PARAGRAPHS

Please, Jupiter Pluvius, spare the track until the Southern Conference meet is over.

Don't forget and leave your admission fee in your rooms today. Remember every one has to hand out fifty cents before passing the gate.

Track men from Maryland will rub shoulders with harriers from far off Louisiana here today. The same thing applies to those from Tennessee and Florida.

More blame on the linotype operator! He mixed two of our paragraphs in the Tuesday issue. Our call for the selections of honorary clubs wasn't for baseball clubs, but for such honorary clubs as Booboo, S. I. N., and soforth.

We are going to make reference to Kike Kyser, but get us right now, the reference has nothing to do with the honorary clubs just mentioned. Kike is the same thing to local baseball fans as Nick Altrock is to the Washington fans. His antics are enjoyed by all. Some day we expect to see Kike succeeding Nick or Will Rogers in the Ziegfeld follies.

Dean Brown of the Yale Divinity School gave much enlightenment in his series of McNair lectures here this week. Since the objects of the lectures "shall be to show the mutual bearing of science and religion upon attributes (as far as may be) of God from nature," the Committee of One Hundred in Charlotte should have come up to hear the lectures and be enlightened a little.

What is our standing in baseball now? Nearly all the teams in the state have downed the Tar Heels, but after Guilford had made almost a clean sweep the Duncanites came along and handed the Quakers a licking. Two extra games have been added to the schedule which can either complicate or straighten out our standing a little. And several strong nines have to be faced before we will know where we are and why we are.

WELCOME

The fourth annual Southern Conference track meet is being held on Emerson field today. This event will be participated in by more than 200 athletes from twenty southern colleges and by thousands of spectators. Special bleachers have been erected to accommodate the crowds which are expected.

The University welcomes these visitors with eagerness. This is the first time that Chapel Hill has been favored with an event of this nature and importance, and every student should appreciate the honor which Carolina has been accorded by being made the host of the conference.

Letters have been sent to the different fraternities and student organizations asking them to co-operate in entertaining the visiting athletes and making their sojourn in Chapel Hill a pleasant one. We hope that every student will help in every way that he can to make these visitors feel welcome and at home and that they may go away feeling that the University has been an ideal host.

POOR SERVICE

If competition is the spice of life, the North Carolina Corporation Commission should be sued for giving one company a monopoly on the bus service to and from Chapel Hill and allowing such rotten service.

About a year ago a law was passed which practically said to the effect that competition must cease and monopoly shall prevail in the bus service. Immediately there was a decrease in the service and the bottom has just about been reached. The local bus company bargained with the TAR HEEL to take all copy to Durham and have it delivered to the printers. Twice during the past three weeks envelopes of copy have been misplaced or delayed between here and the printers and thereby caused the TAR HEEL to lose some of the most important stories and editorial matter.

Making complaint to the bus company is like beating against a stone wall. The local carriers know that there is no other accessible way to get copy to Durham hourly that the local paper could stand financially.

And what almost makes our blood boil is that after giving such unsatisfactory service, notice has been given by the bus manager to the business manager of the TAR HEEL that the price for carrying TAR HEEL copy will be almost doubled. And we are helpless.

Surely the bus commission will have to do something before long to kill the monopoly and bring back competition.

The Philological Club held its last meeting of the year in the Parish House of the Episcopal Church on Tuesday night, May 11. Professor Adams, of the Spanish Department, presented a paper on "Some Notes on the Romantic Drama in Spain in the Nineteenth Century," and Professor H. D. Learned, of the department of French, talked on "A Critical List of Old French Loanwords in English to 1400".

At this meeting the following officers were elected to serve the club next year: E. C. P. Metenthin, president; G. L. Paine, vice-president; S. A. Stouemire, secretary; W. B. Sanders, treasurer.

OPEN FORUM

Dear Sir:—
A word or so with reference to an Editorial appearing in the May issue of the magazine, Out of the Mouths of Babies was a most remarkable and finished bit of criticism. The caption, indeed, is a true inspiration. Out of the Mouths of Babies! Was ever anything more appropriate?

Its author we assume to be an undergraduate; if our assumption is correct, he is certainly a chappy of very unusual perception and critical insight. His endeavor to designate and correct such detrimental influence as arises from the negative presence, on our Jacobin Campus, of a shallow and fraudulent scholar whose attainments, though widely recognized, consist merely in his having achieved a distinguished position in his chosen field, is highly to be recommended. Noble effort!

