LARGE CROWD HEARS MR. McCURE'S TALK

NOTED JOURNALIST DISCUSSES TREATIES MADE JUST
PRIOR TO WAR

PICTURES EUROPE OF TODAY

Germany's Ruthless Policy of "Terrorism" and the Actual Proof of the Methods of Carrying it out, Main Theme of the Speaker

"There are more terrible things than the most terrible. It is a terrible thing for us to have to send our men into the European inferno, but it would have been more terrible for us to have failed to answer the call of humanity," said Mr. S. S. McClure, the famous journalist, in an address in Gerrard Hall last Thursday night.

The speaker was introduced by Dr. Archibald Henderson, who spoke of the extensive traveling Mr. McClure had done, of the popular and powerful ten-cent magazine he had introduced, and of the high rank of honor he held among the editors of this country. Mr. McClure has traveled in eleven of the warring countries and has talked with many of the most important men in Germany, France and England. His contact with conditions as they exist has given him the facts and quotations that back up every one of his statements.

Mr. McClure first discussed the question of "what nation or nations, were guilty of causing the war?" "For ten years before the war," he said, "England made a series of three of the most significant treaties in history. All territorial disputes were settled by treaties first with France, then Russia, and then Germany. We are fighting at the side of a nation which is absolutely free from any sins of commission or omission."

It was Mr. McClure's opinion that some of the leading Germans expected to pull a big bluff, and did not think England, France, and Russia would fight because they were unprepared. He stated further that Germany asked England on what conditions she would remain neutral if Germany should become involved in war. England's reply was that she could not stay out if France's interests were endangered. Sir Edward Grey said that if Germany would put forth any reasonable plan for peace, and France and Russia would not accept, England would leave them to take care of the consequences. These continued efforts of England to keep peace, and Germany's unwillingness to comply proved the innocence of England and the guilt of Germany in causing the war.

The second question discussed was "Is it true or not, that in waging this war Germany has been guilty of the innumerable atrocities charged against her?" Mr. McClure quoted directly from the diaries of German soldiers, from German newspapers, and from German proclamations. One German newspaper said "The innocent must suffer with, and for the guilty. The burning of Belgian towns was a warning to our ene-

Glee Club Trip Successful

The Glee Club landed in Chapel Hill Sunday night after a highly successful trip that embraced the larger cities in the western part of the State. The club visited Spartanburg, Asheville, Charlotte, Salisbury, Winston, and Greensboro, in the order named.

Every performance given made a distinct hit with the audiences. The Asheville Citizen says, "the Glee Club was a brilliant success. The numbers went well, and the program was carried out in a snappy manner, number following number with no lapse of time." The only misfortune on the trip occurred at Charlotte. Connections were missed from Asheville, necessitating a detour by way of Statesville, and from there to Charlotte. The train, according to code, was late, and arrived in Charlotte too late to allow the club to give a performance.

James Howell's yodelling act was a hit from start to finish. He received three or four encores at each performance. The Hawaiian trio, which was a quartet composed of McKee, Travis, Branson and Poag made an immense hit, as did the mandolin club.

The social side of the trip was

BATTALION TO BE IN SMOKE OF GASTRONOMIC BATTLE

Secret orders have been issued by Captain Allen to the effect that a night attack will be carried out on Tuesday, November 27. But it will not be staged at the trenches. The four companies combined with the drum corps, awkward squad, and wig wagers will storm Swain Hall. Elaborate preparations are being made already for the siege, so that when the "zero" hour arrives nothing will be lacking.

The commissary department under direction of Quartermaster York will be stored full of provisions days beforehand. Lack of food shall not be the cause of failure in this attempt. Bombs will give place to biscuits, bayonets and muskets will be laid aside and knives and forks will be taken up. The Boche will be forgotten for a few minutes and these husky riflemen will vent their wrath on innocent chanticleers. Camouflage-like displays of celery will shield zapplin-shaped cigars, and innocent looking steel-jackets will bear the brand of Piedmont and be Sovereign in the hazy atmosphere. The muddy waters of the trenches will be sipped no more, and delicious grape juice shall flow more abundantly than does the ooze (not booze) of Flanders.

At 8 o'clock the call to the charge will come. As each soldier goes over the top he will be expected to deposit a fee of two bits. This pays for his insurance policy. He is insured of something to eat and if he does not survive, the fee will be divided up by his more fortunate companions in arms. At about 9:30 P. M. when the field has been cleared of the dead and dying, a gas attack will be started from an elevated plat-

FRESH DEFENSE WEAK IN CHARLOTTE GAME

FAIL TO MAINTAIN SWIFT PACE OF FIRST QUARTER AGAINST
HIGH SCHOOL LADS

HIGHS TIE SCORE ENDING STRONG

In a game featured by the sensational come back of the high school eleven the Freshmen played Charlotte High School to a 13-13 score in Charlotte last Saturday. The game was a gain to the Freshmen in that it reduced their bump of over confidence, and left them in good shape for the big contest with Virginia today.

