To the Tar Heel Foust

Oh, you Tar Heel, growling "Faust" dog,
Bristles raised upon your back,
Ever snarling, barking, quarrel-
ing,
Pray, what next will you attack?
There's no peace living round you,
You are fussing late and soon,
If nothing's near you'll bay your shadow,
Or perhaps will spy the moon.
Tar Heel Monk, now quit your
fussing,
Go on off and gnaw your bone,
We've grown tired of your fierc
cussing,
Everything that's not your own.
Fido, Tar Heel, quit your growl-
ing,
Or the household you'll disgrace,
Neighbors hear your constant
fussing,
And think this is a quarrelsome place.

The above little masterpiece of poetic art appeared in typewritten form on the bulletin board Saturday morning. It was unsigned. In one corner was the picture of a fiercely bristling dog, which was probably placed there as the seal, signature, or picture of the gentleman who wrote the poem.

The person who wrote the poem has gained the unbounded gratitude of the editor. Never before has the editor been immortalized in verse. Often within his breast has stirred that same desire to leave behind some mark of four year's life at college, which moved the opponents of the Juniors Prom to do what they did. And now, innocent of all guile himself, he finds greatness thrust upon him. Behind him will rise a monument more enduring than brass, higher than the lofty pyramids of Egypt. His name has been writ in letters of imperishable gold. In the words of Shakespeare—

"Not marble nor the gilded monument Of princes shall outlive this powerful rhyme."

And for other reasons, too, the editor is glad. Though not a genius himself, to have served as the instrument for bringing to light such a genius is a consolation. For the writer of this poem has certainly shown more genius than has ever yet been displayed by any member of the Junior class—or senior for that matter.

He, like the epic poets of old, has treated of lofty subject in one exalted style. Besides, he has scored the usual triumph which comes from the anonymous use of personalities.

The poem should have been given to the editor for publication. The columns of this paper are open to any student of the University. Criticisms of the paper, the editor, or anything, or anybody else, when signed, will be received and cheerfully printed.

Since the Prom has been definitely abolished for the time being Junior Week has been left but two dances. Some talk has been made of a subscription dance by the dancing men of the junior class, but this has been found to be impracticable. These facts seem to make it clear that the time has come to revive the Cotillion Club organized last year among the non-frat men. The dance given by the club last year was from all reports a success. The opportunity this year for the club to give a dance is much better. It is to be hoped that the men interested will push matters.

The complaint is often made that non-fraternity men are to a certain extent excluded from the social life of the University. Probably they are. But one main reason why they are is that they make no effort of themselves to take part. Under the present conditions at every dance to which he goes the non-frat man is the guest of the fraternity men. He has no opportunity and he apparently makes no effort to return the courtesy. This fact makes it impossible for some to accept the hospitality of the frat men. The matter is much too one-sided. The Cotillion Club has a fine chance to even matters. It is to be hoped that the club will accept the opportunity.

PLANS NEARLY COMPLETE

For the Summer Session of 1912. The Summer School Begins on the 11th of June

Under the direction of Professor N. W. Walker, professor of Secondary Education in the University and director of the Summer School, extension plans for the summer session of 1912 are rapidly nearing completion. It is planned to offer to the teachers of the State during the coming session the most interesting and useful courses in professional training which the University has been able to give since the establishment of the Department of Education in 1877.

The summer term will begin on June 11, shortly after the 117th commencement, and will continue until July 20, a period of six weeks.

In addition to the instruction in the regular courses there will also be a series of late afternoon and special evening lectures to supplement and to add variety to the regular work of the school. The director considers himself fortunate in being able to announce that among these lectures, a complete list of which'll be given later, is the Hon. P. P. Clarton, Commissioner of Education of the United States.

As a further help for the teachers in attendance arrangements have again been made with the State Board of Examiners in Raleigh, by means of which examinations for the high school teacher's certificate and the five year State certificate may be taken at the University by members of the school at the close of the term. This privilege has proven of great value in previous years and should prove of greater value at the coming term.

The Summer School of the University is rapidly coming to be one of the most important departments of University work. The school last summer from every point of view was by far the most successful of recent years. The enrollment increased from 99 the summer before to 225; in all 27 regular courses were given. The character of the work done was of a high grade and was very gratifying to the instructors. During the term a summer school scholarship of $20 was established by the Summer School Dramatic Club to be awarded by the director of the school to some worthy student in attendance at the next session of the school.

The school during the coming summer is expected by the director to be larger and to do even better work than that of last summer. Ample and cheap accommodations both of rooms and board will be provided. These together with the large number of courses to be offered, the soundness of the instruction given, and the attractiveness of the supplementary lectures will doubtless bring a large attendance and gratifying results.

Daughters of Confederacy To Give Supper

On the evening of February 22, the Chapel Hill Chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy will give a supper at the University Inn. Barbecue, chicken salad, Brunswick stew, and oysters will be served.

The proceeds of the supper will go to a purpose dear to the heart of every Carolina student—the erection of the monument on the University campus to the memory of the boys of the 60's—Carolina men—who left the University to go to the War Between the States.

The memorial to these noble-hearted boys is to be unveiled at next commencement. It will be a gift to the University from the United Daughters of the Confederacy of North Carolina. The supper, which will aid in securing the funds pledged by the Chapel Hill Chapter for the monument, commends itself of necessity to all Carolina students.
