff gave a very interesting talk to the Y. M. C. A. on Monday evening.

Base ball is all the go now, but it is a great pity that Faison's pants are no longer visible on the diamond.

Be sure to be on hand at "The Swiss Bell Ringers," Monday night. It is for the Athletic Association's benefit.

Rev. J. D. Robertson of Louisville, Ky., will preach in the Baptist Church Sunday morning at 11 o'clock.

The literary societies are carefully considering the re-establishment of the Magazine. It is to be hoped that they will succeed in arranging for us to have a good monthly periodical.

Mr. J. H. Faber gave quite a pleasant oyster supper at Pickard's Hotel last Saturday night. Among those present were Prof. Cobb and Messrs. Dey, Roberson, Candler, Edgerton, Rose and Myers.

We are glad to note among the Seniors quite a strong sentiment in favor of caps and gowns for next commencement. Now is a good chance for '97' to show a progressive spirit by adopting them.

By an oversight the best debater in the Phi Society two weeks ago was omitted last week. Mr. Monroe, '00, was best debater. Mr. Baggett, '00, was best debater last week. In the Di. Saturday night last, Mr. C. H. Johnston, '98, won first place.

Mr. Faber, who has been doing photographic work here for the past week or so, has gone to Norfolk. He contemplates returning about the middle of March so as to have ample time to get out an album made up of his work at Chapel Hill.

Mr. Winecoff will preach Sunday morning on "The Holy Catholic Church." Sunday night, by special request he will preach on "The Nature of Eternal Punishment," as a sequel to his sermon last Sunday on the duration of future punishment.

An Extract from Dr. Battle's Lecture on the Federal Constitution

The objections made by the "Anti-Federalists," usually called "Antis," to the adoption of the Federal Constitution, were cited by the lecturer in some detail, the speeches of Patrick Henry, Mason, Pendleton, Grayson, and Monroe of Virginia, and Spencer, Bloodworth, and Lenoir, of North Carolina, being especially examined. He then showed that by the decrees and the decisions of the Supreme Court, the acts of Congress, and the actions of Presidents, the predictions made by those great men have proved to be correct, as a general rule. The Federalists either did not appreciate the strength of the government into which they invited the people, or they were afraid to admit it. The "Antis" seemed to have fully understood its truer nature. They dreaded the effect of the State rights of the express powers, and much more of the far-reaching potency of implied powers. They carried the people with them in the argument, but such was the unlimited confidence of the masses in Washington, the great, that they yielded their judgement to his. Dr. Battle did not discuss the right or wrong of the judicial decisions and acts of Congress, merely stating them as historical facts. He pointed out one blunder made by North Carolina which seemed quite absurd. Our State was afraid that the House of Representatives would be too small and therefore subject to the manipulations of the President and proposed an amendment making it obligatory to have one Representative for every 30,000 people. This would result now in a House of over 2,300 members. The rapid growth of the United States was not dreamed of.