Although misinterpretation as to the identity of our youthful prodigy's subject is hardly conceivable, we have been at pains to ascertain on good authority a verification of our surmise. It would appear, that the Editorial is justified by observation extending over a period of nine months. Through co-incidence we also have been in intimate association with the esteemed author's target for diatribe, though it has hardly required a period so extensive as his to enable us to formulate a very definitely antithetical opinion.

The Editorial is an expression of a sentiment which is not solely confined to an individual, but rather to a small group of blantly presumptuous students who go about the campus with a bland assurance that they are qualified to pronounce anathema upon those instructors who do not teach them what they had expected to be taught, in other words, what they already knew when they entered the University.

Though we do not like to throw bricks, since that manner appears to be in vogue in this section, we must make an effort to conform. Such crass criticism of a gentleman whose distinction is of unquestionable mark, whose influence among us has always been salutary in the highest degree, and whose position in the faculty of the University of North Carolina was a significant factor to many who have selected this university, is, to say the least, unbecoming, ungentlemanly, and, in the prevailing vernacular, ROTTEN—in view of its source.

EDITOR OF TAR HEEL:

I wish to voice my sincerest disapproval of the obscene initiation held Thursday afternoon by the Tau Kappa Alpha fraternity.

I believe that when a fraternity, which is supposed to be made up of leaders and men of character, drop to the depths of public obscenity in order to be spectacular that the purpose of the organization is usurped and that the men who direct its destinies are not worthy of being called leaders of our campus.

I chanced to pass Vance dormitory Thursday evening and through curiosity joined a crowd gathered there listening to comically dressed individuals tell dirty jokes. I am not one who fails to appreciate a good joke, but when it becomes necessary for the speaker to cease speaking in order to let some ladies get out of hearing distance I am both mortified and embarrassed. Imagine the ladies' feelings as a cowardly silence awaits her passing!

Although the listeners apparently enjoyed the jokes and gave the neophytes encouragement, I am sure that had the mother or sister of a single one of these individuals been present that he would have left the scene. Because the listeners encouraged the act is no proof that the initiation met with their approval, in fact I talked with several who lamented the degeneracy shown.

I am not criticizing public initiations, but I do object to such spectacles as I chanced to witness Thursday. I am sorry that I was among the group of listeners, but I am doubly glad that I heard only the last two jokes and that I recognized none of my friends in the bunch of curious ones.

I believe that an organization supposedly composed of leaders does not have to resort to such means in order to become known to the campus. I have noticed numerous public initiations on the campus this spring. It seems to be the vogue to do something suggestive or obscene. I believe that such action detracts from the dignity intended for that group to uphold, and if the men who are asked to do these deeds are men of conscience, I believe that they will "bump" the organization rather than sacrifice their own self-respect.

NETMEN ENTERED IN ATLANTA MEET

Southern Conference Tennis Tournament Began Yesterday.

Team Is Considerably Weaker Than Last Year's Aggregation.

The Tar Heel Racketmen journeyed down to Atlanta Wednesday night to take part in the Southern Conference Tennis Tournament being held there yesterday and today. The various colleges that sent teams to the tournament are Georgia Tech, Tulane, University of North Carolina, Washington and Lee, University of Mississippi, and the University of Florida. All these institutions have strong teams with very good players. Carolina entered the tournament with a clean slate as far as dual meets are concerned. The Tar Heels failed to cop any of the ribbons in the State meet held here.

Perhaps the strongest teams entered in the tournament are Tulane and Georgia Tech. Tulane has won the singles for the last four years and the doubles for the last two years. Murray, of Tulane has emerged victorious in the singles for four consecutive years; while Murray and Chamberlain, and Murray and O'Kelly in 1925 and 1924 respectively have won the doubles affair for their Alma Mater. Georgia Tech players have always given their opponents a run for their money before eliminated. Last year Grant forced Murray to go five long sets before he was finally eliminated. The sorrel-topped youngster should be there with flags flying this year and is being counted on to put up a vigorous fight. Georgia Tech annexed the singles championship five years ago but was forced to relinquish it to Tulane the following season.

Carolina was eliminated last year in the semi-finals of the tournament but hopes to annex the title this year. In 1923 a doubles team composed of Cox and Jernigan brought top honors back to the Old North State from Atlanta. Captain "Hap" Whitaker will go into the tournament favored to win. Hap has a wonderful service combined with a fast drive and all-round excellent court game. Duncan Elgin has the advantage of being left-handed and has his opponent at his disadvantage because of the awkwardness of playing a south-paw. Dalrymple and Geddie have been turning in wins for the Tar Heels consistently this season and will give somebody a hard scrap before going down in defeat.

DEBATING TEAM HAS RETURNED FROM TRIP

Team Composed of Young and Greenwood Lost to Tulane But Won a Decision Over Emory.

