Hunt Now Chairman Of UCP; Party Adopts 'Convention' As System For Nominations

Third-party politics received new impetus yesterday with the announcement by the United Carolina Party that Douglass Hunt, Speaker of the Student Legislature, had been named party chairman.

Editor Names Special Group To Revive Phi

To meet a growing need for an organization to discuss and act upon student issues Tar Heel editors Jack Lackey and Howard Merry have accepted an appointment by Editor-in-Chief Bob Morrison to a committee to re-organize the Assembly of the Philanthropic Literary Society, which existed on the campus for almost 150 years.

Merry, acting as spokesman for the committee, which will be a special committee of the staff of the Tar Heel, declared, "We see a great need for a place where students can voice their opinions about all matters which are vital to them. In the great tradition of the Philanthropic Assembly there is a firm foundation for a student group dedicated to the increased understanding of the things which concern the student body."

During the last collegiate year, the student legislature, the Debate Council, and the Dialectic Senate all discussed the possibility of the revival of the Philanthropic Assembly, commonly called the "Phi" for many years. The legislature favored the proposal and appointed a committee to reorganize the Phi. The committee never functioned, and after an editorial plea in the Tar Heel, another committee was appointed, but the second committee did not function. The Dialectic Senate favored the re-organization, but felt that action should come from members outside the Senate, which is the Phi's sister organization. The Debate Council never reached a decision.

It is felt that today there is such a need for the Phi that it will receive the support of a large number of students. The purpose of the committee will be to inform the students of the nature and possibilities of the Phi, to prepare the Phi Chamber on the fourth floor of New East Building, and to tentatively set up a constitution and rules of order.

The Phi and Di were organized in 1795 by 31 students who were interested in forensics. Later the two societies became the governing body of the students and regulated all student activities.

UNC Vets Decide Not To Affiliate With Larger Group

The University Veterans Association last Monday night voted overwhelmingly to remain unaffiliated with any national or sectional veterans organization. Proposed as a constitutional amendment by Jack Shelton, the vote cut off all discussion on an invitation of AMVETS, a World War II veterans group, to attend its national convention.

Individuals in UVA are free to join any veterans organization they see fit. The Committee on Veterans Affairs is preparing a report on the nature of these existing organizations to help the members in their choice. However, members felt that UVA should not join up as a unit, fearing UVA would then be run from a national office.

Mr. Harry Comer, YMCA secretary, revealed that the Army barracks adjoining the Carolina Inn will be divided into small, furnished, house-keeping units as soon as possible for married veterans. Families with children will have priority. There have been 93 requests by married veterans for such accommodations already, and there will be 100 couples here by November 1, it is estimated.

Lloyd Gardner was elected Social Committee chairman upon the resignation of J. B. Spilman, who resigned due to pressure of a heavy program this semester. Dick Koral and Bill Lamkin were elected co-directors of publicity upon the resignation of Jack Lackey.

Members of the UCP, meeting only three days after the announcement of the formation of the party, named Hunt to the position of temporary chairman with a unanimous vote, and simultaneously chose a temporary executive committee to lay the groundwork for immediate party organization. Members of the executive committee are: Hunt, chairman, Walt Brinkley, Margaret Woodhouse, Pete Pully, Lib Schofield, Jimmy Wallace, and Al Lowenstein.

Breaking precedent in Carolina political history, the new third party has adopted a convention system for the selection of candidates who will run for office upon the UCP platform and program for student government. Until the membership of the party rises above 100 students, all candidates will be named by this group in meeting assembled. However, when the party membership exceeds 100 students, delegate system will be employed whereby a true cross-section of the campus will be secured. This convention of delegates will make the nominations for the party's candidates. All such nominating conventions will be open to observation by the entire student body, thus "giving everyone the opportunity to see how democratically a political party can work if it wishes to do so."

Statement Adopted

A statement of principle, enlarging upon the one which was printed in the Tuesday edition of the Tar Heel, was adopted at the party meeting, thus paying the way for a membership campaign to be conducted throughout the student body. Copies of this statement are being mimeographed and will be ready for circulation by Tar Heel press time. "Students wishing to join the UCP or wishing to ask questions about it should see any member of the executive committee or the membership committee," Chairman Hunt said. The membership committee, named at the meeting, include: Walt Brinkley, chairman; Herbert Weber, Connie Hendren, Frank Meadows, and Dot Churchill.

