100 CAKES ARE READY FOR THE BIG CAKE RUN

Mr. Paulsen Will Present Huge
Cake to Dormitory Winning the Run

NAMES OF THE DONATORS

All is in readiness for the big cake race which will be held Saturday afternoon at 2:45. One hundred cakes have been given by ladies of Chapel Hill, and the stage is all set for the big cross-country.

In addition to the 100 cakes, Mr. Paulsen is having an immense cake baked at the Chapel Hill Bakery. This large and delicious cake is to be about 24 inches long, 16 inches high and 20 inches wide.

The dormitory team or unit team winning the cross-country run will be presented this cake in addition to their individual home-made cakes. The entire dormitory team that wins the cake will get in on the cake, that is, if one runs for a dormitory and fails to place in the first hundred, he will get some of the big cake, if his dormitory team wins. The dormitory team is to be composed of all the men who enter the race from a dormitory, the greater number of men entering, the better the chance for first place.

The race will be held rain or shine. If it rains, the cakes will be distributed in Memorial Hall.

The following are the names of the Chapel Hill ladies who gave cakes for the race:

Mrs. R. W. D. Connor, Mrs. G. H. Paulsen, Miss Willie Ames, Miss Alice Noble, Mrs. C. B. Ledbetter, Mrs. Fred Patterson, Miss Estelle Lawson, Mrs. A. S. Lawrence, Mrs. Carrie Denny, Mrs. H. W. ## Hallowe'en Brings Forth the Spooks

Hallowe'en, spooky and boisterous, swooped down upon us Wednesday with an unsightly collection of witches and deformities. It was unsafe for anyone to be on the streets, for you never knew when you would be accosted by a bewitching little witch or a fierce, shimmering pumpkin head. On every corner, behind every tree and post, there was one of these hideous creatures ready to chase you to St. Louis. Door alarms that had become rusty from idleness were in a state of exhaustion Wednesday night, and the residents of Chapel Hill were kept busy to the small hours of the night answering knocks and rings.

However, there was one consolation in that there seemed to be a scarcity of fire-works, for such reports were rarely, if ever, heard. But the celebration was not limited to the children alone. Several young men of Durham, in black face and wearing all kinds of regalia, came over, and it was thought that they were members of the "Black Hand," until they paid a friendly visit to Nick at the Cafeteria. Some thought they were fraternity brothers of Nick, or the initiates of some kind of Greek letter organization. This band of Hallowe'enites was very quiet and lady-like, for they sat down and quietly listened to the radio concert. Some of them had a few "sworts" too many, so it became necessary for them to depart. Gus was excused and went with them.

By this time the children of the village had been tucked away, so the remaining few minutes of the day were left to saints.

"Casey" Morris will not have to undergo operation for appendicitis. After spending a day and night under observation at Watts Hospital in Durham, Morris was brought back to Chapel Hill and placed in the College Infirmary. Dr. Abernathy stated Friday afternoon that Morris would probably be able to resume practice next week.

While this does not materially aid the team at Columbia it helps greatly to drive away the gloom that has lately come over the campus. With the exception of Morris, the team was out for practice today with all men in good condition. The recovery of "Casey" and of the other injured players' puts Carolina in good trim for the South Carolina game tomorrow and V. M. I. on Nov. 10. In an interview with Dr. Abernathy of the local infirmary, the doctor announced that the condition of "Casey" Morris had improved greatly, and that unless new complications develop he will be on the athletic field for practice Monday afternoon. Dr. Abernathy is describing the case said "that Morris drew to an inside straight and won."

FALL GERMAN LEADERS CHOSEN

Clayton Bellamy Elected Leader
With W. E. White and Henry
Sample As Assistants

Clayton Giles Bellamy, William E. White, and Harry Sample will lead the fall German. Old timers say their election was the tamest ever held on the campus. The members of the club did not even have to rise; Bellamy was nominated for leader and unanimously elected, White and Sample, assistants, didn't have any opposition at all.

Wise men on the campus will elucidate and explain the ease of the election. The machine, they will tell you, was just too powerful and well oiled at the meeting Thursday. Opposition was not only inadvisable but would have had no effect. Sages on political theory, if they understood the frame-up, could not help but admire its completeness. Rumor gives it at least ten years of life.

