ON FINISHING OUR JOB

The Tar Heel Board of Editors and Managers complete their job with this issue. We could wish now for a much bigger and better TAR HEEL but we have the satisfaction of knowing WE have given the biggest TAR HEEL to the students. We have seen student life on the campus grow daily sounder and finer and if we have had some influence in the development of student life, we derive great satisfaction.

The University is now large enough to support a twice a week or a three times a week TAR HEEL. In time such a TAR HEEL will be indispensable in bringing together the various units of university life. Plans are even now being considered by next year's Tar Heel Board for such an undertaking. We wish them the fortune their efforts deserve and we trust that the student body will give to them its co-operation and support.

And as we bow ourselves out amid a thunderous volume of applause—for your support and all the aid that you have accorded us—we thank you!

SOME TOKENS OF APPRECIATION

The business manager, Mr. Charles Woolen, has lately received from the Tarboro alumni an expensive gold watch, a "token of appreciation" for the business manager's years of unselfish loyalty and devotion to the University.

Every university, no doubt, has loyal and devoted officials, but it is doubtful if there are any universities of our size which have a larger number of faculty men who show their loyalty and devotion at the expense of their personal advancement and aggrandizement. Time and again in the last few years, with greater frequency, members of the University faculty have rejected offers from business corporations or from other universities, at greatly increased salaries.

These men are generally men of unusual ability, some of them have attained high rank by their work throughout the country.

Faculty men today choose their profession deliberately and not because they are unfitted for other enterprise. Contrary to much that has been said and written the average faculty man could be more than an average success as a doctor, lawyer or business man. When a man passes up greater financial returns in order to be a teacher and when, within his own profession, he refuses larger wages that he may remain with the institution he loves, his sacrifice is complete.

While speaking of "tokens of appreciation" it is not too much to hope for some adequate financial token to these men from our next appropriation. Like Bevo, it would "fill a long-felt want."

VICTORIES OF THE STUDENT BODY

There is among Carolina men, also, a "great tradition." Year by year the life of the University, of the student body becomes finer, deeper and more expressive of itself. Each student body contributes something to the betterment of life on the campus. There are a few student bodies which become great by distinct and far-reaching contributions. The present student body is one of these. What are some of its contributions to Carolina life?

At the very beginning of the year the student body put the stamp of its disapproval upon student disorder and misconduct at public meetings. Directly after the student sentiment had been expressed through the TAR HEEL and the literary societies, the violin concert of Miss Emilie Rose Knox gave the opportunity to prove the effectiveness of student sentiment. Conduct that night and since then at public gatherings has been representative of the student body.

When it was known that petty thievery was existent in the University the student body assembled in all classes simultaneously and within three hours after it acquired knowledge of the thefts, and denounced thievery, agreeing to do all in its power to stamp it out. The statement which appeared in the University paper announcing the action of the student body was copied or reviewed by the college papers throughout the country as indicative of fine decision and concerted action. One college weekly, which evidently knew something of the Carolina student bodies, spoke of the "characteristic decision" of this student body. Thus the University student life leaped out from its bounds and impressed itself on campuses all over the country afflicted by the same common problem.

The fine conception of athletic courtesy was exemplified notably at the Virginia game, and 10,000 visitors carried away a lasting impression of the ideal of sportsmanship existing here. When there was some doubt as to the validity of one of our athletic victories the student body met in a mass meeting and adopted resolutions to play another contest, if the visiting team desired. The coach of the opposing team is said to have remarked that this was the finest act of courtesy and fairness that had ever come within his experience.

Even at the end of the year the student body has maintained the strength of its sentiment when, last week, a stand was made against the acts of certain students who preferred to gaze in through the windows at entertainments, saving the price of a ticket. "Getting something for nothing" doesn't represent a Carolina man, the students decided. And the power of the student decision made itself felt Friday night at the performance of the "Mikado" by the music department.

These acts are illustrative of the life of a great student body. They represent improvements in our life which are lasting.

The spirit of honor, which is the foundation of our student life, has possessed more completely than ever before our student body.

Only a few days ago a student seen cheating on a quiz packed his belongings and left the University before he had been summoned by the council. He knew he faced the opposition of the campus.

The spirit of the University finds its manifestation in the life of her students. And who can doubt her greatness with that student life as the illustration.

It is with reverence and awe that we contemplate that spirit and recognize the greatness of the University and the student body. The material lack of equipment has been a drawback—one which will soon, we think, will be remedied, but the real University is ours in all its greatness.

The greatness of the University is of the spirit and that spirit continually moves to a more unassailable position. The student body of 1919-20 have been guardians and warriors for that spirit. Now may they look back and see the eminence they have gained. Now may they pass the torch of the great tradition forward to their successors, viewing their own work and knowing that it has been good.

