

DRESSING ROOM GOSSIP.

Awake! for morning in the bowl of night Has poured the corn flakes of the dawning light, And Horny Handed Henry of the South Has rung 8:30. Up and get a bite!
Up from a Freshman to a Senior great I rose and on ten thousand classes sate,
And many a knot unravelled on the road,
But not the knot of Math One, cruel fate!
There was the book to which I no key,
There the solutions that I could not see.
Some little talk of z and y And then no longer talk of y and z.

You who love deeds of reckless heroism and have thrilled at the story of the light brigade, that one red drop forcing back for a space the Russian ocean, and the story of the "thin gray lines" storming the heights of Gettysburg, you hero worshipers—off with your hats to the trees of the autumn! A mighty army with banners of flaming crimson and glowing gold, the autumn trees, assaulting hill and overwhelming plain, charge recklessly the battlements of Winter. And at last, shattered by winter's volleys of hail, they march to destruction valiantly flaunting their shreds of flags full in the face of death.

By the way, did you ever walk out in the Arboretum at night and see the wise old stars (on, on heroic reader, it can't last much longer) laughing at the young moon kissing the blushing roses and—

By the way a second time, speaking of stars, say, haven't we been playing some football?
An average of over fifty points per game, how's that? Every man a star, and the whole team a constellation! On to Richmond!

Tennis has been raging too.
Volleys, smashes, and lobs (a man who lobs well is a lobster, you know) are the events of the day. Many hot, fast sets have been won and lost and many rackets dashed wildly to the ground. But many are called, only two are chosen. So you who have lost out may console yourselves by putting the blame on the racket and remembering that you've helped somebody on the road to an N. C., and that it is "more blessed to give than to receive."

A cozy-corner underneath the bough,
A witching moon, un peu d'amour,
And Thou
Beside me in the Arboretum, Love—
Ah, Chapel Hill were paradise enow.

Phil Woolcott at Y. M. C. A.

Philip Woolcott led the regular Tuesday night meeting at the Y.
M. C. A. with a talk on "The Equilateral Man." He emphasized the point that an equilateral man means one equally developed in spirit, mind, and body; and that if the mind and body are clean, the spirit will also be clean.
He stated that in order to succeed in life one must work with clean body and mind, and stick to the job all the time.

TOURNAMENT PROGRESSES

Finals of Tennis Tournament Soon to be Played off.

The first round of the varsity tennis tournament, which began last week, was continued and finished this week. In addition, about half of the second round has been played off. In the first round those matches not mentioned in the last issue of the Tar Heel resulted as follows:

Jernigan won from Bradshaw, Chris Jones from Chapman, Winston from Cowan, Blalock from Weeks, Mebane from Wilson, Herty from House, and Branson from Parker. In the second round, so far, Mebane has won from Blalock, Capehart from Proctor, Rutledge from Ragland, Jernigan from Hancock, and Branson from Allred.

The tournament is now fast approaching its climax. The play is daily becoming faster, and Mebane, Capehart, Branson, and Rutledge have reached the third round; so the tennis seen for the next few days will probably be the real stuff, hot and lively, close and classy. Rutledge, Mebane, and Capehart all three play a good, steady game. But Branson is the unknown quantity—the dark horse of the tournament.
He has risen to the third round with very little trouble and may yet cause somebody serious annoyance. Since the Athletic Council has not yet met, it still undecided whether or not Oates will be eligible.

WEEKS WINS WORTHILY

The first number of the Star Course became a thing of the past Saturday night. Jokes, good music, and an all-round good program went to insure the Weeks Company a good audience any time they visit Chapel Hill.
Mr. Weeks captivated the crowd with his joke on "96" and the fly that wouldn't fly out. After that he simply turned loose.

Mrs. Weeks won over her audience in the divorce case even though she did not get the divorce. Miss Woodward played to encores most of the time.

To describe the performance is impossible. It all deserves an encore.

The Dramatic club met several times this week, and last, to discuss the play and hold the try outs for the cast. No other business of importance has been transacted, and the make-up of the cast has not yet been decided.
