ter Goodhue had struck out, Finley got his base on balls. Swink the catcher, threw the ball down to first base, but he didn't throw it accurately, and it went on down to right field, while Finley went on down to second. That explains the error chalked up opposite Swink's name. Lile fled out to third, but Douglass singled, scoring Finley.

SENIOR STUNT TRIUMPHS.

Gaby Glider; and evidently he was a former Fifth English Star. He held forth on the classics in a marvelously astonishing manner. He improved considerably upon Romea and Juliet, greatly to the delight of the Misses Eules and Petteway. His discourse on Ancient and Modern History, deeply effected the young lady partly dressed in a blue gown.

Mike of the subway voice, is evidently no high-explosive expert. The powder which so greatly excited him, only goes off upon the application of a wet rag. Its safeness from explosion is evident from the fact that it is often employed in match-making. But when it came to the correct use of the English language, Mike was there with the goods. We always knew there was something wrong about that lamb piece, but we could not express ourselves. We must also hand it to Mike on being a poultryman and familiar with Macbeth.

The Prevaricator was some gun himself. He would have made a great geologist if he had started earlier.

The quartette was rather tuneful at times; and the whole chorus, smote mightily upon the string of harmony in Willie's Jingle. They made a very light evening of it in spite of the dark prospect they presented on appearance. The pleasant tingle of Willie's Jingle, and Parisian side of the Gaby Glide, still ring on the campus.

"It wasn't as good as last year's stunt," suggested the student.

"That shows your poor taste," growled the Professor. "There wasn't a thing in it detrimental to our prosperity and preëminence. It was a grand display of art, naturally unappreciated by the common rabble who only delight in slander, and the exposing of innocence abuses and wickedness. I repeat it, sir, it shows your poor taste." And he proceeded to bang a six by a horse hair over the head of the unappreciative one.

"Yes, Sir," agreed that unworthy.
