INTEREST IN LATIN AMERICA PROMISES TO BE HIGH HERE

Tuesday night the Latin-American Club met for the first time this year, for the purpose of re-organization. Ralph Williams was elected President, and Robert Madry, Press Reporter.

Dr. W. W. Pierson was present and made a short talk on the proposed work of the Club, suggesting that it take topics for study that have a direct or indirect bearing on the war, thereby making the program timely as well as interesting. He especially recommended topics dealing with the "diplomatic relations of South America" and "the part that South America is playing in the present war."

Plans are on foot to have Mr. C. L. Chandler, of Tennessee, a prominent business man who has spent much of his time in South America, address the Club sometime this Fall, and it is quite probable that he may come before Christmas. It is also thought that Professor W. R. Shepherd, of Columbia University, may deliver a series of lectures on "South America" and on "Foreign Relations" before the University sometime in the near future.

The next meeting of the Club will be held Monday night, at 7:30, in the library, when the program for the year will be outlined.

In the Jury Box

There is to be a mysterious murder case tried in Moot Court next Saturday night. John Jones and Will Smith were seen in a compromising attitude towards a jug of the old corn while riding home one night. Some minutes after they were seen four shots were heard, and farmers brought to the scene by the noise of the shots, found Will Smith lying dead in the road.

A search was begun for Jones and he was found—in a drunken condition, blood on his clothes, a 38 Colt on his person, and four empty cartridges in his pocket. This mystery will be fathomed in Moot Court next Saturday night, November 23, before Judge Didlake.

Representing the State are Messrs. Candler, Emry, and Mann, while the defense has engaged Messrs. Thomas, Boren and Jordan as counsel.

Last week's case resulted in no agreement reached by the jury.

NORMAN ANGELL MAKES FIRST ADDRESS OF YEAR

Speaking before a large audience of students and faculty members on "The American Policy at its Settlement," Norman Angell, noted author and publicist, made an urgent plea for the crystallization of American opinion on the questions of the war aims of this country and the kind of peace we intend to make. "We must not say," declared he, "Fight the war and then settle those problems. They must be settled right now while the war is being waged. If we do not prepare public opinion at the present time, we will go to peace conference at the close of this war without any definite idea of what kind of peace we want to secure."

The speaker was introduced by Dr. Archibald Henderson, chairman of the University Lecture Committee, who, in a brief speech, pointed out the significance of Mr. Angell's efforts for the betterment of international relations. He made mention of the fact that he was one of the first of those who worked for the entrance of the United States into the war. Speaking of Mr. Angell's efforts for world peace, he declared that "he will rank in the future as an authentic prophet."

The speaker declared at the outset that he was not necessarily in favor of an early peace, because he believed that "more important than the date of the war's termination are the objects it accomplishes." In this particular, the two important questions are: What is necessary and what is enough? Many people find it difficult to make this distinction. In their minds you must either be in favor of proceeding with the war or of concluding it. The question, declared Mr. Angell, is not whether you go on with war or make peace, but whether you prosecute the war that it is worth the sacrifice that the trenches are making.