A contract has been signed with Garber-Davis for the dances. If he should break this contract he must forfeit four hundred dollars. The executive committee and the leaders will begin immediately to complete arrangements for the dances.

Right now the question of most importance is to secure a floor on the Hill suitable for the crowd expected. Favors and decorations will be orders within the next few days. It is the purpose of the committee and the leaders to make the dances this year the best ever held. Beauty and originality will be their chief aim in purchasing favors and decorations.

Dances begin Friday afternoon after the game and end with the fall German Saturday night. There will be five in all. Plans are being made however for a morning dance Friday. Leaders for the Junior order dances will be announced in the next issue of the Tar Heel.

Garber-Davis will play in Durham on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday nights. All students are asked to co-operate with the executive committee and the dance leaders in an effort to make these the cleanest, most enjoyable dances ever held at the University.

Returning after the sting of a 17 to 0 defeat administered by the University of Georgia Freshmen last Saturday in a game played at Athens, the Tar Heel Yearlings will be out for vengeance Saturday when they hook up with the University of Maryland Freshmen on Emerson Field.

The first year men have been practicing all week in anticipation for the game with the Old Line aggregation and expect to make a good showing. The Freshmen did not invade Georgia with their full strength last Saturday, Bass, a valuable tackle, not making the trip because of a very bad leg.

G. C. GIRLS GLEE CLUB TO GIVE A CONCERT HERE

Twenty-Five Girls From Greensboro College Will Invade the Campus Tuesday

AUSPICES OF GLEE CLUB

Under the auspices of the University Music Clubs the Glee Club from Greensboro College, twenty-five strong, will invade Chapel Hill next Tuesday evening for the purpose of giving a concert in Memorial Hall. This will be the second time that the girls from G. C. have been to the Hill in 1923, having given a concert here last spring. They professed themselves then as being unusually well pleased with the reception accorded them by the Carolina student body. The fact that they are back again this term seems proof enough of this.

Those who attended the concert given last spring will not have to be urged to come out again this time. The mere fact of having twenty-five pretty girls on the old platform at one time will be enough to draw a great many. But regardless of this, an unusually good program is assured. It will consist of about anything that could be asked for in the vocal line, as solos, duets, quartets, etc., not to mention piano selections and other attractions too numerous to mention.

Such invasions on the part of so many ladies to the campus is a rare thing. For this reason, if for no other, the student body is expected to come out "en masse" to Memorial Hall next Tuesday night.

MISS RIGGS WILL GIVE RECITAL NEXT SUNDAY

The Music Department has secured the services of Miss Katherine Riggs for their program next Sunday afternoon. Miss Riggs, who is from Washington, D. C., is a harpist of marked ability and talent, and her coming is looked forward with pleasure by music lovers. She is making a tour in the South now, and will stop by on her way from Gastonia to Greenville, in which cities she is to give concerts. The Department considers itself very fortunate in securing Miss Riggs for this date. Mrs. G. A. Harter, wife of Professor Harter of the University, will also take part. Mrs. Harter is a talented singer and will add greatly to the program. Annually large attendance is expected.

THE PHOTOGRAPHER FOR YACKETY YACK REMAINS

Because of filled up dates, the Yackety Yack photographer will remain in Chapel Hill through Friday, November 9 to finish up the individual pictures. All fraternity men, and members of the Junior and Senior classes who wish to have their pictures taken should report at the Yackety Yack office immediately to make arrangements for a sitting. The office is located in room number 2 Old West building, and the office hours are from nine to one, and from two to six. No group pictures will be taken this trip. The photographer will visit the University again sometime in January.

HOODED FIGURE STORY IN TAR HEEL CAUSES CLAMOR

The "Hay-shaker" Conducts Investigation of the Affair and Gives Out His Findings in News Article

Stories reeking with an insinuating tale of immorality, supposed to have resulted in activities begun by the noble order of Knights of the Ku Klux Klan against four University students which have shocked many Uncle Joshes and Baptist knitting circles in the Eastern Wilds of North Carolina. But these shot to the ground by an able hunter narrow the aggravated situation to a case of either plain hazing or of merely "teasing."

In a lengthy session held in the "Y" last night Council was unable to arrive at any decision. A number of elements enter into the final decision of the case, the uppermost being that the hazing or teasing was committed by fifteen freshmen.

