DRAWN BATTLE

NO SCORING SATURDAY

A Fiercely Fought Contest in Raleigh Last Week—Varsity's Goal Threatened But Ably Defended Each Time.

The leading event in North Carolina football took place at the Fair grounds in Raleigh last Saturday afternoon when the University football team met that from the A. and M. College. After fifty minutes of desperate struggling the score stood nothing to nothing, neither team being able to score a point on the other.

The game, which was interesting from start to finish was viewed by a large crowd. The University team was accompanied by a coterie of about 300 rooters who were game to the core, and the University band. The News and Observer said: "There was something very fine about that band and its persistency, as it played on brazenly triumphant with the ball in the hands of their enemies almost within a span of the goal line; there was something very fine about the hundreds of white and blue rooters who shouted their cheers with throats as brazen as their horns and would not admit the possibility of defeat; there was something very fine indeed about that young rooting captain [Bully Moore] sitting on the rail of the fence, for the most part with his back to the game he would have given his eyes to see, waving his stick with its white and blue ribbons to his cheering followers, with that look in his piercing brown-black eye which says to the end, 'Never give up'."

If the number of yards which a team carried the ball decided games A. & M. would probably have won. But to win a football game is to carry the ball across your opponents line, and that thing is what neither of the contesting teams did. More than once was the ball, through the brilliant end runs of Steele, A. & M.'s star quarterback, a recent and valuable addition to the team, brought near the line defended by North Carolina. But never did that thing occur that the Carolina team did not rally magnificently and present to the onslaught of the charging cadets an impregnable, iron wall, against which they dashed themselves in vain, from which they fell back repulsed.

Carolina won the toss and chose to defend the east goal. The band broke forth into renewed playing, the rooters rent the air with enthusiastic yells, the rest of the spectators held their breath as Wilson, for A. & M. sent the sphere hurtling to Carolina's 10-yard line. In an instant Abernethy had it and dashed back for 17 yards. Reynolds tried an end for 2½ yards. Winborne tried left tackle for no gain and Carolina kicked to the centre of the field, Townsend downing the A. & M. man in his tracks.

Steele tried a quarterback run, but Abernethy was there and Steele discovered several new constellations as "Abby" hurled him back eight yards. Then Tull tried centre for five yards, and Wilson sent the pigskin 35 yards, the Carolina man receiving it being downed in his tracks. Abernethy then tried the line for 7 yards, Reynolds for 3 and Reynolds again for no gain. Here A. & M. was penalized 5 yards for offsidng; Winborne added five and then Abernethy fumbled to A. & M.

A. & M. hit the line for 3 yards and then Steele, with good interference, circled an end for 35 yards. With the ball on the University's 10-yard line, Shaw hit the centre for 7 yards but on the next play Tull was thrown for the loss of a yard. Wilson went through for two yards, but that was all. A. & M. did their best, but it simply wasn't in them to take the ball over that white chalk line and on the next play the ball was Carolina's on downs on her 3-yard line. Carolina advanced the ball on several plays 9 yards and then kicked to the 40-yard line. Wilson made a pretty run of 25 yards around Carolina's right end just here. Soon the ball was within a foot of the line but it was won for Carolina on downs by her impregnable defense.

Carolina this time advanced the ball 10 yards before kicking to A. and M.'s 55-yard line. A. and M. returned it 5 yards, sent Wilson ahead for 20 yards, lost 5 yards and then failed to gain. On third down with 8 yards to gain Wilson kicked 35 yards to Reynolds, who returned the ball 17. Soon Carolina kicked again, this time for forty yards, but after A. & M. had made a few short gains, time was up with the ball on Carolina's 53-yard line.

At the beginning of the second half which the rooters interspersed with their continual songs and yells, the two teams went at it once more with vim and energy, Carolina showing especial spirit. Roberson kicked to the 7-yard line and Shaw was downed on the 17. Wilson tried an end but was thrown for a loss of 5½ yards. He tried again and Townsend threw him for a loss. Then he kicked 30 yards, the University man being downed in his tracks. Then Carolina took a brace and started on a march for a touchdown. Winborne went over for 6 yards, Reynolds 15 through the line, and Abernethy made it 4 more. The next tries were no go and Abernethy sent the pigskin to the 10-yard line. Then A. and M. by steady gains brought the ball near Carolina's goal. Once Steele circled an end for 23 yards, and again for 20 yards. Finally the ball went over, but A. and M. had held in the line and the ball was carried back 20 yards. A. and M.

THE SMITH-HECK WEDDING.

A Brilliant Social Event at Raleigh Last Wednesday—Dr. and Mrs. Smith in the North.

