Kenan were for many years Trustees. William R. Kenan, Jr., one of the executors of the will, is an alumnus. Graham Kenan is an alumnus and a trustee."

UNIVERSITY AND THE WAR

President Graham also reported briefly on certain interesting aspects of the University's relation to the war. He made no comment on the probable effect of the war on the registration this fall, further than to say that it would take, and had taken directly and indirectly, a great many young men who would otherwise be in college. "Youth is the raw material used by both the colleges and the war. Whatever losses we sustain, we accept as the necessary consequences of this grim fact."

The response to the call of the nation on the part of the alumni, the students, and the faculty, was, from the first, immediate, unreserved, and completely up to the best traditions of the institution. "In its naturalness, fullness, and efficiency, it has been such as to fill me with a deep and solemn pride."

Eleven members of the faculty who went into service during the summer have been granted leaves of absence for the duration of the war:

Dr. Joseph Hyde Pratt, Professor of Economic Geology, Major of Engineers; Professor P. H. Winston, Professor of Law, Major Judge Advocate General's Corps; T. J. Campbell, Director of Athletics, Captain Infantry; Professor R. L. James, Assistant Professor of Math., Lieutenant Engineers; Dr. J. H. Johnston, Assistant Professor of Education, Lieutenant Infantry; Dr. H. M. Dargan, Assistant Professor of English, Lieutenant Infantry; F. P. Graham, Instructor in History, Private Marine Corps; H. R. Totten, Instructor in Botany, Lieutenant Infantry; Dr. Oliver Towles (Associate Professor, Romance), Dr. C. M. Keyes (Latin), Dr. Edward Mack, Jr. (Assistant Professor of Chemistry), will probably also go into service.

A complete list of those University students and alumni who have entered the active service of the government is not yet available; but an incomplete list, made out by the Registrar, mainly from lists of those commissioned at the various training camps, is an interesting and notable record. This partial list shows 213 Lieutenants (first and second), 24 Captains, 11 Majors, and 7 officers of grade higher than Major, 17 Medical Reserve Officers, 12 Lieutenant Commanders and Lieutenants in the Navy, 76 in miscellaneous appointments in aviation, wireless and so forth.

The new camp at Oglthorpe has over a hundred and fifteen University men enrolled.

National Guard officers and enlistments are not included in this summary for the reason that no lists have yet been secured.

SUMMER WAR WORK

A large number of the members of the faculty have been engaged during the summer in war work of various sorts. President Graham has served throughout the spring and summer on the education committee of the Council of National Defense. He has been recently appointed a director in the American Union of Universities and Colleges—an institution (with headquarters in Paris) for the purpose of serving American soldiers in France. Dr. J. B. Bullitt, of the medical school, has given the summer to the work of the Intercollegiate Intelligence Bureau. Dr. H. M. Wagstaff has acted as State Director for the Red Cross, Drs. Pratt and Howe have served on the State Council of National Defense, Professors Foerster and Pierson have completed a book on American ideals and citizenship to be used as a source book for the study of the war. This book will be issued in September, by Houghton, Mifflin & Company, of Boston, who predict a very large use of it in the allied nations abroad as well as in this country. Professor Edwin Greenlaw is preparing a syllabus on the same subject, for use in schools and colleges and study clubs.

In regard to military training for the coming year, President Graham reported that this important and difficult problem had been met in a highly satisfactory way. The men secured to give the courses are men whose training and experience give assurance that the work will be altogether adequate and of University standard.

MILITARY TRAINING

Through the cooperation of the Canadian government, Captain J. Stuart Allen will be at the head of the military work. He is a McGill University man, who went over to France early in 1915, served first with the Royal Fusiliers and then with the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry. He went through many of the famous battles of 1915, saw a great deal of trench warfare, was wounded twice and sent home in February. He will be assisted by Lieutenant Jonathan Leonard, of the Harvard Officers' Training Corps, a graduate of Harvard and an instructor there. He has been making a study of military training in colleges for the past year under the French officers stationed at Harvard, and thoroughly understands the various questions of organization and present military strategy. J. V. Whitfield, a 1915 graduate of the University, will take graduate work and assist in the military instruction.

The courses will be voluntary. The authorities believe, however, that not less than 400 men will take the full course, and probably a great many more. The work will follow the line of the Officers' Reserve Training Corps, as nearly as possible. It will be exacting in its requirements, and will count for college credit. Two hundred and fifty guns have been given to the corps through the generosity of Mr. Julius Cone, of Greensboro.

FOOTBALL SCHEDULE CANCELLED

The intercollegiate football schedule for the fall term has been cancelled. This was done with regret, as the college heartily believes in the game, and is fully committed to intercollegiate sports as a part of its educational policy. It realizes the many disadvantages of dropping out, if only for the present season; but to carry through the fall schedule of games of this major sport appears to it to be inconsistent with its present chief interests and obligations. Class games and intra-mural sports will be encouraged in connection with military training, and intercollegiate sports will be resumed as soon as possible.

EXTENSION WORK, A NATIONAL INTEREST

It was announced also that the United States Bureau of Education, which has from time to time called attention in special bulletins to various features of the University of North Carolina's extension work, this summer asked the University to prepare a complete descriptive bulletin of its work—the plan of organization, methods, cost and work of all its departments. The Bureau of Education proposes to distribute this bulletin throughout the country, as a type of effective University extension work.

The President reported that the session of the summer school just closed was very successful. Although the number of men was less than last year by over one hundred, the total enrollment was over 900, and most of those registered stayed through the full session.

President Graham expressed the greatest optimism in the immediate future of the University, based on the extraordinary need for its immediate service. Schools and colleges for men will lose in numbers. "That is an inevitable result of the acts of the situation; but loss of numbers is relatively unimportant if there is growth in power through a vitalized sense of responsibility, and fresh currents of new life in education to meet new conditions. Future sovereignty of the real sort will depend upon that. Education with real values to offer in reconstructive service in the newly awakened world will necessarily play the great role in years just ahead. Our immediate practical task in North Carolina is to see that North Carolina girls and boys not yet called into government service stay in school and college, in order that we may not lose what we have had to fight so hard to win through the past fifty years; and that our State shall surpass every other State and nation in the unremitting pursuit of this large and far-sighted policy of statesmanship."

N. B. Broughton, Jr., of Raleigh, has been in Chapel Hill for several days.
