'FNJ, 25000 Mystery' Solved For Students By Announcement

By Mary Hill Gaston

Kitty Kelly, chairman of the War Coordination Board sponsoring the "Miss Victory" bond-selling contest to begin January 15, has cleared up the "Foolish Nobody's James" mystery causing considerable head-scratching on campus this week.

"Foolish Nobody's James" is the name of the Navy plane which, it is hoped, will be purchased by war bonds bought at Carolina during the drive.

For the past three days showers of mysterious slips of paper with "Foolish Nobody's James," "25000," and with pictures of planes on them, have been found all over the campus. The figures, Kitty revealed, stand for $25,000, the cost of the plane, and the goal in the drive.

A bond and stamp-selling booth will open at 8 o'clock Monday morning, January 15, in the "Y" and will remain open every weekday until 5 o'clock through February 14, when the drive will officially end. Plans call for the selection of the Carolina pin-up girl, the "Miss Victory" of the campus, through votes cast with stamp and bond purchases.

Every ten-cent stamp entitles the purchaser to one vote and in the case of war bonds, the maturity value will be the marker for the number of votes. Votes may be cast at the "Y" at the time of purchase or in the case of coeds, with dorm representatives who will sell stamps from room to room. Photographs of contestants for the "Miss Victory" title will be displayed in the "Y."

Every fraternity, sorority and dormitory on the campus, and the C.I.C.A. have been invited to participate in the contest by sponsoring a candidate for "Miss Victory." A fee of one dollar will be levied on each entry in the race. Deadline for entries is midnight tomorrow night. They should be submitted to Kitty Kelly at second floor Carr or to Dal Davis in Pettigrew before this time. A list of entries will be published in the next issue of the Tar Heel.

The winner in the contest will be honored at a mammoth "Miss Victory" dance Saturday night, February 17, in the gym. Freddie Johnson is expected to play for the dance and $1.00 in war stamps will be the admission charge. Coeds sponsored in the contest will make up the figure, which will feature the winner, "Miss Victory," and the two runners-up.

Servicemen are to buy their stamps and bonds at the "Y" booth, which will be staffed by coed volunteers. Coeds and civilians may buy theirs from dorm representatives or at the "Y." A booth will be set up in Navy Hall in the Pre-Flight area at least one afternoon a week for cadets to buy stamps and bonds and to vote for the contesting coeds.

In the "Y" a cardboard plane will be colored from day to day as bond purchases are made, to show how near the goal is being approached.

Three Fraternities Fined For Rushing Violations

Following a thorough investigation by the executive committee of the Interfraternity Council and the approval of the council, three Greek letter fraternities on the campus were fined for violations of the rushing rules during the past silence period.

The case brought against one fraternity concerned giving a freshman a ride from Chapel Hill to his home in South Carolina during Christmas holidays. The freshman, from the same home town as the fraternity man, was given a ride with no intention of rushing and fraternities were not mentioned during the trip. Members of two other fraternities rode in the car also, but they did not know the freshman until they were introduced as they entered the car. Neither did they realize that the boy was a freshman until they were well on their way. The executive committee fined the offending fraternity $20 and

Legislature Thrashes Out Council Bill

Speaker Hunt Blames Matter On Tar Heel

In a hot session, marked by misunderstandings, the Student Legislature passed, Thursday night, an amendment to the Student Council providing for the election of holdover members of the Student Council.

The amendment, brought forth by a misinterpretation of the original act, provides that in the case of disqualification from office of any member of the Student Council a holdover shall be elected by and from the group (civilians, V-12's, Marines, or ROTCs) that elected him.

Ed Gaither, chairman of the elections committee announced that all nominations for the current vacancy to be filled by a Marine—must be turned in to him before 6 p. m. Tuesday, at Iredell Hall. The new council member will replace Marine Tom Lane, who has left school.

During the course of the debate, Gaither, a V-12er, commented vehemently on what he thought to be unfair editorial practices by Charles Wickenburg, Tar Heel editor. Gaither explained that Wickenburg had used the editorial columns of last Saturday's Tar Heel for personal grudges. Speaker Doug Hunt also explained that the claim of the discovery of a flaw in the Elections Act by the Tar Heel was unfounded, and that in fact, Libba Wiggins, Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, had discovered the mistake, and had reported it to Wickenburg, who then telephoned to Hunt in Durham to straighten out the situation. Several members of the Legislature commented that the Tar Heel's headline was a mis-statement and a slap in the face of the Legislature.