Dr. C. Alphonso Smith, professor of the English Language in this University and Miss Susie McGee Heck, daughter of Mrs. J. M. Heck were married at the residence of the bride's mother in Raleigh last Wednesday night.

The handsome home was artistically decorated and ablaze with lights. In the north parlor the wedding was celebrated. The room was a bower of white roses, white carnations, palms, ferns, and smilax, the color scheme being green and white.

At 9:30 Rev. Egbert W. Smith, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Greensboro, brother of the groom took his position. To the inspiring strains of Mendelssohn's march the wedding party then entered in the following order: Dr. C. Alphonso Smith with his best man, Dr. Thomas Ruffin, of Charlotte; the groomsmen: Dr. Henry Rawlings, of Lynchburg, Va.; Mr. W. A. Parkins, of Charlottesville, Va.; Dr. W. C. Coker, and Dr. E. K. Graham, of this University; Mr. William Harry Heck, of the University of Virginia. The dame of honor, Mrs. Jones Fuller, entered alone gownned in white silk and lace with bouquet of bridesmaids' roses. She was followed by the bridesmaids, Misses Marie Brooks, of Philadelphia and Susan Clark, of Raleigh; and Misses Mary Grimes Cowper of Raleigh, and Mabel Moorman, of East Orange, N. J. Then entered, alone, the maid of honor, Miss Pearl Heck, sister of the bride, gownned in blue satin and carrying white roses. Next came the bride, Miss Susie McGee Heck, charmingly attired in white satin, hand embroidered in pearls, duchesse lace, pearl ornaments and carrying a shower bouquet of Lilies of the Valley. She entered with her brother Mr. George C. Heck, of New York, who gave her away in the beautiful wedding ring ceremony, consummated 'neath a wedding bell of smilax and white carnation, which was suspended from the ceiling.

After the wedding an elaborate reception was tendered the friends of the newly wedded couple; and these came by hundreds to bestow upon them the warmest of congratulations and the sincerest of good wishes. Among the guests at this reception were: Dr. Egbert W. Smith, of Greensboro; Dr. Samuel Smith, of Columbia, S. C.; Rev. H. W. Smith, of Brooklyn, N. Y.; Dr. Henry Louis Smith, of Davidson; Prof. and Mrs. J. W. Gore, of Chapel Hill; Dr. F. P. Venable, Dr. E. Alexander, Dr. L. R. Wilson, of Chapel Hill.

Dr. and Mrs. Smith left Thursday on their bridal tour to visit various Northern cities. They expect to be absent about two weeks.

Carolina went up against Virginia last Thursday and Friday evening in a tennis tournament, and contrary to expectations was badly worsted in the meet. Virginia was worsted here last spring but certainly had something up her sleeve for the Carolina team this year. Pollard and Chapman represented Virginia. Pollard won the championship of Virginia at Richmond last fall, and with his hard, swift leopard strokes and his peculiar jumping serve outclassed both of Carolina's representatives. Chapman from Los Angeles, California, though not in Pollard's class, was a strong, finished player and put up a steady, consistent game. Carolina, represented by Phillips and Orr, put up a hard fight in the doubles, but could not cope with their opponents in singles. Virginia took three out of four sets in doubles 6-4; 4-6; 6-4; 6-4. The next afternoon Pollard won from Orr 6-0; 6-3; and 6-1, three consecutive sets. Chapman won from Phillips three hard-fought sets, 6-4; 6-3; 6-2. Carolina's team say they have no excuse for not winning the tournament. They acknowledge that they were beaten fairly and squarely, but they think that they can beat Virginia down here on their own courts. They say that strange courts, two cold days and a strange audience made a big difference in their playing.

Both Messrs Orr and Phillips were delighted with the courteous treatment accorded them on all sides.

The Quartet Monday Night.

A fair sized audience assembled in Gerrard Hall Monday night to hear the Schubert String Quartet, of Boston. The entertainment was secured by the University Musical Association, with a twofold purpose in view: to furnish a source of entertainment and, incidentally, to make some money. As an entertainment it was a success, as a money maker it was far ahead of its accomplishments on the company's previous visits—the Musical Association this time lost only $7 or $8.

The personnel of the company was as follows: Walter E. Loud, violin; H. Faxon Grover, violin; Edward J. Schiller, violin; Frederick Blair, violoncello. The program rendered was enjoyed by an appreciative audience—for mark you, the gathering was a cultured one. Even the hopelessly barbarian brother, whose idea of perfect music is ragtime, voted it "pretty blame good;" those who are versed in such matters pronounced it the best ever heard on the Hill.
