to the effect that the Huns could have peace whenever their terms were acceptable to the United States, as the noblest tribute ever paid to the justice and wisdom of this nation. He impressed very forcibly upon the students the fact that peace has its duties and glories no less renowned than war, saying in part: "The world is looking to the United States to blaze the path in which all nations must henceforth walk. It would be a tragic blunder and a fearful mistake for any one of you who can remain in college to fail to do so. The less money you have the less you can afford not to stay." He urged each student to think the matter over very seriously before deciding to be forever a private in citizenship.

son, Falls, Dinglehoff, McFadyen, Taylor, Patterson, and Koontz. Mesdames W. M. Dey, A. H. Patterson, P. H. Winston, C. T. Woollen, J. M. Booker, Grover Beard, and Lingle were the patronesses of the dances. The success of the dances was due largely to the activity of the dance committee. The following men compose this committee: Ficklen as leader, Gant and Kimball assistant leaders; Pemberton, Ruffin, Jones, Harvey, White and Lowe. Plans are now being made for the continuation of the regular Spring dances as heretofore. More definite information concerning these dances will soon be made.

"Carolina Playmakers" To Be Organized Soon

All students who are interested in any phase of Dramatic Art will have abundant opportunity with the beginning of the new term to join in the community making of folk plays as actors, writers or workers in any branch of stagecraft. The class in Dramatic Composition, English 31, will be open to advance students with some experience in writing. The work of this class is the making of a new folk drama from materials found in the life of our people. It is this work in which Professor Koch has been engaged in the Northwest. During the first term the members of English 31 have discovered some of the riches of North Carolina as a field of dramatic material. The legends and traditions, the history of the state, the mountain folk with their primitive manners and survivals of old ballads and superstitions, and negro life with all its comedy, pathos and melody form a wealth of untouched material available for a real drama fresh from the soil. At the beginning of the term a meeting will be held of all those interested in any phase of Dramatic Art. This meeting will be preliminary to the organization of The Carolina Playmakers which will have a community membership and will be open to any student who shows proficiency in acting, playwriting, or stagecraft. Competitive trials for membership will be held later, and The Carolina Playmakers will be limited to those who show marked ability.

The first program of three original one-act plays by members of Professor Koch's class will be presented early in the term. A stage is being constructed in the auditorium of the Chapel Hill high school which is to serve as model for the construction of adjustable and portable stages for halls or school auditoriums in any town in the state. The plan is to take stage equipment to various parts of the State to show the people of North Carolina what kind of plays may be made by our people from our own life, and to promote the creative instinct in folk drama as a part of the extension work of the University.

The Dakota Playmakers, which was founded by Professor Koch in North Dakota has proved how successful community drama may be, and The Carolina Playmakers will be organized along the same lines. From The Dakota Playmakers came a native drama which was so genuine and near to the life of the people that it received recognition by those interested in folk drama in all parts of the country. Last year Mr. Winthrop Ames of the Little Theatre in New York urged Professor Koch to bring The Dakota Playmakers to New York and put on a program of prairie plays in the Neighborhood Playhouse there. Thus the new folk drama may fill the need of the American stage for a "new literature of the people, fresh from the soil" which it is hoped will eventually take the place of the artificial, meretricious, "vaudevilainous" plays of the American stage of today. Professor Koch came here because he believed that there was material in North Carolina for the making of a great folk drama. The beginning of the new term will see the beginning of a community organization, The Carolina Playmakers, in which all those who are interested may have a creative share.

The Society voted unanimously to support the Magazine, and the first number will appear as soon after Christmas as is practicable. Taking into consideration the extraordinary circumstances existing here this year, the Di. Society has done excellent work. The greatest handicap, aside from military work, was the absence of most of its old members. New officers had to be elected; new committees appointed, and the work adjusted to meet the peculiar war-time conditions.

After the holidays things will get back into old form. The Smoker that was to have been held Saturday night will come on the night of the fourth of January. The regular debates, with the exception of the Soph-Junior debate, will be held, and Society pins and medals will be awarded the winners as in former years. All present indications point to a great year for the Di. Society, and its up to the loyal Di. men to get the advantages of this kind of work before the new men of Carolina, and show them that in the work of the Literary society there exists advantages that will be of distinct value to them in college and after life.

