CAROLINA FORCES ITS WAY TO SEMI-FINALS IN MEET AT ATLANTA

Cart Carmichael's Team Cleared as Best Looking on Floor, Defeated Howard and Newberry.

HOPE FOR CHAMPIONSHIP

With the University of North Carolina basketball team classed as the best looking quint on the floor, the Tar Heels were steadily fighting their way into the finals of the Southern intercollegiate basketball tournament Sunday.

"Cart" Carmichael's team took out two leading contenders in the first two rounds. Howard went down before the machine, 35 to 21, and Newberry, who had previously defeated Howard University, went out Saturday afternoon by a 32 to 27 score.

Kentucky, the winner of last year's championship, went down before Mercer. Georgia defeated Vanderbilt by one point. Chattanooga University let Tulane out and Tennessee took out Mississippi State with a one point win.

From the first whistle Carolina was superior to Howard. At no time during the game was the team seriously threatened. C. Carmichael led in the scoring, shooting three field goals and fifteen out of 20 chances from the foul line. McDonald and Perry also played excellent games.

The tale was different in the Newberry game. The South Carolinians took the lead, and then Carolina took it. From then until the end of the game the score saw-sawed back and forth, and only Carolina's ability to dribble through a strong defense gave them the victory. Excellent passing and team work featured the game on both sides, and the victory was one of the hardest fought of the tournament. Cart Carmichael again led with four field goals and six out of nine fouls.

Washington and Lee, one of the strongest teams in the South, failed to show up and forfeited their chance to win the Southern honors. Kentucky was eliminated early, after getting away to a good start, and that put the last year's champions out of the running. Auburn went down to Newberry in the first run, and that team went back home. Vanderbilt is out. Wofford went down before South Carolina, as was expected. Carolina defeated The Sandlappers easily earlier in the season, and if the Tar Heels draw them for the semi-finals the going should be easy. By defeating every team in the state by safe margins, and all the

Carolina Smoker In Burst Of Hilarity Tosses 18th Amendment Into Discard

Various Student Stunts at Well Attended Annual Event Show Forbidden Hootch is Held in High Favor—Med. School and Freshman Stunts Good—Law School Gets Smutty.

(By Bob Pictens.)

The Annual Carolina Smoker, held each year under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A., was pulled Friday night, with a large crowd present. A marked absence of smoke, and the Law School stunt, featured the hilarious evening's sport.

Swain Hall has seen many things pulled in its wide and spacious expanses, and Swain has often heard many jokes, good and bad, pulled, but some of the stuff the law school pulled made even the sophisticated walls of the old dining room shudder with distaste, and faculty members apologize to their wives for bringing them to hear such stuff.

Never in the history of the University, certainly not since those who are here have been here, have drinking bouts been staged with such telling effect and realism as was true at the Carolina smoker. Even the maligned playmakers built up their stunt around a cedar tree under which a whole bottle of glycerine had been hid, and in due time found by Sip Van Twinkle. Both Van and his dog got uproariously drunk. That started things off.

The freshman stunt, pulled by one tall man and two long sticks, was the best thing of the evening. Roar after roar of laughter chased each other all over the dining room as this freshman talked convincingly on how to elect a president of the student body from the freshman class. With each striking and far reaching gesture the man's arms grew longer, and with each lengthening the

JULIAN S. CARR MEDAL FOR BEST JUNIOR ORATOR WON BY VICTOR V. YOUNG

Annual Junior Oratorical Contest With Men from Di and Phi Held Saturday Night.

INTERESTING SUBJECTS

Victor V. Young, of the Phi, by a 2 to 1 vote of the judges, won the Julian S. Carr medal for the best speaker in the Junior oratorical contest held in Gerrard Hall Saturday evening. This contest is held annually between two representatives from each of the societies.

Leonard Epstein and Victor V. Young represented the Phi, and George W. McCoy and J. P. Trotter the Di. The speeches of the first three gentlemen named were shot through with material and themes of like nature. All three speakers strongly insisted on international cooperation being the only solution for world peace.

Leonard Epstein, the first speaker, had for his subject, "America's Opportunity." "America's closer cooperation with the other nations of the world," was the keynote of his address. One step towards this, he urged, would be America's entry in the coming Genoa conference, thereby making a great contribution to the world's economic prosperity. America's cancellation of all foreign debts, he insisted, would aid tremendously in bringing about trade stability.