Students desiring to join the party will be asked to subscribe to the mimeographed statement of principle and will, upon signing, be given a membership card. All memberships so granted will be subject to review by the membership committee, but the decision of this group may be appealed directly to the party.

Organized to "restore and revitalize student government on the campus," the United Carolina Party asserts that its chief interest is in "student government rather than in student politics." In the statement of principle, the party pledges itself to uphold student government in order "that we may not lose for those who come after us what those who went before us fought so hard to win."

The pledge of the party includes the following:

Di Denounces Religious And Political Bans

Overflow Crowd Passes Substitute To Fraternity Bill

After a lengthy discussion which took several surprise twists while running its course, the Dialectic Senate Wednesday night voted, with but one dissenting ballot, in favor of a resolution calling for the abolition of any organization on the campus of the University of North Carolina which discriminates among applicants for membership on the basis of religious or political views, unless such an organization is primarily a religious or political group.

The Di session, held in Gerrard Hall to accommodate an overflow audience, started with a discussion of a bill to abolish social fraternities at UNC, but early in the evening the substitute resolution came to the fore. During the entire meeting not one voice was raised in favor of a downright abolition of fraternities, and, when Douglass Hunt offered an "anti-discrimination" substitute, debate shifted to it.

Leading the proponents of the Hunt proposal were Nina Guard and Don Shropshire, with a host of others, including Jimmy Wallace, and Hunt himself, in the van. There was some talk about whether discriminatory bans actually existed in fraternities, which were considered most likely to be affected by the anti-discrimination bill. Some of the restrictions on non-Christians are more tacit than explicit, it was revealed, but many of the

Edwards, Ferrell Join Valkyries In Impressive Ritual

Betty Edwards and Kay Ferrell were initiated into the Valkyries, honorary leadership organization for coeds, in an impressive ceremony at dawn Wednesday.

Mrs. Ferrell is the secretary of the Young Women's Christian Association and was elected to honorary membership in the Valkyries because of her outstanding contribution in numerous campus activities.

Betty Edwards served as junior representative to Honor Council and was elected president of W.F.A. during the summer session. She has also served on the House Privileges board and is now one of the representatives from the coeds at large to the Coed Senate and the Student Legislature.

This special ceremony was held because of the approaching graduation of Miss Edwards, and the expected departure of Mrs. Ferrell to join her husband who is expected home from over-seas soon.

Valkyries is the highest coed honorary organization on the campus, being equivalent to the Golden Fleece. Members are selected on the basis of scholarship, unselfish service, sound judgment, leadership, and character.

University Party Plans No Basic Policy Changes

Appearance Of UCP Does Not Affect Platform Of Group, Chairman Says

The University Party plans no drastic changes in its policy due to the emergence of another political party on the campus according to Allan Pannill, chairman of the University Party.

Pannill said: "For many years in the past, the University Party has done all in its power to put the best qualified candidates before the campus for consideration. With the advent of a third party on campus, we see no reason for a change in policy; a policy which we have adhered to and have executed to the best of our ability and the good of the students. Possibly we have been accused of putting the wrong man in office, but if so, it might be interesting to note that many of those comprising this new party were put in office on the University Party ticket."

"All this has undoubtedly been rather confusing to those who are new at Carolina, and in order to let them know how we stand, the University Party platform for the last spring election is being printed.

"We believe that all that we have done or stood for has been for the good of the campus, and we further believe that a change in our long standing policy would harm rather than benefit the students and student government."

The party offers for the consideration of the student body the following platform: "We favor a broad, well-defined constitution for our student self-government; a more extensive and complete orientation program including faculty orientation; an up-to-date, unbiased Tar Heel, with the return to the Daily Tar Heel as soon as possible; the return of class honor councils to work in coordination with the present judicial system; a more adequate entertainment program on the campus; reduction in the fee which each student is forced to pay to the Debate Council; a joint student-faculty committee to discuss proposed rulings; a modified physical education program; reorganization of the Monogram Club; and a vigorous program for the general improvement of the appearance of the campus."

Pan-Hellenic Council Plans Sorority Court

The first steps are being taken to develop a sorority court, the Pan-Hellenic Council disclosed Thursday. Betty Grimes, president of Pan-hell, announced that a committee composed of alumni and one active representative of each sorority will begin its work next week.

A sorority court has been discussed by the council for some time. The plan is to purchase a suitable lot and to have each sorority build its own house. All sororities must agree on the site for the court before work can begin. As yet, the only suggested location is the lot behind Kenan dormitory.

