

CAROLINA PLAYS N. C. STATE FOR TAR HEEL BASKETBALL HONORS

FIRST GAME TO BE PLAYED BETWEEN THE TWO IN FIVE YEARS

FOOTBALL GAME NEXT YEAR

After more than five years of separation athletic relations between Carolina and the State A. & E. College, suspended since 1913, will be resumed again, beginning with the basketball game in the Raleigh auditorium Saturday night to decide the State quint championship. The faculty committees in charge of athletics at the two State institutions feel that the hatchet should be buried between the colleges and that the two student bodies should be able to engage in athletic sports in the spirit of friendly rivalry.

Henceforth it will be the purpose of the two institutions to pull together and co-operate with the view of improving the quality of athletic sports and raising their standard. In short Carolina and A. & E., in re-establishing athletic relations, propose to make North Carolina athletics better both from the standpoint of winning teams produced and the caliber of players participating in the contests.

A football game between the two colleges has already been scheduled for October 23, during fair week. It is hardly probable that the two institutions will meet in baseball this season, as it is so late in the season that the schedules have been made out and it would be difficult to find a suitable time and place for a game.

For the next year, 1919-'20, both colleges will play under their present rules of eligibility. However, beginning with September, 1920, A. & E. will adopt the one year rule, which has been the bone of contention between the two institutions, and under which the University has been developing teams for the past several years. Thus, after this date, the two teams will be on equal footing from the standpoint of players participating in the contests.

In the latest issue of "Studies in Philology," published quarterly by the University, Dr. Levitt has an article discussing "Paul Scarron and the English Travesty," this article being the only one in the issue written by a member of the Carolina faculty.

Business as Profession is Dr. Carroll's Theme

The man that goes into the complicated world of business of today needs the same careful preparation required in other professions and in addition must have a broadness of mind that seizes upon opportunities as they pass. This fact was enunciated by Dr. D. D. Carroll in a talk Wednesday night on business as a profession.

Dr. Carroll stated that the business world is more complicated as the years go by. As an example he cited the case of railroad rates which have been a source of irritation for thirty years and which are still unsettled. An investigation of the underlying causes of the panic of 1907 reveals an astounding lack of the qualities that are required to make a successful business.

Changes in business methods have come about so rapidly that the profession has become baffling. The organization and operation of industries one fifty years ago were quite simple. It is the idea of the older and more conservative elements that experience is the best teacher; that schools are not the places in which to learn the business principles. It is the quack in business, such as those that caused the panic of 1907, who have not grasped the fundamental principles.

A comprehensive knowledge and certain mental qualities go to make up a successful career, was Dr. Carroll's opinion. As a primary requirement is a depth of vision to see a future possibility and to visualize the success of an undertaking. Mr. Vanderlip, of the National City Bank, of New York, places this quality as the first of the requirements to be met by an employee. The enterpriser needs a large amount of courage to face the possibilities of success or failure at the outset of his venture. To forge ahead he must show sound judgment; he must have the capacity to analyze and choose. Another indispensable quality is that of faith in himself and work—faith to act upon his own judgment. Perseverance and punctuality will help him to push on to success.

"A comprehensive study of business is no easy thing," declared Dr. Carroll. "Unbusiness-like methods were used when we first entered the war, but it was soon discovered that experienced business men must be put in charge to produce the most efficient results."

"The waste in business life is enormous."

Senior Smoker For Coeds Was a Delightful and Enjoyable Novelty

What proved to be one of the most enjoyable experiments yet tried on the Hill was the Senior "At Home" to the entire body of co-eds in the University. The Senior class feeling the need for more social contact and a more intimate association between the student body and the co-eds decided to try a Senior-Co-ed smoker. Professor Jackson while here said: "It is but natural that boys and girls your age should associate with each other, and let me tell you that you boys are just as much co-eds here as the girls are." So the Seniors lit upon the happy idea of having all the co-eds instead of just those classed as regular Seniors, and they proved to their own and the the Universities' satisfaction that such a thing could be made a very enjoyable affair.

The meeting quite naturally was held in the co-ed room, Peabody 5, one of the very few places on the campus that shows the every telling effect of a "woman's touch." President Luther Hodges presided. In a few well chosen remarks he welcomed the visiting ladies. "The very expensive invitations"—Uncle Sam's two cent postal—"and this idea of having the entire co-ed body are two entirely new ideas added to the already long list of '19's attainments."

Miss Louisa Reid, graduate student, responded for the co-eds. "I, as the spokesman for the girls, wish to thank the entire student body, and especially you, the boys of '19, who have taken us in and made us feel perfectly at home. The co-ed has to face much opposition before she leaves to come to the University for the first time, and it is no easy prejudice to overcome."

The dignified Seniors next engaged in a guessing contest, the nature of which (Continued on Page 4)

Negative Wins in Di Intrasociety Debate

The regular Freshman Intra-Society Debate was held in the Di Hall last Saturday night. The debate throughout was closely contested, as a 2 to 1 decision would suggest. The query debated was: Resolved, that the Federal Government should control and manage the railroads of the country as a permanent policy. The affirmative was presented by Messrs. Staley and Kiser, while Messrs. Hartsell and Gresette upheld the negative. The decision was rendered in favor of the negative.