Carolina's negative debating team composed of M. M. Young, Durham, and R. H. Greenwood, Asheville, returned from their Southern trip last Thursday after winning unanimously from Emory at Atlanta, May 5 and losing on May 7 to Tulane at New Orleans in discussions of the query: Resolved, That the military forces of the United States should be co-ordinated into a department of National Defense, with sub-branches for the Army, Navy, and Air Forces.

Opposing them in the Emory debate were J. Q. Maxwell, by far the best debater appearing against Carolina this year, and M. A. Sellers. The feature of this debate was the continued cracking of jokes on the part of Carolina, which was brought on by the inconsistent argument that Emory presented. This joking of their opponents by Carolina seemed to please the audience and was instrumental, no doubt, in winning the decision. Judges in the debate were Senator Hoke Smith, Congressman William S. Howard, and Mr. Rueben Arnold. At Tulane the Carolina negative team was defeated by the decision 2 to 1 by Elmer Arndt and Samuel Goodman. The affirmative although inconsistent in its argument of separation, came back strong in the rebuttal.

R. H. Greenwood, debating for his first time, made a splendid showing on the trip.

The Carolina debaters were royally entertained at New Orleans by Prof. Bost of the Department of Chemistry of Tulane, a University of North Carolina alumnus, and George M. Segel, Tulane student, who is remembered here as having debated Carolina last year.

Literary and other fraternities whose men are mostly unknown to the campus are excused for holding public initiations, but when leaders are forced to humiliate themselves in order to make their club spectacular, they cease to be leaders but one of the common herd of popularity seekers.

I shall appreciate your publishing this letter in the Open Forum of the TAR HEEL.

TAR BABIES DEFEAT DUKE YEARLINGS 6-3

Heavy Hitting Combined with Ellison's Masterly Pitching Spelled Disaster for Visitors.

Displaying the same snappy brand of ball that brought them five victories out of six games last week, the Carolina freshmen celebrated their return to their own back yard by trouncing the Duke yearlings 6 to 3. This victory gave the Tar Babies the season's series two games to one.

The Tar Babies scored first in the third inning. Furches opened this round with a one base rap to center; then, with the hit and run on, Beam singled to right and Furches raced to third. Ellison hit a slow tap to the infield and Furches was run down between third and home; Beam reached third and Ellison second on the play. After Foard had gone out to third, Satterfield scored both runners with a single to center field. Five hits and two infield outs added three more runs to the Tar Babies' total in the fourth. The final counter came in the seventh round as the result of an error plus two safe hits.

The Duke frosh scored their first marker in the fourth; when, with two out, Adams doubled to left and scored when Furches misjudged Crabtree's long fly to left-center. Their other run came in the seventh when Ellison weakened for a moment and allowed the visitors to bunch two hits with a base on balls, and a hit batsman, to produce two runs. This ended the Duke scoring for the day.

MOVEMENT TO START RELIGIOUS SCHOOL ON

Council of Religious Workers Sends Petition to Secretary of State to Found School of Religion.

The last meeting of the year of the Religious Workers Council, held last Tuesday night in the social rooms of the Methodist Church was occupied with important announcements and discussions of plans for the religious work on the campus for the approaching summer school next year.

A petition for a charter for the establishment of a "School of Religion" at the University has been drawn up for presentation to the Secretary of State, it was announced by Mr. Patten. He stated that many of the Carolina Alumni in the state are showing increased interest in the founding of the school for next year, and that their support of the program is assured.

The purpose of this school will be to provide non-denominational Bible instruction for any students in the University desiring the course. It is the intention of the Council to open the school next fall, providing a man of high attainments in scholarship and religion can be found to accept the headship by that time. The University will be asked to give course credits for courses in the school properly completed.

The proposal charter provides for a board of directors composed of representatives from the churches of Chapel Hill, the University Y. M. C. A., and from any other religious group in the state that wishes to participate.

Mr. Comer announced that a course in Bible study would be given by Rev. Mr. Lawrence during the first half of the approaching summer school, for the benefit of those teachers who are called up back in home communities to teach Sunday School classes, lead Bible discussion groups, or conduct other religious activities. Already inquiries have been received from a number of prospective students regarding the course, and many have signified their intention to take the course.

A plan is under way to provide a minister for the Union Services during the second half of the summer school, while most of the local ministers will be taking their annual vacation period. It was stated that Dr. Potent, of Wake Forest, has agreed to take two Sundays, and possibly three, during this period. Daily vespers will be held in Gerrard Hall during the summer school, as heretofore.