In the debate preliminary Monday night, C. T. Boyd and W. H. Bobbit were selected to represent the Di Society in the commencement debate. The query to be discussed is, Resolved, That the United States Senate should adopt the original League of Nations Covenant as provided for in Versailles treaty." The Di representatives will uphold the negative side of the question. The final debate will be held Monday night, June 14.

Miss Griswold to Assist Prof. Koch

The Playmakers have planned an extensive program for their Summer School work. Miss Grace Griswold, a famous New York actress and theatre manager will assist Professor Koch with this work during the summer. The Playmakers are going to present a program of their own original plays in the Playhouse. In addition to this they are going to give Shakespeare's famous and well known comedy, "Twelfth Night." Another, and probably one of the biggest attractions of the Playmakers' program is the coming of the Shakespeare Playhouse Company which will perform here on the afternoon and evening of July 19th. To this company is due the credit for the discovery and training of the well known Shakespearian player, Walter Hampden, who is famous for his portrayal of Hamlet. In the afternoon this company will give a classic presentation of pastoral scenes from Shakespeare's comedies, and in the evening they will present a program of three one-act Irish plays. Thus the summer not only promises to bear dramatic fruit of the richest variety, but to also heap high the thickly clustering laurels of the Playmakers.

Myron E. Fuller Will

Coach Football Varsity

The football squad will be back two weeks before the University's fall quarter begins to start their grueling training under the direction of Coach Myron E. Fuller. Captain Harrell expects at least 50 men to report for practice the first day, while he expects to keep a squad of 75 men out for practice during the season. Graham Ramsey will be back next Fall to help coach the team and will be here until the opening of the Jefferson Medical College at Philadelphia where he plans to continue his study of medicine. J. C. Tayloe and Roy Home-wood will probably be here all during the football season to assist in the coaching. Most of the old men are expected back next Fall. Among these are Harrell, captain, Proctor, Cochrane, Pritchard, Blount, Tenney, Lowe, Jacobi, Pharr and Spaugh. "Monk" Williams, quarterback on the victorious 1916 team, is expected to return to the University next year to pursue graduate work. While Captain Harrell is very optimistic over the prospects of getting a heavy bunch from the year's crack freshman squad, the outlook for a fine team next year is very encouraging.

We Appreciate It

The managers of the TAR HEEL wish here to express their appreciation of the loyal support of subscribers and advertisers who have made possible Carolina's first consistently six-page paper, and to the Seeman Printery, of Durham, for their patience in handling copy and hearty co-operation in printing the paper—a fact which alone has made possible the first "prompt" circulation in many years.

C. School Announces

New Summer Course

Dr. D. D. Carrol, acting dean of the School of Commerce announces a summer course from August 9 to 15 for commercial secretaries. A program for lectures is being arranged which will deal with all phases of the secretary's duties. These lectures are to be given by the best specialists that can be secured, and the University faculty. There will be round-table discussions of problems and duties all of which terminate in an effort to promote co-operation and commercial development along commercial and industrial lines. No plans as yet have been announced for the work of the School of Commerce for next year although it is definitely known that there will be at least three new men added to the faculty. With the unusually large enrollment and the not only local, but state wide interest that is given it, the School of Commerce bids fair to become one of the most important departments of the University, and will play a very important part in the future commercial and industrial development of our state.

A movie of the inaugural of President Harry Woodburn Chase, tenth president of the University of North Carolina, and also showing the Overall Clubs of North Carolina and Trinity, was shown at the Pickwick Monday night. The long line of students, graduates, professors, and celebrities, appeared unusually impressive in the picture.

Friends of Mr. Grady Leonard will be glad to know that he is recovering from the effects of the Aquia Regia which got in his eye last Monday on Chemistry 31 lab.

Cy Thompson Says---

To Ex-Service Men:

President Wilson has signed the Sweet law recently passed by Congress, making many desirable changes in the six permanent forms of Government Life Insurance. The choice of lump sum settlement to your estate is one of them.

Come in to see me in my office opposite the campus and learn in detail how you may reinstate your lapsed policy or convert all or any portion of yours.

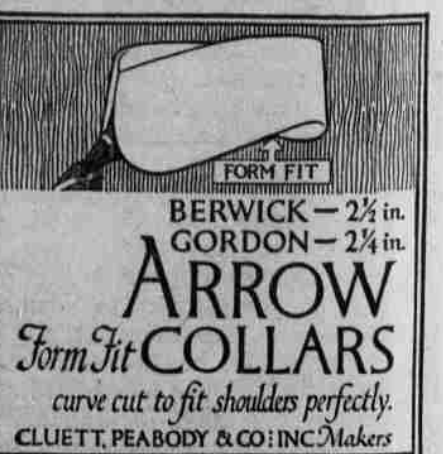

Unless you need additional coverage, particularly for protection to credit, we will not even discuss the advantages of the superior service that the first-chartered purely mutual American company offers over most commercial companies.
