All communications for this paper should be in the hands of the Editor-in-Chief by Monday at noon to insure publication the same week. We shall be glad to publish pertinent discussions of college topics. The Tar Heel will welcome news items, and hopes the whole college will aid it along this line.

To Georgia go the laurels this year, as victors in the annual inter-collegiate debate.

Nothing but the highest praise have we, nevertheless for our debaters, Messrs. Williams and Stern. We believe that they presented their side of the question better than anyone else in the University could have, and as well as any college students in the South. It was simply "fortune of war" that they had to champion one of the most unpopular theories that vexes this Southland of ours.

Two victories and one defeat! Many of us would have preferred three victories, no doubt. But, if we had to meet defeat anyhow, it would have been impossible for one to have come more opportunely. It came just in time to effectually check any tendency to over-confidence and consequent carelessness that our team may have had. Many of us will remember what beneficial results came of our defeat by Oak Ridge school last year in just this way. So, on the whole, there is no reason to be dissatisfied. The pitching that the boys went up against in the second Lehigh game, was a foretaste of what we may expect later on in the season, and is a warning against that effort after two- and three-base hits that some of the players have gotten into the habit of making every time they come up.

The team has been playing as good ball, as we have ever had, often doing brilliant playing. The team is one to count on, and we need have no doubts of the record it will make this spring.

We print in the last column a letter which the editor received from an Alumnus who is now in attendance at one of our largest Northern Universities. It goes without saying, that the editors highly appreciate his encouraging words; we hope that all of the "out of town" readers can speak as kindly. But we do not mean to deny that there has been some cause for complaint.

George Washington was the first person to receive the degree of L. D. from Harvard.

COMMUNICATIONS

Editors welcome all articles of a timely nature for publication in this column, though the sentiments expressed therein are not held by the Tar Heel.

Since the fall of 1894 it has been my pleasure to read every issue of the Tar Heel. During that time there has not been an issue that has failed to contain some complaint of the failings of somebody. Possibly two or three of these complaints in seven years have been justified, while the remaining have apparently been the virgin attempts of some guileless youth at sarcasm, irony, and general expressions of contempt. Truly the late editor of the Iconoclast could learn many "stunts" from these self-rated sages. Would that Diogenes with his lantern could take a trip to Chapel Hill and find at least one man to satisfy the demands of this sage.

In the last issue that has come to my notice there is a complaint that the editors do not do their duty. The sage thinks that if some of the large institutions can maintain a daily, our University should at least have a good weekly. For his benefit allow me to say that the Tar Heel reflects credit both on the University as well as the editors. There is more readable matter (excluding the "kicks") in its weekly issue than in a whole week's publication of many of the dailies. In this University the daily (so-called) is stuffed into our little boxes about three mornings in the week in fair weather just in time to serve as shaving paper and even for this use is inferior. In justice to the editors let me say that the Alumni, at least, appreciate their efforts and read with pleasure every line (except the "kicks").

If these aforesaid sages would spend their literary energy in "Fresh English themes" and would lend their substantial support—instead of contempt—to the Tar Heel the "out-of-town" readers would be very grateful.

Just to break the record—if for no other reason—is it not possible to have an issue without a single "kick" or paragraph of back-biting?
 ALUMNUS.

Carolina 10; Cornell 9.

In a magnificent game of ball played here Monday afternoon, Varsity defeated Cornell by score of ten to nine. Both teams played excellent ball, and batted heavily. We were in the lead till seventh when visitors scored 3 runs and in eighth 4 more, making the score 9-9. Things looked very uncertain and the ninth inning was full of excitement. Harrington knocked a two-bagger, scoring Smathers and winning the game.

The crowd was fairly good-sized and rooting at times excellent. Full account of the game with tabulated score in next week's Tar Heel, which will also have account of the Carolina-Virginia game to be played in Charlottesville next Saturday.

We beg to inform our readers that Dr. I. N. Carr of Durham, one of the Tar Heel's faithful advertisers has moved his office over Kronheimer's Store, Summerfield Building. Give him a trial when you are in need of Dentistry work.
