Sunday Roundtable Program Announced

"Conscription — Prelude to Power Politics" will be the subject discussed on the Carolina Roundtable of the Air this Sunday.

This program, broadcast each Sunday afternoon at 1 o'clock over station WRAL, Raleigh, is produced by the department of Radio Arts of the University in cooperation with the International Relations club and the Southern Council on International Relations.

Dean Francis Bradshaw of the University faculty and Dr. Charles A. Ellwood, nationally known sociologist, will be the speakers on this week's Roundtable. Both men are well qualified to take part in such a program.

Dr. Ellwood taught sociology at the University of Missouri from 1900 to 1930 and at Duke University since 1930. He has served, for one year each, as president of the Sociology Society, the International Institute of Sociology and the International Congress of Sociologists. He has also written many books on the subject of sociology and religion.

During the past few months, Dr. Ellwood has made a series of addresses in all parts of the nation, opposing a postwar program of universal military service.

The other speaker of the Roundtable, Dean Bradshaw, is particularly well known to University students. He is now Dean of the War College and before the war was Dean of Students. An outstanding philosopher, Dean Bradshaw has won national acclaim as an analytical thinker on all problems of current events.
