CAROLINA REDEEMED!

'Varsity Administered a Crushing Defeat to Virginia Polytechnic Institute in Winston Last Friday.

The 'Varsity team left last Thursday evening for Winston where it was to meet their old opponents from Blacksburg. This was the first strong team that has lined up against the 'Varsity this season, so the outcome of the game was awaited with quite a good deal of interest. Last year the Virginia lads defeated our team by a score of 4 to 0. Burning with a desire to wipe out this score, Carolina went into the game determined to win and to pile up a large score. As a result the game ended with a final score of North Carolina's 28 to Virginia's 6. The two teams were about equal in weight but Carolina's superior training and greater knowledge of the game told in the long run. The first half was close and exciting, the Carolinians not yet having thoroughly warmed to their work. But in the second half they went to work with a dash and vim which completely overwhelmed their opponents.

Coach Reynolds was high in his praise of the team's behavior and said that he had never witnessed a better game by Carolina.

To name the stars for the 'Varsity be to include the entire team. The names of Rogers, Howell, Shull and Bennett deserve especial mention.

For the Virginians Wood and Ingles played with their old snap and power and put up a strong game.

The crowd was rather disappointing in size, though it had plenty of enthusiasm.

A Student's Sentiment.

Almost every year various articles appear in the TAR HEEL setting forth the views of some student or collection of students, on different phases of our College life. Some of these articles may be sarcastic and unnecessarily bitter, all of which is entirely uncalled for, and is out of place; but the majority of them are simply courteous, but frank expressions of opinions on matters of vital interest to the writer. This privilege belongs to everybody. In a free country like ours no man can be denied the right to raise his voice in approval or disapproval of anything that involves his own interest, and especially so when his interests are being trampled upon, and his rights and privileges taken from him.

Be it far from the present writer to say or imply anything unjust about any man or any department of the University. If he does do so, let the public sentiment of the student body condemn his act, and correct his error, but grant him the privilege to defend the rights of himself and his fellow students.

It is passing strange that in some departments of the University men full grown men are treated as tho' they were scarcely weaned from their mother's breast and are governed by rules that have long been extinct, even in the "prep" schools. The University has indeed come to a deplorable state of affairs, when it gets so that a student can't leave the class room after the bell rings without being pillored before the class and a storm of abuse from the professor. Much less has that professor a right to drive him back and force him to take his seat when other classes are awaiting him, and other professors are being annoyed elsewhere. In fact, the writer's understanding of the rules of the University is, that a man has a right to leave the class room whenever he chooses, provided he does not disturb the rest of the class in doing so, and if he stays too long, the professor can simply mark him absent and report him to the President. Abuse is unnecessary and uncalled for under any circumstances, and is always demoralizing to the class.

And yet order must be maintained. To do this, rigid discipline must be enforced. Indeed, so rigid is the discipline (?) in some departments that a man can't even smile at the numerous absurdly ridiculous things that happen there without being ordered to leave the class room. That is order with a vengeance.

What, pray, is to become of the majority of us, when a man who always knows his lesson, and who was never known to misbehave on class, is ordered out of the room just because he laughs?

The writer would consider it a great favor if some kind friend would tell him why it is that under one professor a class is studious and well behaved, and under another professor the very same class is disorderly and careless about its lessons? Why is it that, in the latter case, half or two-thirds of the hour at every recitation has to be taken up lecturing the class about its conduct both in the class room and out of it, and then at the end have the class rewarded by informing them that they know nothing; that they learn nothing in College except how to root in the mire; and finally go out into the world greater ignoramus than when they entered College? How can a man help being an ignoramus when all his time on class is taken up with something entirely foreign to the lesson, and nothing is said or done to encourage him to study?

Truly, "There is something rotten in Denmark", and the sooner somebody finds the source of the trouble, the better it will be for all concerned.

Captain of Foot Ball Team Elected.

At a meeting of the team last Wednesday night Mr. F. O. Rogers was elected permanent captain of the '98 team. The choice is a wise one. Capt. Rogers has worked hard and conscientiously and deserves the honor. We hope to see the entire college now get behind Captain Rogers, Coach Reynolds and the team and pull together harder than ever to make the best possible out of the team. We have got a hard struggle before us for next Thanksgiving Day, but we have got to win, just simply have got to win, there is no two ways about it.

Now let's do it.