In advocating the continuation of the government's control and management, Mr. Staley, of the affirmative, pointed out the glaring defects of the private system, and contended that these faults could not be remedied, but laid inherent in the system. Mr. Hartsell, of the negative, maintained that such a policy would be an unjustifiable encroachment upon private rights. He further pointed out the evils that the policy would entail, such as political corruption. Mr. Kiser next contrasted the two systems, and pointed out the benefits of the government control and management plan over the private system. Mr. Gresette concluded the argument by taking the experience of the government managed roads during the past year as a decisive argument against the continuation of the plan. Each speaker was allowed 20 minutes, not more than five of which could be used on rejoinder.

The members of the winning side will receive Di Society pins as a reward for their efforts.

NEW BOOKS AT THE LIBRARY

During the past month, many valuable and interesting books and volumes of literary work have been added to the collection at the University Library. The most important addition to the store of literary works, is the collection from the Mangum Weeks Library. Several books written by Hamlin Garland, who recently appeared here in his songs and stories of the Middle Border, can now be found on the list of new books. Those interested in Dramatic Literature and Play Writing will find a number of books dealing with this new art which is coming into its own on the campus. In addition to the above, there are several new books dealing with the important questions of the day, such as the League of Nations, Armaments and Labor question.

All the leading newspapers and periodicals will be found in the reading room.

The many basket ball fans of Chapel Hill who take delight in witnessing a lively scramble after the sphere and whose delight is further increased when a contest is free, had both of these desires gratified Saturday, when a select team of Durham Boy Scouts journeyed to Chapel Hill and defeated a team from the local graded school on the open air court near the gym. Interest in the game was increased by the small size of the players, although this did not detract from their ability to handle the ball, and the many enthusiastic rooters agreed that they had seen a good contest.

They're Fixing up Peace of the World

The Peace Conference in English 21 has been making good progress in the solution of several knotty problems of the peace settlement. The Russian muddle, the Balkan problem, international waterways, and conflicting territorial claims have been carefully considered during the past two weeks. The Russian representatives presented a comprehensive outline of conditions in Russia and proposed recognition of the Soviet government, under certain conditions. This move was also recommended by a joint committee on Russian affairs made up of representatives from several nations; but it was vigorously opposed by several countries who fear that recognition of the Soviets will encourage Bolshevism. After long discussion the matter was laid on the table till Mr. York should present his plan for aiding Russia by means of a commission possessing great financial and economic powers.

The delegations from the Balkans explained the complicated situation in the Balkans and recommended certain settlements for territorial, political, and economic claims in that region.

The recommendations were discussed but final settlement was delayed in order that the Conference might study the question further.

The committees on International Waterways and Territorial Claims rendered reports with recommendations for dealing with these topics. The reports are now under consideration by the Conference.

After a somewhat lengthy struggle between the four classes of the University, the inter-class basketball contest was finally narrowed down to a recent hard-fought battle between the Sophomores and the Freshmen, in which the Sophs took the championship. The team which secured this glory for 1921 was composed of Coffey, center; Cummings and Rouck, forwards; and Person and Fulton, guards.

Winston Wins Western Championship in Fast Game With Belmont

In by far the closest basketball game played on the Bynum gymnasium floor this season, and in one of the scrappiest and most exciting games ever seen here, the Winston-Salem quint triumphed over the Belmont team Tuesday night and thereby won the High School championship of the west and the right to contest with Wilmington for State honors Thursday night.

The game was hotly contested throughout. The final score was 27-25. The first half ended 13-11 in favor of Winston, but the game little Belmont team came back in the second, tied the score and then forged ahead, only to lose out in the last ten minutes of play. Both teams appeared to be about evenly matched and showed excellent form. The playing was on a par with that of any college seen here this season. The passing, goal-shooting and all around team-work was far above that of the average high school quint. Leeper and McKie for Belmont, and Simpson for Winston were the outstanding players for their respective teams. Crute, the reputed Winston star, was held to one field goal by the spectacular guarding of Patrick.

Following is the lineup:
Belmont (25) Winston-Salem (27)
Willamson Emmant
Patrick L. F. Simpson
Leeper R. F. Davis
McKie C. Crute
West R. G. Sheppard
L. G.
Referee, Woodall, of Carolina. Time-keeper, Smith, of Charlotte. Scorer, Mobley, of Charlotte.

Phi Fresh Hold Intra-Society Final Debate

One of the best and hardest fought freshmen debates ever held in the hall of the Philanthropic Society was staged last Saturday night. After hearing both sides argue their respective good points and refute those of their opponents the judges ordered in favor of the negative, upheld by Messrs. J. B. MeLeod and P. Hettleman, who contended that the government of the United States should not adopt the policy of permanently controlling and operating the railroads of the United States.

Messrs. More and Byrd in presenting the argument of the affirmative pointed out the value that the public would derive from government control and instances where government control has proven a success.

