terpieces, which would do credit to any European or American country. Many Brazilian operas have been represented in the main opera houses of Italy, Germany and France.

In spite of all this, the language spoken in Brazil is not yet taught in some American universities, although the tongue of a people is the strongest expression of its unity, wealth and civilization.

In his book, What the South Americans Think of Us, Roland Kibben says:

"For most South Americans, the only personal contact with North Americans has been with business exploiters, wealthy tourists, or, more recently, 'do-gooders,' who seldom know the language and have little more than superficial interest in the culture and history which means so much to all residents of the Latin countries."

I am afraid this angle of the question has not been satisfactorily considered, yet, by the leaders of the University. Otherwise, the teaching of the official language in Brazil and its literature would have had earlier consideration.

Thanking you for the attention which you are giving to this letter, I remain

Cordially yours,

Supervisor of Education in Brazil.

Three Weeks Needed To Fix Swim Pool For Student Usage

Bowman-Gray pool, which was damaged in a blast last Monday, will probably not be used for three weeks, University officials have estimated.

A few hundred crates of soap, wax, paper, and other gym supplies in the storeroom where the fire originated were destroyed. The skylight over the pool and windows of the building were completely shattered.

Steel railways around the pool were twisted into hoops. The condition of C. B. Huggins, administrator of maintenance, who was burned and stunned in the explosion, was not termed critical. An estimate of the damage has not been made.

No Lack of Sports For Coeds Under New Program

By Jo Farris

No more may the girls slyly grin when their tall, athletic dates complain about P.T., for now the lassies are getting fit and healthy—"the difficult way." Only it isn't a difficult way, for there are eight sports being taught now.

That grim-faced Amazon, clad in a short, white suit with strange, padded jobs about her legs, is bound for the hockey field to be taught by Mrs. Demerest how to send the ball to the wing and charge the goalie. Less alarming, but more amusing is the sight of all of those girls, fat ones, thin ones, tall ones, short ones, all dressed in those tight leotards with short little pink skirts over them. Mr. Malinowski teaches these sprites and the ones interested in folk dancing as well.

Miss Knox has charge of two very different sports: for those that don't like to exert too much energy, she teaches games, and for those that like to tear madly up and down a field hitting, throwing, and kicking a ball, she teaches speedball. We suspect many of those in Mrs. Demerest's fencing class are there to gain poise and grace as well as to lunge at the opponent.

Always a favorite, basketball is going full force this term with Miss Blanchett officiating and even playing if there is a shortage of girls. She reports that the Intramural basketball tourney will be started right after Christmas. The volley ball contest has already been held, but Miss Kellan is clearing up some weak points in her classes. Last but not least we have swimming. Big plans are in the offing not only for regular swimming, but also for a team to really keep up with the crack boys' team and a water pageant. It's all here, cherubs, now take advantage of it. See ya' at the gym.

Veterans To Name New Men Sunday

At next Monday's meeting the University Veterans Association will elect all officers and committee chairmen for this semester. Offices to be filled Monday are president, vice-president, treasurer, secretary and chairmen of the following committees: Housing, Veteran Affairs, Social, Publicity and Membership. The meeting will be at Gerrard Hall at eight as usual.

Commander Victor Johnson, North Carolina American Legion department commander, spoke to the veterans at last Monday's meeting on the necessity of strong veteran organization and the American Legion.

The veterans voted to empower the UVA president to appoint a committee to work with the University Club as hosts on Alumni Day. The Vets Clubhouse "opened for business" Friday night.

all of whom were among the high point-makers of the season. Hank Spurlock, another varsity man, is also back.

In addition to these boys, Gene Thomas and Red Hughes of the "B" squad last year are back and are both showing up well in early drills. Other former Tar Heels coming back from the wars include Jim Hayworth and Taylor Thorne, who played here back in 1941-42 and 43, and Jim White, who was on the first string varsity in 1942.

Out for Varsity Post

Others vying for varsity positions in addition to those already mentioned are Mike Fisher, Vinny Delorenzo, Roger Scholbe, Charles Thorne, Lee Gliarmis, Hall Miles, Johnny Fields, Larry McSpaden and E. H. Bailey, transfers from Sewance, and Billy Carmichael and Bobby Cornwall, two Chapel Hill prospects.

Out of this group will come the varsity squad of some 12-15 boys, and the rest will be put on the "B" team, which will have several games on a slate of its own. Doc Siewert, former Carolina athletic man who is recently back from the Navy, is coaching the Jayvees, who are already about 20 strong. Included among the "B" team men is Clyde King, top-notch cager who is ineligible for conference play. King pitches with the Brooklyn Dodgers in the summer, having won five games last season.

The coaches and men alike are down to hard work now in view of the fast approaching season opener, less than a month away. There are several new NROTC men to give a chance before the squad is picked, but this is expected to be done very soon.

Robson To Discuss German Occupation On IRC Program

Dr. C. B. Robson, head of Department of Political Science, will lead the International Relations Club discussion Monday night on "The Occupation of Germany."

Dr. Robson was in Germany for six months last spring taking a survey of the damage done by Allied air power. The survey was taken by the Office of Strategic Services. Dr. Robson will discuss the occupation policies and their application to Germany. After his analysis, the floor will be open for discussion by all present.

President Gloria Chapman urged all those interested in this crucial problem to attend, as this is Dr. Robson's first public appearance since his return. The meeting will be held in the Roland Parker Lounge of Graham Memorial at 7:15.
