The third number of the Carolina Play Book of the Carolina Playmakers and the Carolina Dramatic Association falls below the standard of quality set in the two preceding numbers. The book is published at the University four times a year and is edited by Frederick Koch, director of the Playmakers.

The news element prevails throughout the current issue, and there is a scarcity of dramatic material. The only article relating to a discussion of drama is Montrose J. Moses' Shakespeare A La Mode and Mood. The author describes the endeavors of the numerous producers to interpret Shakespeare in every possible manner and to tend toward a renovation of his plays. He tells of the battle being waged between our mode and Shakespeare's mood. As a whole the article is delightful reading.

Our Carolina Stage, the first section in the book, is solely news matter. There is a story of the tenth anniversary of the Playmakers, an announcement stating that Miss Marjorie Morris has been appointed State Representative of the Bureau of Community Drama, a story of the Hopi Indians visiting Carolina, a paragraph telling that Lighted Candles is presented later in the issue, and an article on Ellen Terry's death.

An article by J. Brooks Atkinson, dramatic critic of the New York Times, is reprinted from the Times. The piece tells of the Little Theatre Movement in the South and the work of the Carolina Playmakers. Mr. Atkinson stresses the work of Koch, Heffner, Selden, and Green, all of the University faculty.

The following article, The Bureau of Community Drama, is an account of the activities and services of the Bureau which are available to all schools, colleges and communities throughout this state.

The Play Book presents Lighted Candles, a play by Margaret Bland, formerly of the Playmakers. Miss Bland has written a number of plays which have received favorable comment. Lighted Candles was produced by the Playmakers in February of this year.

There are a number of tailpieces placed at the end of the articles which add to the make-up of the book. A lesser amount of the news element and more articles pertaining to the drama would have added interest to the publication.

Whitley Is Elected President Of Laws

Philip R. Whitley, of Wendell, was elected vice-president of the third year law class at a meeting held last week. The election was held to fill a vacancy caused when the vice-president, elected last spring, failed to return to school.

The officers of the third year class are automatically the officers of the Law Club Association, the organization composed of members of the entire school. It is the Law Club Association which sponsors the speeches made by prominent attorneys of the state in an effort to bring the student into closer relation with the actual practice of the profession.

Whitley will become president of the Association in January when R. T. Giles, who is now president, will graduate.

DI SENATE PLANS DEBATE

President Fox of the Dialectic senate announces that the two teams to represent the Senate in the Sophomore debates will be chosen Tuesday night immediately after the regular meeting of the Senate. There will be one team of two sophomores and one team of two juniors. The query is: Resolved: That the only effective attitude toward war is an uncompromising pacifism. The Di sophomores have the affirmative side of the query, while the juniors have the negative.

"Y" Man Leads Chapel Devotion Thursday

Thursday morning the chapel devotional exercises were led by Mr. Aubrey Perkins, a graduate of the University. He urged the students here to consider the serious things of life.

On the same morning Professor N. O. Kennedy of the music department gave a short talk on the theme and variations of a selection from Mendelssohn. Which was played by T. H. Barker, a sophomore in the music department.

Duke Gets Humor Magazine
DURHAM, N. C., Nov. 2.—As other colleges are considering dropping humor magazines from the list of their publications, a very determined effort is being made by students of Duke University to issue a new humor magazine styled "The Duchess."

The first issue which will be distributed Thanksgiving will have an initial circulation of two thousand and will have thirty-two pages.

Press Bureau for U. of Denver

DENVER, Colo., Nov. 2.—The University of Denver has installed a modern publicity and press bureau to further the program of the University. The News Letter will carry illustrated issues occasionally.

Pen Points

By H. J. Galland

And here is where we Raleigh round and see a good fight, and let us hope a winning one.

The March of Progress
Seven planes brought football fans to the Tech game last Saturday, including one large six-passenger Fokker. Arrangements were made for landing at the Chapel Hill Airport. We are not sure if this is the first time such means of transportation to football games has been used, but certainly it is the first time in the South. We're right up with the times. Someone ought to point out to Colonel Lindbergh, who seems interested in such matters, that U.N.C. has been air-minded for some time. Take, for instance, our flying tackles in the vicinity of Kenan Stadium, the flights of fancy of some of our campus writers, and the air-pockets, generally hot, into which we sometimes get in the classes of some profs.

We Step Out
The new dress of the Tar Heel has occasioned some favorable comment. Scareheads are not always necessary, nor are they used, but a change in the type of heads does, and has, improved the paper. The chief effect of the innovation, however, is not in the appearance so much as in the interest aroused on the campus. The time seems ripe for a discussion of the proposed change of this paper from a tri-weekly to a daily, as set forth in an editorial on this page. A Saturday literary supplement would augment the general usefulness of the paper and take care of the Magazine, which at present needs some reviving influence. The addition of national as well as local news to the columns of the campus journal should prove of incalculable benefit. It is all a question of student interest. If there is a desire on the campus for a really worth-while paper, on a par with the best produced by the big Universities of the country, then the effort will be made to put out that kind of a representative college journal for this University. But nothing can be done without student backing, and that comes only through student interest.

The Big Story
"Playmakers," said a Tar Heel headline, "Come Into Great National Prominence." Many a Broadway producer would give his right hand for such a laudatory comment in any paper. But the Playmakers, through Professor Koch, believe in playing safe, and so the perhappes, and buts, and maybes, were added. All of which evidences enthusiasm for a home institution, somewhat unusual on the campus, and commendable care and regard for the truth on the part of the Theatre. Congratulations all 'round seem in order. And it was, incidentally, a good story, no whit spoiled by the subsequent development.