The negative offered as argument why the government should not adopt such a policy, the danger such an adoption would lead to in regard to destroying private initiative and bringing about serious political evils. They offered the plan of no government control but instead government supervision under the direction of the Interstate Commerce Commission. They further argued that in time of war private control had borne up under the strain as well as government supervision. The affirmative to refute this called to the attention of the judges the fact that, in order to secure proper functioning in time of war, the government was compelled to take operation of the railroads out of their owners hands.

The judges were Doctor Harrer, Messrs. Lasley, and Thornton.

MECKLENBURG GIVES SMOKER

In order to promote good fellowship and to have a good time in particular, some thirty odd students from Mecklenburg county met in the lobby of the Y. M. C. A. last Saturday night. Food was there in no mean quantity, and with an avalanche of humor gushing from all sides of the hall, the history of the Mecklenburg Declaration of Independence was once more retold and vouched for by every man present. The idea of a pleasant time, Mecklenburg county speaking, was happily realized.

Mr. Cutherton, of Charlotte, president of the county club, presided over the exercises. He presented in turn Professors Cobb and Noble, and Mr. Capps. The club was entertained and informed by Professor Cobb's account of the history of the county, and also of familiar characters around Chapel Hill. Professor Noble, speaking with characteristic wit, complimented the club upon its pride in the history of its home county. By way of introduction to Mr. Capps, he spoke of campus conditions during war times. Mr. Capps, a returned Y. M. C. A. secretary, who spent six months on the Western Front during the decisive drive, told of his observations and experiences across the sea. He exhibited a satchel full of souvenirs of various sorts taken from the battlefields of France.

After spending an enjoyable and interesting evening, the club disbanded by giving a lusty yell for "Mecklenburg."

COMING UNIV. SMOKER AROUSES INTEREST OF THIS END OF CONTRY

RUMORED THAT ZIEGFELD DISBANDED FOLLIES IN DESPAIR

QUEEN OF SHEBA WILL BE THERE

Jazz bands, orchestras, worn out opera stars, jugglers, and all other requisites to a great "blow out" will be found at the University's famous dining hall, commonly known as Swain Hall, on the night of March 28. Everyone will be out to see the great stunts. The greenness of the freshman will become boldness, the boldness of the soph will change to friendliness for the freshman, the college spirit of the junior will shine forth brighter than ever, the dignity of the senior will be forgotten, and the books of the studious professional student will be laid aside for one night—all of which means that Swain Hall will be packed as it never was packed before with Carolina men imbued with the old Carolina spirit, and all showing the old time pep. Every Carolina man is invited, and not only invited, but expected to be there.

Peter Wunsch says that the Y. M. C. A. is sparing no expense or care to make this great University smoker the biggest event of the year. This is saying a lot, too, when we reflect upon some of the events which have taken place, under our process of readjustment. Pete says that he would like to see any man who wants to bet that Carolina will not have a one hundred per cent. representation.

A telegram was received yesterday saying that the Queen of Sheba had made all arrangements, and would be able to arrive on her appointed time. She will be down in her old time form, and expects to find everything fixed up in great style. The Queen also stated that her entire troupe will be present on that night.

Mr. Woolen states that one of the twelve wild barbarians which was imported from the lower part of the Ganges, and was to be fed to the wild beasts just before their performance, has escaped, and should anyone see him running loose over the campus he will report the matter to him or to Mr. Pickard.

Ben Cone will be on hand with his entire orchestra. They have recently added quite a number of new pieces to their already rich collection, and they will render a large number of them during the banquet.

The Russian Symphony is Green with Envy

The orchestra is rehearsing daily and is, beginning to attain considerable finish, precision of attack, and balance of tone. Mr. Lucas is coaching the orchestra in ensemble work, and he finds intelligent and willing response to his instructions. The orchestra was scheduled to supply important incidental music for the opening performance of the Carolina Playmakers. But, owing to the fact that Mr. Rondthaler could not be on the Hill at that time the members of the orchestra deemed it better not to play at all, rather than play with an important instrument missing.

There has been much talk about re-organization of a Glee Club, but nothing has been done because the musical leaders were not interested. After exams, however, all the old musicians and singers will be organized again and new men will be tried out. Mr. Woolen, Professor Harrer, Lucas, and Lindsey will take the lead in the musical side of the work, with Peter Poag as business manager.

So efficient is the work of the department that all discharged officers, soldiers, field clerks and nurses of the army who make application for the $60 bonus authorized by the new revenue act should receive their checks in two weeks after the formal application for the bonus has been made. In event of extreme need, it is possible to obtain the bonus in even shorter time.

Those who were discharged before the payment of the bonuses was started must make formal application, in strict military form, to the "Zone Finance Officer, Lemon Building, Washington, D. C." This application must show date of enlistment and discharge, and the address to which the bonus should be sent. It should also state that application is made for the bonus provided by the revenue act approved Feb. 24, 1919.

Accompanying this application must be the honorable discharge of the enlisted man or the discharge papers of an officer. On the back of each should be given the man's name and the address to which the bonus and discharge certificate, which will be returned, should be sent. The application and discharge papers must be filed in the same envelope. A voucher will be drawn and the money forwarded in a short time.

In event of an urgent case advices from Washington state that they will receive immediate attention.
