PARAGRAPHS

These "Twelfth Night" revels to be flung by the Playmakers tonight must be a sequel to the old "Ten Nights in a Barroom." But still we wonder what happened to the eleventh night?

At last we discover an advantage State College has over the University:—its students were given a holiday yesterday in honor of Gardner's inauguration.

Clara Bow's "Three Week-ends" might explain to Dean Bradshaw even better than his survey why freshmen leave the campus on Fridays.

In the view of the operatic orgy in Greensboro next week, the TAR HEEL would like to explain that "The Demon Barber of Fleet Street," to be read Sunday night by Professor Russell Potter, is not a dime-novel rendition of "The Barber of Seville."

The recent visit of the Arkansas lawmakers to the University was most encouraging—they appeared to have legislated away all traces of the parent monkey. Another instance of the power of the law.

If these Virginia officers start investigating student drinking too closely and too thoroughly, they will probably see double the actual amount of drinking.

A Sunday Morning Treat

All the comforts of home and the luxuries of the leisure class may soon be within the reach of the average student if the proposed plan for a daily TAR HEEL is worked out. Not only will the news of the campus and town be delivered to the door five times per week, but even Sunday morning will have its paper.

Think of the joy of waking up on Sunday morning after the Saturday night before and being able to amble to the door and retrieve a Sunday edition of the college newspaper, then to crawl back beneath the covers and read all the happenings of the week-end (which one so easily forgets under certain circumstances), all the announcements of things to come, and a summary of student opinion on anything of moment.

The only thing then lacking for the complete realization of a home-sweet-home Sunday morning is the breakfast. And that lack may be remedied by laying in a supply of edibles the night before, so that when one's starry eyes first open upon the morning, one may luxurate with Hershey bars to fill the physical needs and that Sunday morning TAR HEEL to satisfy all mental yearnings. Or, if the food supply is running low, there will always remain the alternative of making a goat of oneself and letting the daily TAR HEEL minister to the physical as well as the mental necessities of the moment. Luxury? Yea, verily!

The Hello

Habit

Habits—be they good or bad—are formed easily enough; but, unfortunately, they do not seem to be passed on from one generation to another as are some characteristics. A few years ago it was a universal habit here for one student to give a word of greeting to another as he passed him on the campus. Today that custom, like many others, is observed as fully in the breach as in the keeping.

Of course with a student body nearing three thousand in number, it is an impossibility for one man to become acquainted with any large percentage of the total. But each individual can at least recognize the kindred bond that connects him with his fellow University student by that good old habit of the friendly "hello."

Such efforts to revive the old spirit as the "Speak-Greet-Meet-Week" campaign put on a year or two ago cannot prove successful unless the feeling of friendliness exists on the campus. To shake hands with the man on your right and introduce yourself to the man on your left one day in the year may be actuated by the proper motive, but it is only a futile gesture unless the wish to be friendly is a continuous feeling within the campus body.

One of the advantages possessed by smaller colleges such as Davidson is the abundance of friendliness evidenced in the relation of the students to themselves and to visitors. A "hello" is the perfectly natural reaction to a meeting. It is a part of the general good will prevalent, it is an indication of the spirit of the school. For in some subtle manner is the "school spirit" of an institution made up of the attitudes, the relations, and the sentiments of its campus. "Hello" is a short and simple word, but its implications are manifold, its significance profound, and its results far-reaching.

CLIPPED

A BRIGHT IDEA

Plans for bigger and better football teams at the University of Washington seem to be definitely under way, with an announcement from the Women's Federation that University women may soon be recruited to "sell" Washington to prospective grid stars.

Heretofore the business of bringing home the much sought after football bacon has been in the hands of the athletically-minded male supporters of the University. According to reliable authorities, this business has suffered a considerable relapse during the past few years.

It was for the canny graduate manager to hit upon a long-neglected and potentially powerful sales force to bolster up the flow of football material to Washington. One co-ed can do more with a big high school touch-down man than two alumni, three bearded sophomores and one assistant coach. Only no one had ever thought of that before.

And so very likely the co-eds will be armed with well-organized lines and sent out on the trail of the grid wonders.