Military Here Takes Second THIPA Poll

In a poll of all the V-12 naval reservists stationed at the University of North Carolina, answers to several pertinent questions have been solicited by the Tar Heel Institute of Public Affairs.

The responses to the queries accurately reflect the opinion of Navy men on the Carolina campus, since time-tested methods of polling public opinion have been utilized by the THIPA.

The poll shows that an overwhelming majority, 71.1%, do not wish to make the Navy their career, as opposed to 13.1% that do, and 15.8% who are undecided. These facts are indicative of the peacetime path upon which the nation has embarked. However, it is a tribute to the Navy that 30% of the men polled have not completely eliminated the possibility of making the Navy their career.

This admiration and loyalty to the Navy is further borne out in the answers to the next question, which show that 57.7% of the men polled would not accept an immediate discharge if it were offered to them. Forty per cent of those polled would take advantage of such a discharge, and 2.3% are undecided on this score.

Will Seek Jobs

In keeping with the accelerated tempo of post-war America towards a full degree of prosperity, 66.7% of the naval personnel express their determination to secure jobs after their discharge, and only 33.3% will take time out for the vacation which they have merited by their loyal service in behalf of their country during World War II.

That the Navy has prepared them for their future civilian life adequately is testified to by the affirmative responses of 57.8%, while 37.8% believe that they have not been sufficiently readied for their readjustment, and 4.4% remain undecided.

The results of the poll show that a large percentage, 75.6%, of the men presently stationed here will return to continue their education at the University of North Carolina, supplying negative responses were 16.3% and undecided were 18.1% on the question of whether these men would return to Chapel Hill in multi instead of navy blue. This phase of the poll bolsters the general reputation of the University, portraying as it does, the favorable impression made by Chapel Hill upon these men who came here on the wings of the fortunes of war.

A marked trend toward the discrediting of the present discharge system now in vogue is evident in the figures which show that 44.4% of the polled defend the system, while 40% of those polled attack the current regulations, and 15.6% are undecided.

The seventh question posed this problem: "A leading columnist tells of a naval station paper that was censored by the Captain of that station because the paper ran comments of Naval Personnel that discredited the present discharge system. Do you think that this type of censorship is warranted?"

In reply to this query, 60% declared that the censorship was unwarranted, contrasted to 40% who believed it justified. These figures are valuable as a guide to the way Navy men are thinking. Apparently, these men will be among the staunchest defenders of civil liberties when they return to their peacetime pursuits.

In the responses to the last question, the V-12 contingents on the campus made known their willingness to participate more in extra-curricular activities if bed check and study hours were lifted by a percentage of 75.6% "Yes" replies and 19% "No" replies, while 4.4% stayed on the fence.

Carolina Mag Due To Appear In Fortnight; Full-Page Pin-Up Of Texas Coed Highlight

The first edition of the Carolina Mag is scheduled to appear October 15th. Short stories, speeches, cartoons, poems, photography, and a full page pin-up promise an exciting issue from "civer to civer."

Pin-up girl, Terry Maverick, a Penn Hall transfer, hails from San Antonio, Texas. Outside journalism classes, the attractive Pi Phi may be seen around campus in "Sound and Fury" and wherever personality is in line. Green eyes, brown hair, plus glamour a la Joe Denker outranks all previous Mag Pinups.

Ace photography features football on the front cover which is rendered in Cornell Red in honor of Coach Snavely. Also included in the magazine is an article on football.

One of the outstanding features is about three former Carolina students starring in "Dark of the Moon," a current Broadway production. Other features come from campus authors Smallwood, Morrison, Podd, and Seaver. Fiction contributors are Wicker, Shelton, Furgenson, and Lawley. The poetic touch is added by Cassidy and Davidoff. A full page is devoted to Cassidy's poems. Humor is contributed by Fields' jokes and Art Editor Stoker's cartoons.

There will also be an announcement of the Thomas Wolf Memorial Award which is a prize for the best story appearing in the Mag this year. This award has not been offered for several years; the return of this practice is evidence of a newer and more improved Carolina Mag. Another significant feature of this issue is the change of engravers; engraving for this Mag was done by the North State Engravers.

A newly appointed member of the staff is Bill Selig, subscription manager. Positions are still open to those interested. All contributions for the November issue are to be in by October 18th.

Addressograph plates are being made for circulation purposes. All subscription copies including gift copies will be sent out regularly. Price of a year's subscription is $1.50; these magazines can be sent home, overseas, etc. Send your friends the Mag!