JUNIORS START SMOKER SEASON

Had the First Class Smoker of the Season Last Tuesday Night

By J. E. HAWKINS

Amid the blare of Carolina's big brass band and abundant bull the class of '25 held its first smoker of the year in Swain Hall Tuesday evening. Although the Junior quartette was absent and the mandolin trio was not present Mr. Sides' non-reticent aggregation of affiliated noises quite made up for any deficiency and pre-faced the affair with several delectable selections. The band's efforts were highly appreciated.

The culinary offerings of the evening, which emanated periodically from the recesses of our favorite dining hall, consisted of variegated sandwiches, hot chocolate and wafers, and Chesterfields with appropriate matches.

The post-prandial oratory was most charmingly served up by Dr. J. Manning Booker and Professor H. D. Meyer. Ludlow Rogers, president of the class, acted as toastmaster and acquitted himself nobly. In an elaborate introduction of Johnnie Booker he brought to light a number of that gentleman's characteristics of which the learned Doctor himself was probably not entirely aware.

In a sparkling talk, utterly devoid of orthodox joke (Hear ye!), our eminent preceptor of things victorian handed the Juniors some rattling good dope in regard to "Our Life's Play," a fitting companion subject to Professor Meyer's "Out Life's Work."

He touched on that unfortunate and to-be-pitied individual who mopes painstakingly through life, working savagely to hew out an existence and laboring hard in the intervals to amuse himself without the faculty of relaxing a boggy brain by means of play, without ever really knowing how to play. One of the uses, duties and beauties of a university lies in the development of the playboy in the man.

He spoke of the fact that nearly all college play seems to revolve around the ball—football, baseball, basketball, ballbearings—and remarked the fleeting character of this conventional sort of play. What are we to play with ten, twenty years from now when our lives have begun to revolve around another kind of bawl?

College teaches, he said, how to play with books and pictures and music, the beauty of buildings and perhaps above all, nature. Nature's beauty becomes the more beautiful

HAS STRANGE BEDFELLOW

A Carolina student returned late Sunday night from one of his weekend carousals in Durham to find that his bed was occupied. Thinking it was only one of his boy friends he proceeded to retire, and being very sleepy he needed only a short while to pass into the land of sweet dreams. When the alarm clock sounded Monday morning he turned over and found himself face to face with a large Airedale pup. The student proceeded to catch his 8:30 and the dog to hunt his breakfast.

J. R. Parks and W. H. Hoson have been chosen to fill two vacancies on the Tar Heel staff. Parks will handle the Exchange column and Hoson will write feature stories. Both men have had previous journalistic experience. Bessie Davenport has also been added to the board and will handle co-ed and social news.

DR. CHASE READS STATEMENT IN CHAPEL FRIDAY

Gives Out Statement in Regards To Recent Boll Weevil Case

EXPLAINS THE SITUATION

In Chapel Friday Dr. Chase read a statement concerning the University's action in regards to the recent Boll Weevil affair. The TAR HEEL gives the text of the statement for the benefit of those who may have missed the chapel. It follows:

I deem it proper to make to you at this time a statement regarding the Boll Weevil, as I desire to make clear to you certain facts and policies which I do not believe have been fully understood.

This publication was founded in the fall of nineteen hundred and twenty-two by a group of students as a private enterprise, under the business management of Mr. L. J. S. Brody. It was welcomed by the University authorities, who felt, and still feel, that there is a place on the campus for a properly conducted college comic. I wish, however, to say, once for all, that no agreement ever existed between it and the University whereby it at any time had the slightest right to describe itself as an official University publication. I am indeed at a loss to understand how anyone who knew that the Boll Weevil was a private enterprise could even for a moment have assumed that it had any official relationship to the University. It certainly was not the official comic publication of the student body, which had never taken any action that would make it such, and I have the best of reasons for assuming that it never was an official publication of the faculty, the trustees, or the alumni. The facts are that Mr. Brody, on submitting his proposed plan of organization last fall, was specifically told by me that portions of it—those covering its relations to the proposed publications union, were matters for student decision, not for mine, and that he was further told, at the same time, that, as a private enterprise, the Boll Weevil was not, and could not be, an official publication in any sense. I stressed the point because it is altogether unfair to you and to the University as a whole that any man should capitalize for his private gain the name and reputation of the University. The formula which seemed to me proper was that the Boll Weevil should be described as published "by students of the University of North Carolina." Later in the year, however, I found that the manager had totally disregarded our understanding, and was describing his publication as "official" not merely on its pages, but, as I have since learned, on his contract forms and letter-heads. To secure advertising under such conditions is to secure it under false pretense.