Kindly Notice
A benevolent sign in the Library reads, "Students and scholars are requested not to take these pamphlets from the room." The distinction between student and scholar so carefully made should please all parties. The difference seems to be that a scholar wears a pair of horn-rimmed glasses, whereas the student wears a blank expression. Ask any Graduate Stud—excuse, please—any Graduate Scholar if such is not the case.
Hallelujah, We Must Be Bums
Not so long ago three members of the Salvation Army appeared in Chapel Hill on a Saturday night and held a meeting right out on Franklin Street in the very stronghold of the Devil. The point of the matter is that they have not again appeared. We are wondering whether enough of us were saved to make a return unnecessary, whether there was found to be no need for salvation among students in the first place, or whether we are too hopeless to bother again. Brethren, examine thyself for the answer. Personally, we'll be at the game.

College Comics
The latest issue of the Buccanear failed to excite any members of the faculty. Dean Hibbard observed but kept his peace, and the columns of the Campus Mind remained unused and printed on the usual paper, instead of an asbestos substitute. Editor Perry seems to have gotten out a "hot" issue, but the world continues to revolve in its accustomed orbit. The only appreciable stir was at the window of the Post Office on the day of publication, when a long line formed to send the magazines to—well, where it would do the most good, and let her know one was thinking of her.

Our suggestion is that a nice, quiet, clean issue be made up, and the resultant furor from indignant subscribers be made the contents of the succeeding issue.

Correction
It is understood that Grady Pritchard had nothing to do with the staging of the mob scene in the Playmaker Production of "Enemy of the People."

William and Mary Frosh Suffer
WILLIAMSBURG, Va., Nov. 3.—The 236th Supreme Court for the prosecution of the Freshmen of William and Mary college sat in session yesterday for the administration of justice to offenders among the incoming class. None of the criminally charged were given more than one hundred lashes.

Serenades Unlawful If Old Laws Are Upheld

The two talked and talked. Finally the old grad's eyes filled with tears as the student told him what awfully vile liquor was being delivered into Chapel Hill today.
"I must go back, I must go back," he sobbed. "I owe it to the boys. I'll move my speakeasy right down to Chapel Hill and start an open house day of free drinks."

So the student came back to the Hill, hired a good room on main street made other arrangements, spread the glad tidings among the boys, and was on the verge of wiring the Bostonian alumnus to come on with his speakeasy, when a law-student friend of his told him about this dastardly five mile law.

Sorrowfully he sent the telegram saying that the place would have to be located five miles from the University. The blow was too much. The Boston boot-legger alumnus, realizing that his last chance to do good for his alma mater was gone, died a broken-hearted man.

University Meets English Woven in Co-ed Debate

Dr. George McKie who visited at the British colleges in 1925-26, are very informal in speech, and do not hesitate to overlap the speeches of their colleagues. They are generally maturer than the American debaters and by the time they reach this country they have successfully defended their convictions dozens of times, and consequently are able to play with their opponents, injecting considerable wit into the discussion at the expense of the other side.

The same system of judging the contest as that introduced here last year will be tried again this fall. Every one that intends to follow the entire course of the debate will be asked at the beginning of the evening to check his conviction on the subject to be discussed on a ballot of one color. Following the conclusion of the argument a ballot of another color will be given those who voted the first time, and they will be asked to register their opinions again in an endeavor to see which team changed the minds of the greatest number of persons.

Both Teams Veteran Groups

ville Dramatic Society.
Miss Margery M. Sharp, A.B., of Bedford College, London University was graduated from that institution last spring, and is only twenty-three years of age, despite having at various times dropped her education to follow journalism and business. While in college she was secretary of the University Union Society, a member of the Union Committee, an associate editor of New Troy and The Granta, and her college magazine, as well as active in dramatics. Nine years of her early life were spent at Malta.
Holds Scholarship

The third member of the group is the great grand niece of the distinguished son-in-law and biographer of Sir Walter Scott. Her father is Capt. Murray Lockhart, R. N. When she was only seven years old Miss Leonora W. Lockhart was taken by her father to the great veldt of Africa. At Queens College her excellence in History won for her a scholarship to Girton College, Cambridge University. She is a senior this year at Girton College and an active member of the Debating club. Miss Lockhart also has taken part in numerous dramatic performances. She will be graduated in June when she is twenty-two years of age.

Williams Experienced
Of the Carolina team Williams has had the most forensic experience. Last year he was a member of the teams that defeated Emory University and the University of Alabama. He is also interested in the Dialectic Senate. Williams is a junior and a member of Tau, Kappa Alpha, a national honorary fraternity.
Whitley, the second member of the team, has never debated here before, but was an active member of the Debate squad last year. However, in high school debating he represented his school several times in state-wide triangular contests.

Albright, the other Tar Heel man, is entering his first collegiate debate, but is an able speaker. He, also, has

Dares Fate for Favorite Pipe Tobacco

Darby, Pa., November 12, 1926.
Larus & Bro. Co., Richmond, Va. Gentlemen:

I have a mania for crawling through a number of unexplored caverns between the towns of Woodstock and Mt. Jackson in the Shenandoah Valley. One cave was exceedingly dangerous with its tight passages, etc. I spent three hours in this cavity, groping blindly with a "dead" flashlight and a severed guiding string.

To cut my story short, I was finally rescued by a searching party after a terrible experience. It was a wonderful feeling as I sat at the mouth of the cavern telling my friends that I would not go back in there for love nor money. I meant it—until I reached for my can of Edgeworth. It was gone, and I recalled dropping something during the excitement in the cave.

It is queer what a man will do when his favorite tobacco is concerned. I realized that without my tobacco it would be as bad as being lost in the cavity—so I crawled back. It was a grand and glorious feeling as my hand came in contact with the Aristocrat of Tobacco.

Yours very truly,
Joseph P. Fink, Jr.