Varsity Athletics Will Be Resumed After Xmas

In the face of seemingly insurmountable obstacles Carolina had this year a team worthy of the name. That is history.

There is no denying the fact that one of the strongest attractions that an institution can have is good athletics. At Carolina this rule meets no exception and it is a confirmed fact that many students have been and will be attracted here by the glory of Carolina's athletics.

The S. A. T. C. has been discontinued and with it the restrictions which, in a word, transformed the Old College so completely and changed

Non-S. A. T. C. Unit Developed Rapidly

The final examinations for the non-S. A. T. C. military students was held Saturday afternoon at 2:30. Although the non-S. A. T. C. students have been contending against unusual difficulties they have made a creditable showing in their work and Adjutant Whitfield has expressed his appreciation for the spirit that the men have shown and the manner in which they have worked. He expressed his satisfaction with the amount of work and the quality of the work accomplished.

At the beginning of the year practically one hundred twenty or twenty-five men began the military drill. Of this number about one hundred remain. Those unaccounted for either dropped the course or have left school.

At the first of the year, the situation seemed very gloomy. Officers' material seemed scarce, the men were young and the greater majority of them had never had military drill before. Then the "Flu" epidemic came on and that delayed the work greatly. The men who had been in the Infirmary held the others back. But the non-S. A. T. C. was very fortunate in having Capt. J. Stuart Allen and Mr. J. V. Whitfield to start off the military work. Captain Allen, a Canadian army officer, while Mr. Whitfield had been adjutant at Horner's Military Academy previous to his acceptance of this position of Military Instructor in the University faculty.

Captain Allen remained at the University until the first of December when he returned to his home in Canada.

The greater part of the work this year has been in close formation. Squad, platoon, company and battalion drill has been especially emphasized. Besides these several short hikes have been taken and the means of protecting a body of troops on the march have been shown. Several small attacks on the country club have been staged. Thus the men gained a good working idea of the attacks and the methods of procedure in actual warfare. Although the last years trenches have not been rebuilt, the old ones have been used a little by the non-S. A. T. C.'s. Besides learning the parts of a trench from them and getting a general idea of what a trench or set of trenches look like, a trench relief has been accomplished.

In addition to the open air work, Captain Allen and Mr. Whitfield gave lectures throughout the year on military work in general. Captain Allen lectured on musketry, trenches, attacks, bombing, and gasing in the present war.

Mr. Whitfield's lectures covered the close order drilling and military country.

The non-S. A. T. C. work will be carried on as before after Christmas with Mr. Whitfield as commandant. From the number who have announced their intentions of taking the drill the course promises to be a great success.

it so utterly that it was difficult for a time to recognize it as Carolina. It was but a thin camouflage, however, the old Carolina Spirit was there just as strong, as true, as indomitable as ever.

With the coming of the new year life at the University will resume its normal trend. Many old faces will return and new ones too will be seen.

Then the question of athletics, the prospects, the possibilities and hopes. Will the old Tar Heel teams be able to uphold the splendid traditions of the institution?

It may be said that the prospects were never brighter, material more plentiful, nor enthusiasm keener.

Lynch, a member of last year's basketball team, is back and should show up in great form. The material for a successful team is abundant and the fact that Carolina will have a winning quintette is taken for granted and left to the coaches. They have back of them the record of Carolina, the support of the students and the "Carolina Spirit."

Jack Powell, captain of this year's nine, returns to the Hill in the spring. Younce, Feimster, Lewis, Bryant and Harden are back, of the players of last year and with the abundance of good new material that was in evidence last season among the men who are sophomores this year, Carolina bids fair to have a winning aggregation of horsehide tossers in the spring.

This announcement will no doubt be of interest to the number of adherents to the great American game as interpreted by the Tar Heels. Quite a host of fans and fanettes are looking forward with interest to the day when Old Man Winter has been driven from the mound and the imperial order of Carolina Wielders of the Willow will cavort around the bases at will and the horse-hide pill is driven to all corners of the lot.

CO-EDS MAKE POST-WAR PLANS

The University has secured for the women students an instructor in Physical Training and classes will be held twice a week probably in the old University Inn.

The women hope to be able to serve the University in many ways with the return of pre-war activities and look forward to the remainder of the year as a fulfillment of many plans and a step forward in higher service to Carolina.