Altogether aside from this evidence began to accumulate several months ago which brought Mr. Brody under suspicion of grave misconduct, both in his management of the Boll Weevil and in other enterprises with which he was connected as a student. This evidence the Executive Committee of the faculty considered of sufficient weight to summon Mr. Brody before it. He was allowed to examine the evidence, and was given every opportunity to clear himself, and, in the unanimous judgment of the Executive Committee, was found guilty of conduct dishonorable and unworthy a University student, and debarred from readmission to the University.

The fact that Chapel Hill is Mr. Brody's legal residence made it possible, however, for him to continue his activities in town, though not in the University. Inasmuch as he man-

TAR HEELS ARE TO BATTLE THE S. C. GAMECOCKS

Captain Casey Morris Will Not Be able to Play in the Game

WILL BE A HARD FIGHT

With Captain "Casey" Morris out of the game, the University of North Carolina will play the University of South Carolina in Columbia, Saturday. Morris, already crippled with an injured ankle received during the N. C. State game, was taken ill Wednesday with an acute attack of appendicitis and probably incapacitated for the rest of the season. The loss of "Casey," picked last year as all-South Atlantic end, is one of the greatest that could have been sustained, and hits the team a hard lick, coming as it does at the crucial point of the season.

North Carolina has been picked to win from the Gamecocks with comparative ease but with Morris definitely out and "Tommy" Shepherd still suffering from his nose, the game promises to be hard fought, with odds on neither side.

The record of the South Carolinians against the bigger institutions has not been particularly impressive this year. They were outplayed and beaten by N. C. State just a week before the University defeated Tech by a score of 14-0. South Carolina was a bit over-confident and that in itself is considered one of the greatest factors leading to her defeat. Against Carolina she fights her utmost and her utmost was sufficient, in 1921, to hold North Carolina to a 7-7 tie and to hold the "wonder team" of 1922 to a 10-7 victory. It is true that year before last, South Carolina played the Tar Heels immediately after the Yale game which had left them in a crippled condition. With the game 7 to 0 in the Gamecock's favor, the Lowe-Johnston combination went in and succeeded in tying the score. Last year, South Carolina's fullback made a sixty yard run for a touchdown on a delayed line buck and threw an awful scare into Coach Fezer's team.

The showing made in Columbia will aid much in forecasting Carolina's chances in the V. M. I. and Virginia games. The defeat at the hands of Maryland put a decided crimp into Carolina's reputation as a possible winner in the clashes with the two Virginia teams and a decisive victory over South Carolina would do much to restore hope.

Comparative records:
South Carolina 35; Erskine 0.
South Carolina 3; Presby. College 7.
South Carolina 0; N. C. State 7.
South Carolina 24; Newberry 6.
South Carolina 6; Mercer 7.
South Carolina 68; Opponents 27.
North Carolina 50; Opponents 73.

Diocesan Conference At Episcopal Church

The Diocesan Conference of Christian Service was held at the Episcopal Church Tuesday. Bishop Cheshire of Raleigh led the service, which began at 10:45 a. m. and lasted till 4:30 p. m.

There were more than seventy-five representatives from over the state.

The speakers for the occasion were Doctor Pratt, president of the State Conference, who spoke on "How the Church Can Get Behind the Legislature, For the Program Which Will be Presented in the Next Session." Mrs. Kate Burr Johnson, State Co-examiner of Public Welfare, described the works of the State welfare association in its various functions. Rev. Cary Montague, Richmond, Va., gave an account of the work in prisons and hospitals in Virginia.

Doctor Lathrap, secretary of the National Council of the Episcopal Church took the subject that the Church should be a backer of public works and should be a part of the community life. He then gave a summary of the work covered in the meeting.

Because of the Sociological aspects in the meeting the whole Sociology Department was present and made a very interested audience.

Flowers were sent Friday to "Casey" Morris by Haronian's French IV class, of which "Casey" is a member.
