

FENCING CLUB HOLDS MEETING

Practice To Start Immediately In Tin Can.

Last Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock the newly organized Fencing club of the University held its first meeting on the second floor of the Y. M. C. A. building. Hinkey Hendlin, one of the sponsors of the movement, gave a short talk in which he discussed the work of this organization.

Practice is to start immediately in the Tin Can and Hendlin will be there to instruct the new members every afternoon from four to six o'clock. As soon as the fundamentals are learned, the club will hold an elimination contest to decide the personnel of the fencing team. All members, Freshmen included, are eligible for this year's team and it is hoped that all men will turn out every day for the practices so that a team may soon be picked and start practicing for the coming matches that will be arranged with other teams.

The sponsors are hoping that the Athletic board will recognize fencing as a minor sport and award letters to the men making the team.

Those present at the last meeting were: Kapp, Hodges, Schneider, Evans, C. O. Wardlaw, Fred C. Wardlaw, Fleming, Kenyon, Estep, Meyerson, Glickman, Hatem, Zappa, Oliver, Long, Layton, Thomas, Spearman, Hendlin, Colburn, and Levings.

V. P. I. TICKETS ON SALE

Tickets for the V. P. I.-Carolina football game go on sale to the public today at Greensboro, Raleigh, Winston-Salem, and Durham, according to a statement from Mr. Woollen's office.

GRADUATE WITH TEAM

C. T. Woollen, graduate manager of athletics, received a wire Thursday morning from Dr. Joel Whitaker, who played on the University's 1905 team which beat Virginia, to the effect that he would be with the team at Harvard.

TAR HEELS RENEW ANCIENT RIVALRY

University Eleven Meets V. P. I. First Time in Fifteen Years.

One of the South's most ancient and bitterly contested grid rivalries will be reborn next Saturday when the University of North Carolina's big blue team meets the V. P. I. Gobblers in Kenan Memorial Stadium here.

The two rivals have not met on the gridiron since 1913, but the prospects are that they will battle with all the intensity that characterized their struggles fifteen years ago. The teams met 16 times over an eighteen year period between 1896 and 1913, playing an annual game except in 1899 and 1901 when there were vacant dates.

Five times during that time the battles resulted in scoreless ties, and the Gobblers and Tar Heels divided the spoils. More often, however, the Techmen from the Old Dominion emerged with the big end of the bargain. Statistics show that the Gobblers won nine games, while the Tar Heels won just two.

The scoreless deadlocks came in 1893, 1900, 1902, 1906, and 1911. Three of the first six games were knotted that way, and V. P. I. won the others. North Carolina's first victory came in 1904 when Hunter Carpenter, later an All-American half at V. P. I., was a star for the Tar Heels. One year later Carpenter led the Gobblers to a 35 and 6 victory. The Gobblers won the last meeting on record by a 14 to 7 score in 1913.

This season finds the two old rivals boasting strong teams, and the tide of victory may swing either way. The Gobblers boast their fast moving backs in Peake, Tomko, and Rule, while the Tar Heels pin their faith on such stars as Captain Harry Schwartz, Shuler, Farris, and Sapp in the line, and upon Ward, Whisnant, Maus, Foard, Gresham, and others in the backfield. The game carries much significance in the Southern Conference race.

Carolina's next game will be with Georgia Tech in Kenan Stadium here the next Saturday, October 27, when an attendance of some 30,000 is expected.

HEEL FROSH TO MEET PRINCETON

Tar Babies Play Young Tigers This Afternoon at Princeton.

The University of North Carolina Freshmen, another Carolina football squad to meet "Big Three" opponents this week, left here yesterday afternoon to meet the Princeton yearlings at Princeton, N. J., this afternoon. The Tar Heel varsity meets Harvard's Crimson at the same time.

The Tar Babies, twenty-six strong and accompanied by manager and coaches, will arrive in Tigerland early today and get several hours' rest before they meet the Princeton Frosh in a 1:30 game that serves as preliminary to the Princeton-Virginia varsity struggle on Palmer Field.

This game marks the second contest for the North Carolina yearlings. The Tar Babies opened their five-game schedule last weekend with a 6 to 0 victory over the Duke Freshmen. The weaknesses seen in the game have been strengthened, and Coaches Enright and Pritchard took a strong club to Princeton.

Other players on the trip are Miles and Morris, ends; Bnchan and Rose, tackles; Hutchinson and Rosenfeld, guards; Belton and Owen, backs; Moore, quarterback; Chetty, Remsen, Frazier and Yost, halfbacks; and Estes and McAllister, fullbacks. Coaches Enright and Pritchard and Manager Bowman Gray accompanied the squad.

