3 GOALS TELL TALE

Virginia Quint Defeats Carolina 30-24

GAME CLOSE THROUGHOUT

Tandy Stars, Making 10 Points. Numerous Fouls Slowed Game

Last Monday night in Richmond the Orange and the Blue of Virginia defeated Carolina by a margin of only three goals. At the end of the first half the score stood 15-15, but in the last half the Virginians spurted ahead and won 30-24. From beginning to end the crowd was wholeheartedly in favor of Carolina, and the Blue and White shots received heavy applause.

Carolina got the jump on Virginia at the start, and for a while it looked as if the game would result in a Tar Heel victory. The Charlottesvilles aggregation soon found their shooting eyes, and by the end of the first half the score stood 15-15.

In the second half Virginia started with a strong offence, and before the Carolinians could stop the assault, their opponents had piled up a good margin. However, with but three minutes to play, and Virginia leading by four points, the Blue and White began to locate the basket. At this point Tandy who had been playing a star game, disqualified himself by making his fourth personal foul.

At the beginning of the game Carolina got the tip-off and in less than one minute Meb Long had caged the ball. In a few minutes Tandy put another one through. The Virginians played hard and gradually crept up until they had tied the score by the end of the half.

Numerous fouls during the whole of the game made it a little slow. Fourteen foul goals were shot during the game—Long getting six and Strickland, for Virginia, eight. During the whole performance the players seemed unable to locate the baskets, except from near the middle of the floor.

Strickland at center for Virginia was the star of the game. Tandy played a brilliant game also. The Carolina center got 5 of his team's 9 field goals. Strickland

SECRETARY McADOO HERE COMMENCEMENT

To Deliver Address. A Sketch Of His Career

Secretary William Gibbs McAdoo has accepted the invitation tendered him by the University to speak at commencement. Next June the Secretary of the Treasury, together with Mrs. McAdoo and the McAdoo baby, who has never been to North Carolina before, will arrive in Chapel Hill. Last commencement Mr. McAdoo was to have spoken, but an unforeseen meeting of the International Finance Conference in the West prevented his coming to North Carolina at that time.

Mr. McAdoo's career has been such that he will necessarily have in his address much to interest young men. He was born near Marietta, Georgia, October 31, 1863. His father was an officer in the Mexican War, a Tennessee judge, Confederate soldier, and in his last years a professor in the University of Tennessee. After leaving the University, the Secretary-to-be began practicing law in Chattanooga, where becoming interested in transportation problems, he reconstructed the local transit system.

In 1892 Mr. McAdoo moved to New York. In 1902 he undertook the problem of constructing tunnels under the Hudson, which now unite New and Jersey City. The project was hazardous; it required audacity and capital; but the work was accomplished. New York is indebted to Mr. McAdoo for other of her indispensable transit systems, as well. The "triborough" route, he was largely instrumental in securing.

"Mr. McAdoo," says the Review of Reviews, "is a man who thinks in large terms and from the public standpoint. Unlike some men of similarly bold imagination, he has an amazing gift for details, a tireless industry, and a dauntless courage. He is of the stuff that statesmen are made of, and he is in every way fitted for high political place. . . . Mr. McAdoo's way of winning public favor is to render public service. . . . He has always been a progressive in his conviction, and while an active Democrat, he has never had any of that narrowness or mere partisanship."

Mr. H. G. Baity was initiated in the Amphoterotheron Wednesday night.

1916 ANNUAL TO PRESS

Comes Out About May 1st. Has Good Deal Humor and Poetry

Work on the 1916 Yackety Yack is nearing completion, and the editors and business managers will soon send their last copy and pictures to the press.

The engraving is being done by the Electric City Engraving Company, of Buffalo, N. Y., and the contract for printing and binding has been given the Edwards Broughton Company, of Raleigh. More attention is being given to the artistic part of the Yackety Yack this year than formerly. Among the artists who have contributed to this year's annual are: Russel Henderson, formerly with the Charlotte Observer; Jaques Busbee, of Raleigh; E. J. Lilly, of Fayetteville, together with several students. It is proposed to introduce each department of the book with a color plate.

