

TREMENDOUS CROWD EXPECTED
TO FLOOD CHAPEL HILL FOR THE BIG THANKSGIVING CLASSIC

The Stage Is Full Set for the Reception of the Biggest Crowd Ever

ALUMNI RETURN FOR GAME

Numerous Little Groups of Alumni Seen on Campus Talking of Old Days

After a series of pep meetings and numerous other preparations the stage is full set for one of the biggest Thanksgiving days in the history of the University. A large portion of the expected 20000 people are already on the Hill full of enthusiasm and anticipation of the afternoon game. Every minute cars are rolling in Chapel Hill from all sections of the state bringing loyal friends and alumni of the University who have come to witness Carolina's biggest grid clash of the year.

Every possible preparation has been made for making this a great day. In order to handle the traffic there has been detailed a squad of 150 deputized officials. For eating facilities every cafe, cafeteria and boarding house in town is fully prepared to take care of the rush. The Freshman Friendship Council of the Y. M. C. A. has constructed a lunch counter at the old well in order to relieve the eating situation. Everything is primed for a big day; it is even rumored that the Orange county bootleggers have on hand an extra stock of wares.

With a big dance in Durham last night, a football game between Bingham and Atlantic Christian College this morning and the big game this afternoon the day will be full of excitement. Alumni who are already (Continued on Page Five)

Ground Broken For
Graham Memorial

Ground was broken Tuesday for the Graham Memorial building which will be erected at the site of the Old Inn. Only the central unit will be built at this time, since funds are lacking to complete the whole building. The cost of this unit will be approximately $250,000. The whole building is estimated to cost $400,000 when completed.

The campaign for this memorial was started in 1919 soon after the death of Edward Kidder Graham, but was abandoned soon afterwards on account of the financial depression. Last summer, however, plans were renewed and student and alumni canvassers were sent out over the state to raise the amount. At present alumni canvassers are out trying to complete the campaign.

The building, which will be used as a student activity building, will be two stories high and of the old Georgian style of architecture. The first floor will include a lobby, lounging rooms and small offices for the publications, athletic association and the like. The second floor will provide rooms for the literary societies and other organizations.

The T. C. Thompson Co. has charge of the building operations. The completion of the unit will be pushed and by the time the central unit is completed probably there will be sufficient funds for the two wings.

Neither Team Played Last Saturday—But Worked Hard For Today's Battle

VIRGINIA ARRIVES TODAY

The Old Dominion Squad Spent Last Night Over in Durham

After a rest of a week and a half, the latest reports assert that both Carolina and Virginia are in the pink of condition for their 27th. annual contest. There has been much speculation as to whether Diffey, Cavalier quarterback, and Captain Blackford will be able to play, but although no official announcement has been received from the Virginia coaching staff, it is believed by close followers of the game that both men will take the field this afternoon. The Virginia squad arrived in Durham last night where they will remain until a few hours before the game. The Tar Heels were ordered to bed early to benefit from a good night's sleep.

Trying to figure which team has the edge from past records presents a difficult problem, for both teams have shown flashes of good and poor football. At the first of the season, Carolina had decidedly the strongest team on paper, but Virginia's impressive work against the powerful V. P. I. team which squeezed out a close 6-3 victory with two of the main cogs in the Cavaliers' machine out of the game, gave Virginia an even balance with her southern rivals.

Carolina is in the best condition since the costly Wake Forest game, costly because of the loss of George Sparrow; Captain Casey has recovered from the injuries which hampered his playing in recent games and (Continued on Page Five)

CAPTAIN STAIGE BLACKFORD

Who has been on the injured list along with quarterback Diffey for a good part of the season. However, it is expected that he will be able to lead his dashing Cavaliers in an attempt to avenge the defeats of the last two years. Blackford has played for four years on the Old Dominion team.

CAPTAIN CASEY MORRIS

Who will lead his Tar Heels against the Old Dominion eleven on Emerson field Thanksgiving Day. Morris, on account of his stellar playing as end on the team of 1922, was chosen almost unanimously on the mythical all-South Atlantic eleven last year. He is playing his last game of his career with the Tar Heels today.

FRESHMEN END
SEASON POORLY

Lost the Last Two Games Played—But Won Six Out of Ten Games and Tied One

The Carolina Freshmen football squad, containing some of the most promising material in years, ended its season rather poorly, losing to the Citadel and Virginia Freshmen on two consecutive Saturdays.

During the season, the Frosh eleven played 10 games, won six, lost three, and tied one. In one respect they did not equal the record of the 1922 freshmen team; they did not conquer Virginia.

Under the tutelage of Grady Pritchard, "Red" Johnston, and Norman Shepard the Froshies had a successful year, on the whole, in view of the tough schedule which they played. Several players who may come in handy for the Varsity next year were developed.

The Freshmen played their best games against the Maryland and State College Freshmen. The State game was the only game played away from home which they won. With the exception of a tie played with Mars Hill at the beginning of the year, all games at Emerson Field resulted in victories.

FALL DANCES TO BE MERRY TIME

Big Round of Dances to Follow Game—Garber-Davis in Prime Form

For a number of years the Fall dances of the University of North Carolina have held the center of the stage at Thanksgiving time. This year a gala time has been prepared for the alumni, for visiting friends and the student body. Dance leaders, and Chapel Hill ladies have been busy preparing the scene.

Two big dances in Durham start the festivities. Garber-Davis, renowned to dance lovers, and the well known Weidmeyer orchestras will jointly furnish music Wednesday and Thursday nights at Lakewood Park. Everyone is invited. Rumor has it that these are to be the best dances of the week because of the combined music and other features.

The gymnasium will be done over and decorated by experts. Beautiful and attractive designs of crepe paper will completely hide all Dr. Lawson's beloved treasures. The only catch will be in the small size of the gymnasium and the large crowd expected. The dance leaders and the German Club committee have been working diligently, buying flowers, decorations, favors, refreshments, and other (Continued on Page Eight)

Bingham To Play
Christian College

Bingham Military School and Atlantic Christian College will do battle on Emerson Field this morning. James M. "Nemo" Coleman, coach of the scrapping little Bingham team and captain of the University eleven that licked Virginia on Turkey day 1919 can well afford to be proud of his charges.

Each year Bingham has contributed its part to Carolina athletics. It is becoming more and more a feeder to the University. This year "Goat" Randolph, "Skinny" Padgett, Dalton, and Dorch are former Bingham players.

Starting the season with only two letter men, Bingham sprung a surprise on her rivals; excepting the defeat by the freshmen, the cadets have come through with the big end of the scores. The freshmen took them down, but the game and score were too close to afford Carolina any relish.

Bingham claims the prep championship of the state on account of the following record:
