ARE YOU PREPARED FOR LIFE

Specialization becomes more necessary as each year competition increases. Men who are trained take the better positions and stand at the head of their professions.

A Graduate Course will help you coordinate and summarize the knowledge you already have. And graduate study will furnish a practical basis for work in almost every field open to ambitious young men and women. For instance, for the student who plans to be a lawyer, a year's preparatory work is offered by the combination of courses in History and Government, Sociology, and Economics.

The Graduate School offers a wide variety of courses, in many combinations, to suit the needs of its students.

HARTSELL TO COACH
N. C. STATE TEAMS

Marvin Ritch, Carolina Coach During Dread S. A. T. C. Days, to Assist Him in Football.

According to a recent announcement made by the Charlotte Observer, Harry Hartsell, former A. and E. baseball, football and track star, will succeed Bill Fetzer as athletic director at N. C. State.

Marvin Ritch, former Carolina football star, who coached the University S. A. T. C. team in 1918, and has coached the Charlotte High School team for several years, will probably assist Mr. Hartsell with the State football team next season.

Hartsell, who will be in charge of all athletics at State college, will receive a contract calling for $6,000 a year. Marvin Ritch will receive $3,000 per season for coaching the back field.

Harry Hartsell was a brilliant athletic star at A. and E. during 1908, 1909, 1910 and 1911, making the baseball, football, basketball and track teams. He will coach the baseball and track teams by himself, and will have assistants to aid him in coaching the football and basketball teams. Hartsell coached at Porter Military academy in 1916, and also he coached the A. and E. football teams, beginning towards the close of the 1916 season, in 1915 and 1917. Mr. Hartsell was given the power by the Tech authorities to choose his own assistants. He chose Marvin Ritch to help him with the football team.

70 PER CENT DEBATES

sustaining only one defeat. The winner of one of these debates was Eugene C. Barnette, Carolina's present missionary to China.

TULANE.

Carolina opened the debating encounters with Tulane in 1909 with a victory, L. P. Matthews and H. E. Stacy upholding the Blue and White standards.

In 1912 Tulane was again defeated by C. K. Burgess and J. P. McLendon. This ended Carolina's forensic schedule with the Louisiana institution, with a clean sheet to her credit, winning both encounters.

WASHINGTON AND LEE.

Washington and Lee has only been met on the floor three times. The first of these encounters was in 1905, Washington and Lee being the victor. In 1910, however, H. E. Stacy and W. R. Edwards scored a victory over the Virginia institution. In 1920 Carolina again faced this school and won, Dan Grant and Bob Gwynn being the winners. Up to the present time in three encounters with Washington and Lee Carolina has been successful in two.

VIRGINIA.

In the first debate with the old athletic rival, Virginia, in 1907, Carolina came out successful, J. J. Parker and E. S. W. Dameron upholding the Municipal Ownership of Railroads, were the triumphant debaters. In 1908, Carolina won again, J. T. Johnson and J. W. Hester opposing Allowing National Banks to Issue Notes on their General Assets. North Carolina-Virginia debates were held up through to 1919, when relations were broken off. There have been eight debates, both institutions winning and losing four.

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

The first debate with George Washington was held in 1907, W. P. Stacy and R. C. Day upholding Carolina's side of the argument. Carolina also debated George Washington in 1908, 1916 and 1917. There have been no debates with this institution since 1917. In these four debates Carolina scored an average of .500 per cent, winning two and losing two.

VANDERBILT.

Vanderbilt was one of Carolina's earliest rivals. The first debate held with this school was in 1900, "Bully" Bernard and Whitehead Klutz opposing "Permanent Retention of the Philippines" won out over the Vanderbilt team. Since 1900 Carolina engaged in three debates with this institution, finally ending relations in 1912 with a perfect, clean slate, having won four out of four debates.

DR. MACNIDER TALKS
19TH CENTURY SPIRIT

Speaks at Meeting of North Carolina Medical Society on Scientific Spirit of Age.

Dr. William deB. MacNider was a speaker at the first meeting of the North Carolina Medical Society. His subject was "The Scientific Spirit of the Middle Nineteenth Century."

Admitting that it would not be possible to go into detail concerning the lives of the great scientists who contributed to the world thought during the last century, Dr. MacNider limited himself to a discussion of the general trend of thought of these men and their somewhat similar characteristics. It was very remarkable that between the years 1797-1827, seven super men in science were born of English parentage. These men were Spenser, Lyndall, Lyell, Hooker, Darwin, Huxley, and Wallace.

One of the main points that the doctor brought forth was that the characteristic attributes of these men was a persistency of thought. The average naturalist, or votarist, or physicist was too well satisfied with merely observing the phenomena of life; these men translated these observations into terms of the basis of life, the existence of the world and the evolution of man.

Lyell through his many observations and deductions about the earth, its composition and its gradual deposition of animal and plant remains in its strata and Hooker through his study of the flora and fauna of South America and China laid the foundation for the later work of Charles Darwin. In connection with Darwin Dr. MacNider told the romantic story of the life of Wallace, the surveyor naturalist who independently wrote out a treatise of evolution. The world came very near having Wallaceism rather than Darwinism.

To Huxley fell the task of presenting much of this thought to the English speaking people.

FORENSIC SCHEDULE TO OPEN TOMORROW

debate Hopkins, probably at Washington and Lee, and two will face Washington and Lee. Teams from both of these will probably debate in Chapel Hill. Last year Carolina was particularly successful, winning from both schools.

Negotiations are under way for debates with the University of Cincinnati and with Harvard. Harvard is making a trip to debate several southern institutions. But the University cannot meet both of these schools and in all probability Harvard will be cut off and Cincinnati will be debated. Carolina has never debated either of these institutions before and unusual interest is being shown in these contests.

In addition to these the annual contest for the Southern Oratorical League will be held in Chapel Hill this spring with representatives from Johns Hopkins, the Universities of Kentucky, Virginia, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Tennessee and North Carolina. The annual contest among the North Carolina colleges for the Peace prize is expected again. Carolina has always entered into these contests with more or less success in the former and with several victories to her credit in the latter.

Further along in the spring the Freshman-Sophomore debate will come. These debates are between the Dialectic and Philanthropic societies. The freshmen in one society debates the freshmen in the other, the same manner with the sophomores. The past fresh-soph debates have been nip and tuck between the two societies. The annual junior oratorical contest for the Julian S. Carr medal will be held some time near Easter. Then two contests are held at commencement, the junior commencement debate for the Bingham medal, and the senior oratorical contest for the Willie P. Mangum medal.

So with Pennsylvania tomorrow night, Carolina enters on the biggest forensic schedule in her history, including Johns Hopkins, Washington and Lee, and either Harvard or Cincinnati.

SPRING FOOTBALL PRACTICE HAS BEGUN

In answer to a call issued by Coach Fetzer and Capt. Lowe quite a bunch of stalwarts, members of last year's varsity and freshmen squads, reported for spring football practice Monday on Emerson Field. Outfits were issued and the squad assumed a very business-like aspect. The practice to be indulged in for some days will be of a very light nature, but should serve to develop a good nucleus for the 1921 eleven.