The Freshman machine got started with the first kick-off. Within five minutes they scored a touchdown by means of short end runs and line plays by Seales, Fulton, Fearrington, and Lowe. Lowe kicked goal. After an exchange of punts a Charlotte back fumbled and Carolina recovered. The Freshmen followed up this advantage and pushed another touchdown across before the high school team could rally soon enough to stop them. Lowe missed goal. First quarter, score 13-0 favor Carolina.

In the second quarter the Highs braced up and started an overhead attack which the Freshmen were unable to cope with. A prettily executed forward pass, McDonald to Templeton, netted them their first score. Templeton raced forty yards for a touchdown. W. Wearn kicked goal. The whistle ended the first half here. Score, first half, Carolina 13, Charlotte 7.

The Highs came back stronger than ever in the third quarter, and scored their second touchdown with a series of savage line plunges. W. Wearn missed goal. From then until the end of the game the Freshmen were kept wholly on the defensive. Charlotte threatened to score twice, and the final whistle kept the Freshmen from defeat. Final score, 13-13. The line up follows:

Carolina	Charlotte
Cochrane	W. Wearn

Basketeers Working Hard

With the Durham Y. M. C. A. game only two weeks off the basketball squad under the direction of Captain Tennent is ready to enter upon the heaviest period of practice it has yet experienced. Several new men are expected to join the squad at the close of the freshman football season next Saturday, among which are Fearrington, Seales, and Fulton. By a process of automatic canning the squad has been cut down to twenty men, including at least three good men for each position.

That there is some close competition for places on the teams is scrubs have been beating the temporary varsity every day this week. It is therefore impossible at this time to predict exactly who will compose the Carolina quintet this winter. Among those showing up good at forward are Lynch, Carmichael, Gwynn, Rourke, and Hodges. At center, Bailey, Liipfert, and "Slim" Perry are having a lively race for first place. Andrews, brother of Perk Andrews, of Carolina's 1912 basketball team, Cuthbertson of last year's squad, Morris, Ravenel and Tennent are all contesting for places as guards.

FIRST YEAR RESERVES GET ENTHUSIASTIC SEND OFF

College "pep", such as has not been felt since the days of Charlie Coggins, dominated the campus atmosphere Thursday night, when, at the first real student mass meeting of the year, the First Year Reserves were given a send off that would have done credit to any varsity team, and which showed that the whole student body was behind them to a man.

The band was there as usual and did much to enliven the occasion. Bob Deveraux again demonstrated his ability as a Cheer Leader when time after time he called on the enthusiastic mob for their rousing yells, his voice being in especially good form.

Albert Coates started the ball rolling with a peppy speech which he closed by reading several telegrams from Carolina men in army camps, including Homewood, Ramsay, and Proctor, former Carolina stars. Carolina men now in training, these telegrams read, are expecting nothing short of a victory Saturday.

Dr. Mangum emphasized the responsibility that had been placed on the first year men at the beginning of the term, on account of no varsity, and congratulated them on having lived up to that responsibility.

The team, with the exception of one man who has a sprained ankle, is in excellent shape physically, Coach Peacock announced, to the delight of the crowd. He instilled further confidence in his hearers when he declared that the team hadn't played the game that they were capable of playing. Coach Barden expressed himself as being very confident of victory.

"Buzz" Tennent clearly pictured the development of clean athletics at Carolina within recent

TEAM IN GOOD CONDITION ACCORDING TO COACH
PEACOCK

GAME STAGED AT PETERSBURG

Much Interest Centers in Clash Between the Rival Universities Even Though it is Not an Affair of Varsity Calibre

The freshman football team left Friday for Petersburg, Va., where they will meet the Virginia first year men in the only football battle of this season between the rival universities on this afternoon. As neither university has a varsity team this year, the freshmen contest is being watched with unusual interest on both sides, and a close and spirited game may be predicted.

The Carolina squad consists of 36 men, under the charge of Coaches Peacock and Barden. They spent Friday night in Petersburg. The team is now in good physical condition and both line and backfield men have been given hard practice all the week. The team will average in weight from 155 to 160 pounds.

Many of these men have had experience on various prep school teams. Cochrane comes from the Charlotte high school; Shaw played last year with Woodberry school; Carter and Sherrod were with Randolph-Macon Academy last year; Sims comes from Bingham (Asheville); Lowe from the Webb school, Tennessee; and Seales from the Lawrenceville school. Fearrington played on the Winston-Salem highs last year and Bickett with Porter Military Academy.

Frank Clarvoe Enlist in the Service

Frank Clarvoe left college last Tuesday for Washington, D. C., where he will enlist in the aviation corps or in some department of the navy.

Although a junior he was one of the most active undergraduates in the University. In addition to successfully performing his duty as managing editor of the Tar Heel, Clarvoe took an active part in nearly every college activity. As sergeant of the signal corps and assistant coach of freshman football he rendered much service. In addition to performing his daily class work with credit, being a candidate for Phi Beta Kappa, he was actively connected with Sigma Upsilon, Omega Delta, Amphoteroben and the Y. M. C. A. Cabinet.