Go get 'em, girls.—Univ. of Washington Daily.

Swimming Pool and Stadium Excavated

Vienna—(IP)—A marble swimming pool and stadium, built by an Ephesian citizen, Publius Veditus Antoninus, central heating plant supposedly built by the same man and a basilica constructed by the Byzantine Emperor Justinian as Empress Theodora in honor of John Theologus, have been discovered by excavations in Asia Minor by the Austrian Archeological Society and Rockefeller Foundation experts. The relics have been placed in the museum at Smyrna, in all cases where they were movable.

Mereley Meandering

by John Mebane

Modestly, we offer suggestions for a revised curriculum. And if the University sees fit to adopt any of it, then we can strut about the campus and throw our out chest. We really don't need it anyway. Our suggestions follow:

PETTING 1.—This course will deal with technique placing special stress upon approach in her home, street cars, and theatres. Pre-requisite for Petting 2. 7 days a week.

PETTING 2.—An advanced course in the art of necking. A laboratory course. Experiments will be carried on. Special stress is laid upon the huddle system. Outside work required. 7 days a week. Pre-requisite, Petting 1. Lab. fee $1.48. This includes payment for lipstick, hair grease, etc.

PETTING 3.—A course for graduates. Extensive study of love-making. Romanticism in the eighties. The Victorian methods. How to propose. Why marry? 7 days a week.

PETTING 4.—A special course for novices. History of petting. The modern generation. The approach. Lab. fee, $3.98, covers admission to theatre once a week. 7 days a week.

ETIQUETTE 1.—A course in human behavior as she should be learned. This course deals with the etiquette of drinking, how to open automobile doors, and why wear a hat. Laboratory fee, $1.50. 5 days a week.

ETIQUETTE 2.—This course gives a forecast of what the well-dressed woman will bare. 5 days a week.

ETIQUETTE 3.—How to handle knockers; why wear shoes; the art of returning socks. 5 days a week.

MODERNISM 1.—A composition course. How to obscure a thought in an incomprehensible entanglement of syllables; how to hide your light under a bushel; how to get the bushel. 5 days a week.

MODERNISM 2.—Advanced composition. How to appreciate and imitate Gertrude Stein, E. E. Cummings, Ezra Pound, Eugene Jolas. How to appreciate the modernistic trend of thought. 5 days a week.

MODERNISM 3.—A course in art. Modernistic tendencies in art. How to draw a picture of an ostrich overturning a bottle of milk. Marketing your drawings. 5 days a week.

PORNOGRAPHY 1.—A course in the short story. How to work the sex interest into the plot; how to get a woman into an entanglement; how to remove her. 5 days a week.

PORNOGRAPHY 2.—A course in the writing of the novel. How to develop a New York setting; how to introduce subtly the licentious element into the story. 5 days a week.

ECCENTRICS 1.—How to wear a black tie improperly; how to carry a black parasol; how to cross a street absent-mindedly; how to assume a thoughtful appearance. 1 day a week.

Now that we have made our suggestions we will wait and hope.

You know, our little brother had the flu during Christmas, and we're Scotch, you see. So he wouldn't send for the doctor because he was afraid that he would take his temperature.

And when he took the fever, he sent down and had the furnace cut off.

Maybe that isn't exactly right.

But we had rather be red-headed than right!

You know, that's right.

And this is red-headed.

This column is dedicated to Juliet who made a roamer out of romeo.

The End.

Floating University Students Are Having A Big Time in Japan

According to radio despatches received in New York, a musical comedy, "Floating Around," has just been successfully presented by students of the Floating University before an audience of students of Doshisha University in Kyoto, Japan, who enjoyed it hugely. It is a burlesque on student life aboard the Floating University. The music and lyrics were written by two undergraduates, George Buzza, Jr., and Ayres Compton, who also directed its production. It has a cast of thirty, including an attractive chorus of singing and dancing girls. It is to be presented before various other student groups in Asia and in Europe.

A debating team has just been formed to debate with students of many lands on international problems. A dramatic club has already produced on shipboard an American play, and is now busy on one dealing with Oriental life. This group has been haunting the Japanese theatres, and scouring around for costumes and accessories in fascinating little Kyoto and Tokyo shops.