At the next meeting, Thursday evening, the Legislature will discuss the bill providing for the setting up of a class organization for the students graduating in June.

Tar Heel Staff

There will be an important meeting of the Tar Heel staff Monday afternoon at five o'clock in the Roland Parker lounge of Graham Memorial.

YY Office Moved To Wolfe Lounge

Following the request for more office space for the Yackety Yack, the Graham Memorial Board of Directors at a meeting yesterday afternoon designated the Thomas Wolfe lounge at the north end of the building as office quarters.

The present Yack office was approved for use as a file room and studio for the Photography Service department which serves the three student publications: Tar Heel, Carolina Magazine, and Yackety Yack. The change, which has been under discussion for some time, will be effective for a period of two years.

Coed Senate Provides For New Council

Majority Votes To Pass Bill

On Tuesday night the Coed Senate passed by a 9-4 vote a bill organizing a personality council.

The provisions of the bill, as presented by the ways and means committee, were that a personality council should be set up in coordination with the Woman's Honor Council and the Dormitory House Councils, and that the council should function for one calendar year. At the end of that time the Senate will vote for continuance, dissolution, or transfer of the activity to some other organization within the Woman's Government.

During debate on the proposed council, Marian Gurney explained that "any girl who comes to Carolina as a student agrees to abide by its rules, and if she breaks her contract, there must be a reason for it. It is the Council's responsibility to find the source of her trouble or discontent."

The underlying principle of this council designed to correct a weakness of most woman's governments, is protection for the individual as well as for society. Thus its success will place our woman's government among the most progressive in any southern university.

The Speaker appointed a committee composed of Tharon Young, Pat Hughes, and Dixie Jean Bodge to study the dormitory house councils, and to make recommendations for improvements in the system.

The next meeting of the Coed Senate will be held Tuesday, January 16, at which time the various subsidiary organizations will present their yearly reports.

Presented to the Senate were three new members, Viola Hoyle and Ida Prince, Junior representatives, and Pat Hughes, senior, vice-president of the Woman's Government Association.

Hillel Group

Dr. Graham To Spend More Time In State

Will Retain WLB Position

Dr. Frank Graham, called to Washington two years ago to serve as a member of the War Labor Board, will spend most of his time from now on in this state. He expects to continue the practice of devoting most of his time to his duties as President of the Greater University of North Carolina.

Dr. Graham offered his resignation from WLB several weeks ago to President Roosevelt, who declined to accept it. However, the President and James F. Byrnes, Director of Economic Stabilization, understand Dr. Graham's wish to return to his duties here, and a plan has been worked out enabling him to spend more time in the State while carrying on part of his wartime duties in Washington.

At the request of the President, Dr. Graham is to retain WLB membership with the understanding that the Board will feel free to call on him when special cases come up and for consultation on labor policies.

Playmakers Annual Jubilee Performance Set For Tonight

With riotous entertainment, dancing and drinks on the house, the Playmaker Theatre opens tonight at 7:30 for the annual Playmaker jubilee, Twelfth Night Revels to which the public is invited.

Anything can happen from the minute the curtain rises on the swami, announcer, to the dance on the stage and wind-up with food for all in the famous Green Room.

One of the most spectacular features of the night is the unique entrance of a world famous Playmaker in an act which compares with nothing ever presented before on the Carolina stage.

A knife throwing act guaranteed to make the spine shiver will be presented if the brave subject succeeds in locating her insurance agent by noon today.

Beautiful dances and beautiful dancers take over the stage in a series of original musical numbers. A guest star who has appeared in many different roles throughout the country will be presented in a dramatic recital.

Take-offs on previous Playmaker shows of the year, other novel skits, and musical acts contribute to the spirit of revelry and celebration.

The Kitchen Scene from Shakespeare's Twelfth Night, traditionally presented by the faculty of the Drama Department promises to be better than ever. Cast in this scene (in which the participants end up more than slightly inebriated) are Sam Selden as Malvolio, Urban T. Holmes as Sir Toby Belch, Douglas Hume as Sir Andrew Aguecheek, Foster Fitz-Simons as Feste, and Lucille Culbert as Maria.

Other traditional highlights of the show are the introduction of the King and Queen of Revels, and the old Eng-
