Dr. Wilson Dies After Illness

Dr. Thomas James Wilson, Jr., who had been connected with the University faculty for almost half a century and who had served as a professor, Registrar, Dean of Admissions, and Faculty Secretary, died at his home October 25 after several years of poor health.

Well known and greatly beloved by thousands of University alumni, Dr. Wilson remained in close contact with students through the Phi Beta Kappa scholarship fraternity, which he served as corresponding secretary-treasurer since 1894.

As Registrar and Dean of Administration, "Dr. Tommie," as he was affectionately known, attained high rank in his field. He served as president of the American Association of Collegiate Registrars and as president of the North Carolina Association of Registrars.

They list some ideas which their candidates are supposed to uphold. They pledged themselves to educate their candidates to these ideas "before we enter them in any political race." This idea has been dropped. One of their candidates in the coming election hasn't even heard of these ideas much less having been educated.

They have pledged themselves to nominate the best-qualified candidates for office, yet in their platform committee's meeting they have agreed to train student officials for their positions after they have been elected to office. Surely the best qualified candidate won't need such training. Maybe they're providing for University Party candidates who happen to be elected.

Doug Hunt, Al Lowenstein, Dot Churchill, Pete Pully and most of the other members of UCP mean well, but they'd better look around for one of those pseudo-sheep. Their principles are good for Carolina.

But Hunt, Lowenstein and company are being led to one of those shearings.

Playmaker Tryouts

Tryouts for the Playmakers' next full length production, "Liliom," will be held in the Playmakers Theatre Friday, Nov. 9, at 4:00 and 7:30 p.m.

Both the campus and Chapel Hill are invited to tryout for parts in "Liliom," the play by Ferenc Molnar on which "Carrousel" was based. "Liliom" is a strange mixture of realism and fantasy and one of the greatest love stories ever written.

mentioned are just a few of the injustices done to us students. We were willing to accept these as best we could, but now the Book Exchange has gone too far; the time has come for some things to be brought out in the open.

For the past few days there have been on sale in the Book Ex. some items which the University bought from the government after the termination of the Pre-Flight program here. Since Monday, each day has been "bargain day" there. Many a boy has walked away with a fluorescent lamp in his hand, thinking about the wonderful bargain he took advantage of that day. You see, he was told that the lamp was originally priced at $18, and since it had been used slightly, he was going to get a ten-dollar discount; my, what a bargain! What that boy didn't know was that the lamp only cost the Navy $6.91 when it was new, and that the University bought it for approximately 69c—10% of the original cost; the lamp sold for $1.33 MORE than the Navy paid for it when it was new. A profit of about 1200% was made on that one deal. That's what I call "high-way robbery," and such should not be tolerated.

Such actions are bad enough in private business, but when a place with university influence takes advantage of students in that particular university, action should be taken immediately to produce reform no matter what drastic changes have to be made.

Blocks of art gum were also bought from the Navy at a cost of two cents per block. The blocks were cut in half, and are now selling for five cents each at that same place.

I admit that the Book Exchange does help us in some ways—such as the soda fountain and the cashing of checks without charge, and most of the clerks are very nice—but there has to be something there to satisfy the students. Of course, the management doesn't realize that 20% "good" does not overcome 80% "bad."

You now have the data before you, and I trust that in some way

Fire, Explosion Damage Gym Pool; One Person Injured

Fire and explosion damaged the $150,000 Bowman Gray pool and severely burned one person in an early morning fire yesterday. The blaze which was discovered at six o'clock by a janitor, was put out by the Chapel Hill fire department before it became serious.

The fire started in a storeroom and is believed to be the result of spontaneous combustion of liquid cleaning fluid. The fire was confined to the connecting passageway between the pool and Woolen Gym.

H. Maynor, gym janitor, discovered smoke when he came to work at six and immediately notified the fire department. C. B. Huggins, administrator of athletics, opened the door of the smokey storeroom to determine the exact nature of the fire. The pent up gases exploded, burning him, scorching the hallway, and shattering the pool's skylight. Mr. Huggins is in Watts Hospital in Durham with face and body burns.

The fire was put out in a few minutes. Sixty gallons of liquid cleaner and other supplies were destroyed. The exact amount of damage has not been determined.

it will inspire action to do away with these preposterous conditions. I'm not saying whether or not the management of the Book Exchange has a legal right to bring about these things I charge, but I do say that the students could and should rise up and rebel. We have been on the wrong end long enough; we have stuffed pockets with money which many a boy or a Dad had sweated to obtain. I appeal to you to wake up and refuse to submit to the present circumstances any longer. If we don't, and if the Book Ex. keeps going at the rate it is going now, within five years we will almost be buying "penny" pencils on the installment plan.

Sincerely,
Don Shropshire

TAR HEELS

his own 15 yard line and ran the pigskin back 85 yards behind perfect blocking to score and put the Vols back in the ball game, which at that point looked almost within the grasp of the Tar Heels. Stephenson converted from placement to send Tennessee ahead 7-6.

Gorman got the next kickoff in the end zone and returned to the 16, but on the first play from scrimmage Buster Stephens, the star of the day for Tennessee, snaggled a pass from Gorman on the Carolina 30 and ran the remaining yardage for another Vol tally. Stephenson again kicked good, 14-6.

Stephens, attempting to knock down a pass from Clayton, batted the ball in the hands of his teammate, John Manning, about five minutes later to set the stage for the final Volunteer score. Manning ran the ball back to the Carolina 24, and he gained a first down through the line for Tennessee on the 14. In two plays, Stephens carried the ball over to make it 20-6 three minutes from the end of the game. Stephenson's try for point was no good.

at party meetings with the new president. "I was impressed by the sincerity and honesty of purpose of Betancourt and the other men," he declared. "There was a democratic spirit pervading the entire group of workers, professional men, artists, writers, prominent citizens."

Dr. Gil said that President Betancourt has long been influential in spite of the ruthless dictatorship under which Venezuela existed. "He knew that eventually there would have to be a change but he, along with all the other liberals who wanted democracy for Venezuela, hoped to avoid revolution if possible. Things got so bad, though, that there was no other way. And in 24 hours Betancourt was put into office. It's a great forward step for Venezuela and for South America. I am very happy for that country because it is a wonderful country, rich with great possibilities, and with democracy. I believe we are on the right track."

field and a series of eight downs played with the teams alternating playing the eight downs. The team with the ball furthest from starting point shall be the winner. Touchdowns will count in the series of downs. Length of game—Two periods of 20 minutes each will constitute a game. Players and substitutes—Seven players may constitute a team. On offense four players must be on the line of scrimmage and one at least one yard behind the line. If nine players are used, five must be on the line of scrimmage and one at least one yard behind the line of scrimmage.