"Peace by Evolution," was the subject of the second speaker, Geo. W. McCoy. He said that world peace could come only through a gradual evolutionary process. "Limitation of armaments and the League of Nations are the only media of world peace," he said. He urged that people be educated in international brotherhood.

Victor V. Young, the third speaker, had for his subject: "Milestones of Peace." "Peace can come only through international cooperation," was the keynote of his address. He strongly insisted that it must come only through successive contributions to the initial course. He said that limitation of armaments was the first step in this gradual evolution towards peace. He insisted that the League of Nations be the final milestone.

"Ideals," was the subject of the last speaker, J. P. Trotter. He said that there were three worthy ideals that one should possess: (1) the love for some woman, (2) the pursuit of some noble course. He also said that there was one undesirable ambition

CAROLINA STANDS GOOD CHANCE TO GRAB BACON AT INDOOR TRACK MEET

Coach Fetzer's Squad Under Strict Training Rules in Preparation for Durham Event.

MORE THAN 75 MEN OUT

More than 25 men have come out for track in the last few days as a result of Coach Bob Fetzer's request. This is an increase of 50 per cent, and brings the total number of men out for the sport up to 75. With this increase in new men, Carolina's chance for carrying away honors in the State indoor meet at Durham in the Star Brick warehouse March 10, has improved.

As the date set for the indoor meet in Durham approaches, much interest as to its outcome is being manifested both by the student body and alumni of various colleges throughout the state. This contest will not only be a contest between the colleges of the state, all of the larger ones being represented, and a few of the smaller ones, but high schools, Y. M. C. A.'s and military teams will also compete with rivals of their class.

Efforts are being made to secure the entrance of every National Guard company in Carolina. Little difficulty is being met in getting high schools and Y. M. C. A.'s to enter.

Coach Fetzer put his men under strict training rules last week, and every man out has signed the pledge. He has been working his men out on the board track for the past week, and the team is being whipped into the highest state of perfection. All

SEEK MORE INTIMATE STUDENT-FACULTY TIE

Committee Discusses Means by Which Closer Relations May Be Established.

As a result of the rapid growth of the University and the increasing estrangement between the faculty and student body, definite steps are now being taken to preserve its contact with students as individuals rather than to permit its routine to deal with men as colorless units.

At the beginning of this year, the president requested the Executive Committee, consisting of W. S. Bernard, P. H. Daggett, F. P. Graham and F. F. Bradshaw, to make a study of ways in which the University may best keep in touch with individual students. The study of this committee has involved a survey of the situation here, and correspondence with other institutions, including Pennsylvania, Chicago, Michigan, Virginia, Illinois, Minnesota, Missouri, Kansas, Cornell, California, Nebraska and Dartmouth.

The most outstanding fact learned from this correspondence is that everywhere there is the same problem, and most of the letters from the other institutions conclude with the request that they be furnished with the results of the study of the committee here.

The first result of the committee's study was a meeting last week with the committee on Educational Policy consisting of President Chase, Professors Carroll, Coker, Daggett, Howe, Knight, Pierson, Royster and Walker. At the meeting the executive committee presented for the consideration of the larger group all the possible solutions for the problem including those gained from the other institutions and those suggested by the local situation. None of the proposals were urged, and no conclusive action was taken. The meeting was simply a ground-clearing affair, and effort was made to get acquainted with all possibilities previous to selective discussion.

Among the suggested possibilities were the following: a closer contact through personal methods such as entertainment of students in faculty homes, and participation of faculty in student organizations of which they are already members, thus furnishing an element of continuity. Secondly, through the administrative machinery, providing for an advisory system, a vocational guidance bureau, assistant deans, and deans for each undergraduate class. Thirdly, through changes in teaching faculty involving smaller classes, more sections and instructors, fewer courses for next year as, more classrooms, and departmental office.

DISCUSS PROFESSIONAL COLLEGE ATHLETICS IN ASSOCIATION MEETING

College Representatives Make Clear Meaning of Rules of the S. I. A. at Atlanta.

MANGUM REPRESENTATIVE

A meeting of the Southern Intercollegiate Association was called Saturday in the Piedmont hotel at Atlanta, with 18 of the 19 institutions who are members, present, to decide on new disputes which have arisen from rules made by them last year. Drs. Mangum and Patterson represented the University.

