few other witnesses, that these bodies were stolen and used as food.

"I am not pro or anti, German or French, but I am pro-human and pro-peace. During the war I wrote a book condemning German militarism; I believe that Germany should pay to the limit; I have a great admiration for the French people; but I have no greater love for French militarism today than I had for German militarism in 1914.

"When France seized the Ruhr," declared Mr. Eddy, she cut the economic jugular vein of Germany; decreased Germany's power to pay her reparations, and further stirred up hatred and anger that seem to make another great war inevitable for the next generation unless some way is found out. He found in the Ruhr hunger, hatred, and oppression. Railroads and telephone lines had been cut, banks were systematically robbed by the soldiers. When the French entered the Ruhr 10,000 marks were worth about a dollar, but at one the mark started to fall so rapidly that now no note as small as 10,000 marks is printed. Mr. Eddy held up a note for 50,000,000,000 marks, declaring, "If this were worth its face value I would be the richest man on earth, but it literally is not worth one cent. Now you get notes in terms of trillions and quadrillions.

"Most serious of all is the tightening grip of hunger and the consequent danger that Germany will be forced into communism. Starving men are desperate. France is forcing Germany to starvation and revolution. If the revolution comes, it may well usher in the World Revolution for which Russia is eagerly planning and working."

"One great need, according to Mr. Eddy, is an impartial commission to determine how much it would honestly take to rebuild every foot of devastated France and Belgium, and the maximum amount that Germany can pay. If there is any residuum that Germany can not now repay, get an international loan. If Germany is ever to repay, she must be put on her feet economically.

"America is the one great nation that came out of the World War rich, with resources and man power unimpaired. She alone is able to speak the word of moral leadership that is so sorely needed. At present she lacks the moral courage to take a decisive part in leading the world out of the morass into which it has fallen. The United States is largely responsible for the condition of Europe today because of its moral cowardice."

The first lecture on the challenge of the world situation given Thursday morning reviewed conditions in Japan, Korea, China, India and Russia.

"Russia is a baffling mixture of good and evil. Economically, I found great problem is that of leadership. Russia much better than I had expected. They touched the bottom but now are recovering."

"The present government is the most enduring and most strongly entrenched government of Europe," declared Mr. Eddy emphatically. It is a challenge to us in many ways. The Russians are a great people and have adopted many great principles, such as brotherhood and non-exploitation of man by man. Russia has become a great laboratory of social principles. It tries one principle, and if it fails, tries another.

Not only is Russia a great challenge, but a great warning against giant evils. First of these is class war. A third of the privileged class has been killed, and another third has fled from the country.

Temporarily at least there has been a great loss of freedom. The government is controlled absolutely by the communists of whom there are less than 500,000 in the country. There is no freedom of the press.

"The standards of education have been greatly lowered. The universities have been flooded by laboring men who never saw a high school after only a three-year course in the fundamentals in reading, writing, and so forth. There is a great lack of moral standards, a frankly materialistic and atheistic philosophy prevalent, and a definite anti-Christian policy. The communists think that all religion is superstition and plan to root it out, not by persecution, but by propaganda and education. No man who believes in God, is married in the church, or has his children baptized, can belong to the communist party.

The ABC of Good Paving

HERE'S a sound lesson in paving so brief and simple that you need not jot it down in your notebooks—you can "carry it in your head" until the time comes for you to apply it. On your first paving project after college, remember "the ABC of Good Paving"—

Asphalt for Filler Brick for Surface Brushed rock, gravel, crushed slag or concrete for Base and the "D" is Drainage, adequate and well-planned. The result is an enduring, water-proof, frost-proof and traffic-proof roadway which is certain to give the longest service at least upkeep cost. Remember—"no brick pavement ever wore out from the top down."