There will be several serious articles dealing with college affairs, as well as fifteen pages devoted to humor. Miss Eleanor Watson, R. B. House, M. Roundtree, and A. M. Lindau have contributed some excellent poetry.

The county and high school clubs have again come into their own. The new annual will contain pictures of all those who have expressed a desire to appear. There are, as usual, numerous photographs of local scenes.

The seniors will be written up as before, and the juniors will have individual pictures again this year. The departments of law, medicine, and pharmacy will not be changed. The book will in all probability be ready for distribution about May 1.

EIGHT MARRIED STUDENTS

Carolina Now Boasts That Many Since Two Post-Exam Weddings

Two more students have taken the fatal leap that automatically makes them members of the local students' Benedict colony. They are Mr. Francis H. Cooper, of Washington, N. C., who was married to Miss Eula H. Wallace of the same place, on February 1, at Richmond, Va., and Mr. Allen T. Castelle of Anlander, who was, on the same date, married to Miss Sallie May Hollowell at her home in Anlander. Messrs. Cooper and Castelle will graduate in June. Counting "Doggie" Trenchard, these make eight students that have already selected their "help meets" for life.

FEBRUARY MAGAZINE APPEARS ON CAMPUS

Is a Little Over-serious. Has History of Frats Here

The most important article in the February number of the University Magazine, which has just been published, is a "Sketch of the Fraternities of the University of North Carolina (1851-1915.)" by Herschel V. Johnson. '16. This article is not only valuable historically, but affords very interesting reading as well. The writer has thoroughly acquainted himself with his subject and has thrown light upon an important feature of the University Life. Furthermore, it suggests that more might be done in studying certain other definite aspects of university life. Such studies are worth more than trivial and meaningless short stories.

Two poems are included in the present number—one by Mr. Lindau, the other by Mr. Roundtree, who had such a good poem in the last number of the magazine. "Broadway through the Provincial Eyes of a Downhomer" affords a refreshing bit of gossip from an alumnus. It should encourage other alumni contributions. Mr. Kato's article on "International Peace and Mutual Understanding" is timely and logical as well.

A live exchange department would add much to the magazine, provided it is carefully edited. One feels that a few short, snappy articles, humorous or otherwise, might enliven the magazine a little. It is a little inclined, perhaps, to over-seriousness.

BASEBALL PROSPECTS

Nearly a Hundred Men Warming-Up on Class Field

EIGHT LETTER MEN BACK

Regular Practice Starts Next Week. Team Sure to be Strong on Fielding

The baseball prospects for the coming season are very bright. Practice started last week and at present there are about 90 men on the squad. Of these 90 there are 16 men from last year's squad, including 8 letter men. The letter men are Capt. Patterson, Currie, Williams, Hart, Hardison, Lewis, Bailey, and Zollicoffer. The practice so far has consisted of batting practice and some fungo hitting to the outfield. Infield practice will start next week, and "canning" will begin as soon as Coach "Chick" Doak has had a chance to "look 'em over."

The pitching staff should be especially strong this year. Williams and Currie, both letter men, should go well this year. Currie showed exceptionally good form during the latter part of last season, and pitched splendid ball last summer. Cuthrell, who was ineligible last year, will be on the job this year. He pitched fine ball for Wake Forest two years ago. Johnson will report as soon as the basket ball season is over. Kinlaw and Coleman, from last year's squad, Plyler who pitched star ball for the Juniors last year, Ash Hill, and two Freshmen, Watkins and Powell, fill out a pitching staff that should compare favorably with any in the South.

For catchers we have Hart, a letter man, Angel, who played in the Washington City League last year, Bennett from Merceburg Academy, Love and Roberts.

Jim Hardison, Tandy, and Meb Long will be out for first base.

At second base we have Capt. Patterson, Massey from Elon College, a good utility man, and Jennette from last year's squad.

Sheek, Bev. Royster, Bridges and Lewellyn will be out for short. Sheek is an exceptionally good baserunner and fielder and will probably be first choice at this position.

Mack Lewis and Baker are out