The main purpose for the calling of the meeting was to take action upon a request from General Pierce, President of the National Collegiate Athletic Association, for information as to the prevalence of professionalism in inter-collegiate athletics, and a statement from the members of the conference of their opinion of the advisability of an investigation of inter-collegiate athletics by the Carnegie Foundation.

The conference replied that it was their belief that in the South the regulations of the S. I. C. recently put in force were ample to protect colleges against professionalism in their districts, and that the conference was not in favor of any investigation by outsiders. Furthermore, that if conditions appeared to make such a step necessary that they were organized and equipped to do it themselves and would do so.

Because of a misunderstanding about Rule No. 8, which reads, "No

STATE GIVES STUDENTS ODDS AT FIVE TO ONE

President Chase Destroys False Impressions of Students on Swain Hall Profits.

Bombarding the many false impressions students have of the cost of boarding at Swain Hall and the big money made there every term, President Chase spoke in Chapel Friday on the high cost of living in education and with enthusiasm he declared that Swain Hall made only $413.00 last quarter which is about 20 cents per student. He declared that the board was reduced for this month in an attempt to keep from making any money and also to try to reduce the price of board which it is felt is far too high.

President Chase also reviewed the changes that have come about during the twelve years that he has spent here on the campus. He said in part, "Twelve years ago there were only 800 students enrolled in the University and the state was appropriating only $75,000 a year; now there are 1,600 students and the state is appropriating $450,000. This is three times as much as was appropriated 12 years ago. Tuition has remained unchanged during this period of 12 years, and there has been only a slight increase in room rent.

He further brought home to the students clearly the fact that the heavy end of education here at Carolina was borne by the state of North Carolina. President Chase literally amazed the students when he told them that the state put five dollars in to the University for every dollar the students pay for education here.

"We ought to feel that the state is bearing a larger share of expense in education than the students, and we ought to understand that higher education is a sort of contract between the students and the state of North Carolina," said President Chase in convincing the students of the state's generosity during these later years. Dr. Chase concluded, "Your responsibility in the matter is to take advantage of the opportunity offered you here by the state, and measure up to your moral obligation—education cannot be imposed on you as some things, but the state throws the atmosphere around you and the great decision must come from you."

"Brazilian Grass."

This is a name incorrectly applied to a substance used in the manufacture of a cheap kind of hats known as Brazilian grass hats and also known as chip hats. It consists of strips of leaves of a palm, which are imported to Great Britain and elsewhere for this manufacture, chiefly from Cuba.

Matherly Makes Study Of Cost Of College Education At Carolina

Economics Professor Makes Study of Class in Economics 1. Personal Budgets of Various Types of Men Show Average Cost to Student is Higher Than Catalogue Estimate.

(By Walter J. Matherly.)

What does it cost students per year to get an education here at the University of North Carolina? With the idea of securing an answer to that question, I made an investigation of the matter in connection with our study of family budgets in economics 1. I requested each student in the class to hand in a budget of his personal expenditures for the school year, holidays excluded, in the following order: board, room rent, tuition, organizations, and recreation and amusement. I also asked each student to state his class, the school in which he is registered, whether or not he is a self-help student, and whether or not he is keeping an expense account. I urged the students to use the greatest care in preparing their budgets and to try as far as possible to eliminate all errors. I promised them that every budget would be held in the strictest confidence and that no figures given out would appear in connection with any student's name.

The results of this study are sufficiently interesting, it seems to me, to be given publicity. Consequently, I pass them on without comment to those who are interested in the cost of education to Carolina students.

Thirty-four budgets were handed in. Of these, 20 were from the School of Commerce, and 14 were from the School of Liberal Arts. Out of the total number, 8 kept expense accounts. Several of the others explained that they kept a half-way account by the use of stubs on their check books. There were 29 sophomores, two juniors, one senior, one freshman, and one special student. There were six self-help students. Two of the 34 students were co-eds.

