AMONG THE CO-EDS

Miss Kate Meares, of Columbia, S. C., has been added to the roll of our co-eds.

The co-eds have been very fortunate in their fight against the flu. At present only one, Miss Annie Baldwin, has the misfortune to be confined on account of the epidemic.

The co-eds number among their ranks nine Seniors, two candidates for M.A. degree and one engineering student.

Foremost among the co-eds' desires and thoughts is the new co-ed dormitory. They are now thinking of and planning for a building of their own, so that they will no longer have to live, or better say exist, in attics and basements.

Gardner Adherents Organize Club

In order to the more effectually further the campaign of Hon. O. Max Gardner for Governor of North Carolina, the Carolina supporters of Mr. Gardner met in Gerrard Hall Tuesday night and formed an organization known as "The Gardner Club." Officers of the club were elected and plans were discussed in regard to the approaching campaign for the Democratic nomination in the state primary. T. C. Taylor, of Sparta, was chosen president, and E. K. Proctor, of Lumberton, was named secretary of the organization.

The club intends to do some good work in the campaign, especially among the students of the University, and from the enthusiasm shown at the organization meeting Tuesday night it is quite evident that its weight will be felt. Besides being a powerful factor in the shaping of the student opinion here, the club, through its representation of the entire state, will no doubt be important in work out in the state.

Franklin County Club Gets Busy

The Franklin County Club met the past week and went on record for advocating a boom for the county back home. Considerable business was transacted which tended toward improvement and co-operation. It was decided to have a feed during the next few weeks, and a committee was appointed to draw up resolutions expressing our wish to co-operate with the high schools in the county in the State High School Debate Contest which is held in the spring of this year. A program was drawn up for the next regular meeting and papers on schools and industries of the county were assigned. Plans were discussed in regard to publishing a county handbook next fall. The meeting as a whole was an enthusiastic one and the club adjourned with a determination to let the folks back home know that we're behind them in anything that they attempt to do. The club began the year with thirteen members but since that time has had the misfortune to lose two of them.

Debate on the new constitution of the General Assembly of the Philanthropic society was cut short last Saturday night because of early adjournment on account of the influenza situation. Before the adjournment the discussion was very spirited concerning a change in the Assembly constitution. The suggested change was that every member of the society be allowed two nights from attendance at the society. The constitution that he assembly has been using is nearly 125 years old, so many interesting changes are contemplated.

GARDNER MAKES PLEA FOR EDUCATION

cording to the Golden Rule. He said that an aristocracy of labor or capital is as bad as an aristocracy of government. Labor and capital should be allowed to organize according to fixed laws, and the non-union men should be protected. Furthermore, he stated that he believed in equality of opportunity for every man and not equality of man. For centuries there has been a great struggle for the rights and blessings of opportunity and there is no opportunity enjoyed for which some man did not die. Equality of opportunity is the true conception of industrial democracy, declared the speaker.

"I am glad that North Carolina is a conservative state, but she is too individualistic and lacking in team work," declared Mr. Gardner.

With a plea for Carolina students to catch the spirit of team work for a bigger and better state and not to be influenced by the desires and ambitions for money and power, Lieutenant-Governor Gardner concluded the first of the campaign speeches to be given on the Hill by candidate for state Governor.