Spanish and French tables were organized almost as soon as the Dollar Liner, President Wilson, sailed from New York harbor on November 8th. At one table the wife of one of the professors, Mrs. Eunice Weaver, native South American, has been encouraging students, uncertain of their Spanish, to talk, and at another, Mrs. Russell Krauss, instructor in French, has been leading the French conversation.

En route to Japan there was a formal dance every Saturday night on shipboard and much informal dancing at meal times and evenings. Deck sports soon became very popular, and the swimming pool was much in demand. Between Panama and San Francisco were formed a small orchestra to play chamber music, and another to compete with the Chinese jazz orchestra on shipboard.

Having settled down for the past three weeks in Japan to study on shore, to make field trips, and to see the sights, the Floating University is once more on its way around the world. It will next visit China, the Philippines and the Straits Settlements, including Singapore, and will then proceed to Siam, India, Suez, Egypt, Asia Minor and Europe, returning to New York in June.

The experience of the present cruise makes it clear that the courses students like best and work most enthusiastically in, are those which closely relate what they see and do with what they learn from class, books, and field trips of observation and investigation in the countries they visit. All courses in the future will be planned on this basis and most of them will treat the world as a unit. International Relations, for instance, will illuminate the relations between nations all around the globe. Students in Sociology courses will compare sociological conditions in America, Hawaii, Japan, China, India, and elsewhere. Students of biology and geology have an almost continuous laboratory before their eyes. And so it goes. The Floating University is not a tourist cruise, but a university traveling, with the whole world its laboratory.

Asks Students for Written Criticism of Curriculum

Seattle, Wash.(IP)—The Student Council of the University of Washington has called for a written criticism of the university curriculum from all students, in an effort to aid in the revision of the university's courses.

Man may be a superior animal, but the others don't scheme to make their world foolproof.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Open Forum

HARKEN, O BUCCANEER CIRCULATORS!

To the Editor:

The last time that the Buccaneers were delivered, (that is thrown in the hall), some thief took about half of them from our floor. It's not the principle of the thing that we are concerned with, it is the Buccaneers we want. If this were the first time this thing had happened, it would not be quite so bad; it is getting habitual. Now what we would like to suggest is this: (we are constructive critics) that the person who delivers the Buccaneer condescend to put them under our doors. The time he would lose in this would be paid by efficient delivery. We feel sure that delivery would be increased by about at least 100 per cent.

We want our Buccaneers.

Let Me Introduce

by J. MARYON SAUNDERS
Alumni Secretary

Willis James Brogden

It was a complete surprise on January 1, 1926, when Governor McLean appointed Judge Willis J. Brogden Justice of the Supreme Court of North Carolina to fill the place left vacant by the resignation of Justice L. R. Varsler, for it was not known that this resignation and appointment were even being considered. It all happened so quickly that nobody had the opportunity to present Judge Brogden for the place. Governor McLean thought of no other man who could fill the place so well as Justice Brogden. The widespread approval of this appointment was reflected at the time in the words of Judge James S. Manning, who declared: "Since that time, more than two years of distinguished service on the bench of the Supreme Court of North Carolina which Justice Brogden has rendered this state has more than fulfilled the prediction of Judge Manning."

Speaking recently from his long observations and experience on the bench, Justice Brogden expressed the opinion that "I gravely doubt that the percentage of crime per capita has increased in the last 50 years."

During his senior year at the University, Judge Brogden, with Edward Kidder Graham as a colleague, won the first victory over the University of Georgia in intercollegiate debate. He graduated here with the class of 1898, being editor-in-chief of the Tar Heel that year.

After leaving the University, he became a teacher at the Raleigh Male Academy conducted by the late Professor Hugh Morson. Next he was principal of one of the Durham City schools, and later studied law at Trinity and also at the University. After receiving his license, he practised law in Durham, first in partnership with Col. S. C. Chambers and later with Victor S. Bryant. From 1920 until his appointment to the Supreme Court bench he practised in partnership with Jones Fuller, and F. L. Fuller, Jr.