In tabulating the items in the budgets, two budgets had to be thrown out, due to the fact that they were not comprehensive enough to be worth very much. Hence only 32 budgets appear in the final results. The highest cost for the year was $1,201.18. The student was registered in the School of Liberal Arts. The lowest cost was $500.05. This student was also in the School of Liberal Arts. The average cost for the whole number was $825.89. The students in the School of Commerce ranged in their expenditures from $575.00 to $1,188.00. The students in the School of Liberal Arts showed a slightly greater fluctuation in their expenses, ranging as has already been indicated, from $500.05 to $1,201.18. The average for the students in the School of Commerce was $803.42. The average for those in the School of Liberal Arts was $863.08.

The following table shows the expenditures of the 32 students grouped according to the variations in the amount spent:

8 students spent above . . .	$950.00
2 spent between . . .	$850.00 & $950.00
11 spent between . . .	$750.00 & $850.00
6 spent between . . .	$650.00 & $750.00
3 spent between . . .	$550.00 & $650.00
2 spent below . . .	$550.00

The following table gives the averages for the various items listed in the budgets:

Board	$241.00
Room rent	45.00
Tuition and fees	99.00
Clothes	175.75
Books	21.00
Laundry	25.50
Organizations	22.50
Recreation and amusement	135.00

If the individual items are totaled, it will be noticed that the amount does not equal the average for the whole group stated above. This is due to the fact that various students did not follow the standard form given them. They either included additional items such as railroad fare, or turned in their items in more detail. Consequently, only the standard items were averaged, including such other items as were meant to come under standard items. If all the other items listed in the various budgets were averaged, they would make up the difference of $61.14 between the total of the individual items and the average for the whole group.

There are two or three other things that are significant. The two co-eds in the class both run above the average for the whole group, one spending $12.91 more than the average, and the other spending $271.01 more than the average. The only special student in the class spent something like $270.00 more than the average. The self-help students all spent much less than the average, the lowest expenditure in the whole group being that of a self-help student. The two juniors and one senior in the class do not vary very much from the average.

From this study it will be seen that there is a big difference between the actual expenditures of Carolina students and the estimates in the catalogue. The catalogue states: "The annual expenses need not exceed $400." This estimate, however, does not take into consideration three large items shown in the above table, viz., clothes, organizations, and amusement and recreation. Deduct these items from the student's budget and his annual expenses would be $431.50, only slightly in excess

NEW TRACK SCHEDULE SHOWS BIG LAY-OUT

Manager Murchison at Work on the Most Extensive Program in Years.

Six dual meets, one indoor meet, and participation in the Southern, South Atlantic, and State meets is the lay-out for the 1922 track team according to the tentative schedule announced by Manager W. C. Murchison yesterday. The schedule, as compared to that of last year, is much more extensive. The only feature of the last year program lacking on the present one is the elimination of the dual meet with Virginia, but this is more than made up for by the addition of the pending dual meets with Wake Forest, South Carolina, Davidson and Clemson.

The State meet will be held this year at Trinity about the first week in May, and will be followed by the Southern meet in either Atlanta or Athens during the middle of May. The date for the South Atlantic meet, which will be staged at Charlottesville, has not yet been determined.

The schedule as announced is only tentative, and is subject to change, as follows:

- April 1: N. C. State at Raleigh.
- April 10: Trinity at Chapel Hill.
- April 15: South Carolina at Columbia (pending).
- April 18: Clemson at Clemson (pending).

The time and place for the Wake Forest and Davidson meets has not yet been agreed upon.

BOB FETZER ASKS FOR GREATER CO-OPERATION

Appeals to Students to Help Make University Track Team the Best in State.

In a stirring appeal Coach Bob Fetzer spoke to the students Thursday morning in Chapel about the big indoor track meet to be held in Durham on March 10th.

Coach Bob said "This is the biggest thing that has been pulled off in North Carolina in years, and we are sadly behind in track athletics—the athletic program is started now and I want you students to go and try to make a track team; I know that there is athletic ability in this student-body if we can only discover it—and I urge you not to shirk what I consider your duty to your University and to your state." He further stated that Trinity had about 70 men out for this sport and State College over 50 men out to make some place on the track team.

Coach Bob declared that he was very anxious to see this program put across in good style as he had gone before the athletic committee and secured necessary money for the building of a track in case of rainy weather. He stated that Durham was lending her support in this track meet to be held in that city on the 10th and that he had pledged his support to the extent that he was counting on the student body of the University to be loyally behind him in the indoor meet.

He expressed the desire to put
