NORTHERN CLUB ELECTS FRANK ESSIE PRESIDENT

Eight States Represented at Meeting—New President Hopes to Include Many Members of Faculty.

The Northern Club, entering on its second year of existence at the University, held a lively meeting Tuesday night in which new officers were elected to take the place of C. B. Colton, Steve Brodie and Bill Freeman. Frank Essie, of Manchester, New Hampshire, was elected president for the current year; W. C. Quinby, of East Orange, New Jersey, vice president, and E. E. Gyana, of East Orange, New Jersey, secretary-treasurer.

Fifteen Yankees representing eight different states were present at the meeting, which was given over to several talks by the new men on their impressions of the South. Mr. Essie spoke of the possibilities of the Northern Club, stating that he hoped to increase the membership by including the northern members of the faculty as well as the students.

At present the number of northern students enrolled in the University is approximately 35, not as large as the number of last year, but Mr. Essie expects all of these Northerners to become active members of the club.

Many Students Go Out For Tar Heel

The number of students entering the competition for places on the staff of the Tar Heel for next year will be between 50 and 75. Most of these are freshmen, though several upperclassmen have entered their names among the contestants.

The business manager, L. J. Brody, has already added several new men to his staff. These men are taking subscriptions, soliciting advertisements, and helping with the circulation. Many of the men have had experience on the business end of high school publications, and are showing considerable ability.

A meeting of competitors for places on the reportorial staff will be called the first of the week. At this meeting the conditions of the contest will be made known and each contestant assigned a definite amount of work. The contest will be extensive, rather than intensive, and while it will last practically throughout the year, it will not take a very great amount of the contestant's time.

It is believed that this system, which is the same as that pursued at many large Northern universities, will afford a fairer means of judging the ability of the men trying out for the staff than the shorter, more intensive contests which have been used by the Tar Heel in past years.

CAMPAIGN FOR "Y" TO KEEP UP STEAM

Y. M. C. A. building which he hopes to see here in two or three years. He described a building with every recreational convenience—from reading and game rooms to a modern roof garden—handsome parlors, and the best swimming pool in the state.

"The students can have such a building if they want it," said Mr. Comer. The officials of the University are now eager to see the Y. M. C. A. program carried through. They need only to be shown that the students are supporting the program and want it carried out.

Other speeches were made, of which the last was that of Manager Ragsdale with instructions to the members of the campaign committee.

The campaign did not close Wednesday night as was previously announced. It will continue until every man in the University has been seen by a member of the committee and has been given an opportunity to contribute.

that a personal faith in a personal God is greater than self-love and self-advancement.

"The third great lesson drawn from the life of this great man," said Dr. Smith, "is his victory over defeat. His surrender was always only apparent and temporary. His spirit conquered always. All true greatness," he exclaimed, "whether of nation or individual, is moral and never merely material."

In conclusion Dr. Smith remarked that men of today did not possess the desirable qualities of the old Southerners. "The great progress of civilization has destroyed the fine moral fiber which is never demonstrated except in a time of crisis. The real intrinsic riches of the South were greatest during the Civil War. Prosperity has deadened these virtues which were dear to the old Southern gentleman."

J. M. Brown, Wilkesboro; D. T. Downing, Cedar Creek, and Yutaka Maechima, Tokio, Japan, were Tuesday night initiated into the Epsilon Phi Delta.