Snake Bites Fall Baseball Player

Baseball has other hazards than the bean ball and the spiked leg. The snake bite is the newest baseball injury, it seems.

During a fall practice baseball game at the University this week, Henry M. Sinclair, 20-year old outfielder from Winter Haven, Fla., was bit by a small brown spotted snake when he left the outfield to retrieve a home run.

Henry Satterfield, shortstop, swatted a ball way over the head of Sinclair and into the forest. Sinclair found it laying in a bunch of leaves. As he stooped to get it, the small snake lifted itself from the mass and bit the outfielder on the middle finger of his right hand.

Sinclair returned to his post in left field but soon came in complaining of a sick and dizzy feeling. Coach Ashmore ordered the wound opened, Sinclair sucked the poison from the finger and was rushed to the Infirmary, where the wound was cauterized. The bite did not prove serious, and Sinclair expects to resume practice in a few days.

Tar Heels Seek Intersectional Glory

best opening game in the three years that Horween has been in charge as head coach. In fact it showed enough promise to warrant the hope that the Crimson is at last on the way to lift itself out of the ruck and resume the high position it held before the war.

Indications are that neither team has the line it boasted in years past. Both lost heavily by graduation. Both have several youngsters filling holes made vacant by the loss of veterans. Both were pinning their hopes on the ability of these youngsters to come through. However, Harvard is reported as having a heavy line. In the line the outstanding men are Tim Forrester, 6 feet, 5 inches in height and 210 pounds in weight; Red Barrett and Foster Davis, tackles; Cunningham, Parkinson, Trainer, Shaw, Warner, and Bill Ticknor, guards; and Ben Ticknor, Bigelow, Gildea, Richards, and Dorman, centers. Little concern is shown over the center of the Crimson line, but the tackle positions are worrying the coaches a bit. The Harvard coaches have half a dozen or more men out for the flank positions. From Pickard, Douglas, Burns, Prior, O'Connell, Baldwin, Harding, and Odgen. Coach Horween expects to pick his wingmen.

When one mentions the backs at Harvard, Coach Horween is apt to smile, for he has enough material to make even "Gloomy Gil" Dobie smile. With Captain Art French, Dave Guatnaccia, Wallace Harper, Tom Mason, Eliot Putnam, and Joe Potter, all veterans, available for service again and such good-looking sophomores as Tom Gilligan, Batchelder, Huguley, Sumner, Putnam, Graves, and Greeley also in running, Harvard has its finest collection of backs since Horween took over the reins of the Massachusetts institution.

The Carolina coaches are also pinning their hopes on the finest collection of backs that the Carolina institution has ever known. Never before has a Carolina mentor had such men as Ward, Spaulding, Foard, Whisnant, Gresham, Nash, Maus, Magner, Michaels, Wyrick, Erickson, Jackson, House, Harden, and others to call on to step in and fill a breach. Some of these men have experience while others are playing collegiate football for the first time. But they all show promise and they are the best collection that a Tar Heel coach has ever had.

The line is not weak, but it lacks the power that former Carolina lines boasted. In Captain Harry Schwartz, Sapp, Holt, Presson, Howard, Farris, Adkins, Blackwood, Shuler, Hudson, Eskew, and Lipscomb, Coach Collins has a fine looking group of men. Perhaps Captain Harry Schwartz is the greatest center ever to don a Carolina uniform. When he is flanked by either Shuler and Blackwood, or Hudson and Eskew, the Heels have strength in the center of the line that will compare with that of any team. The rest of the line is not as strong in reserve strength, but has power in the first line-up.

Send the TAR HEEL home.

BOXERS BEGIN FALL PRACTICE

Butler, 1927 Captain, Coaching Pugilists In Absence of Rowe.

The boxing squad, about forty strong, for the past week has been working out daily at the Tin Can at 4 o'clock in the afternoon under the direction of Ed Butler, Southern amateur middleweight champion and captain of last year's team, who is in charge during the absence of Coach Crayton Rowe. The men thus far have been going through light training paces, but on Monday the work will get underway in full swing.

Captain Charlie Brown is already showing the same aggressiveness as heretofore and is expected to be a very valuable man this season. Vaughn, freshman bantamweight of last year, is showing up well. There are also several other promising looking candidates out for the daily workouts. Sapp and Donnahoe are now with the football squad but will more than likely be back again with the boxers this winter.

Acting Coach Butler expressed the wish that all men in any way interested in boxing or in learning the art of self-defense would report Monday afternoon to the Tin Can at 4 o'clock since no weight has been definitely won by any of the men now out.
