Sadie Hawkins Prizes Given

Entry By Jennings Takes First Place

Judges for the Sadie Hawkins Day picture contest Sunday night awarded the first prize blue ribbon to Comer Jennings' entry. "The award was made on a basis of good photography and human interest," said Joe Denker, chief judge.

Prizes also were awarded to three other pictures chosen from a field of more than 60 entries, which have been on display in Horace Williams lounge and Graham Memorial office for the past two weeks.

Action Theme

"Action" was the theme of Jennings' entry, taken at the termination of the wedding ceremony during the day's festivities. The second prize of a similar handpainted red ribbon was given for a "bird's-eye view" of the festivities, taken by Pvt. David Wheeler, USMC.

Bill Lamkin won the yellow ribbon third prize for a scene depicting cameraman Joe Denker in action. The duo of "Marryin' Sam" Kai Jurgensen and "Mayor" Paul Young netted fourth prize for Carl Wohlberg.

Honorable mention was given to photos by Charles Borton and Jean Benjamin. Judges for the contest, Joe Denker, William Colepaugh and Nancy Greenwall, announced that the photos will remain on display for several days in the student union office.

GRAHAM

more generally accepted meaning of the word you used and as a matter of fairness and a decent sense of responsibility in the use of words, I am sure you will join me in expressing deep regret for the use of a word capable of such unworthy construction.

With appreciation, I am
FRANK P. GRAHAM.

Summer Jobs

Women students interested in summer jobs as camp workers and counselors are also asked to apply at the vocational office as soon as possible. The vocational office has received quite a number of requests for summer workers from camps located along the entire east coast. Applications are acceptable from all coeds interested in camp life and capable of directing any of the activities connected with it.

COGS

(Continued from page two) and for that reason if no other, ALL of us should read it carefully and offer any and every criticism, constructive or otherwise! If we leave it to others to decide upon, possibly a select few, we can have no argument when it turns out to be a bad document. Think about it, students, and sound off with your opinions!

Without a doubt:

Coach Ben Carnevale has really gotten those cagers of his in 2 point shape! With the second win of the season tucked away, and from Camp Pickett at that, the boys are ready, willing, and to my way of thinking, able to roll up an undefeated season. Go to it, men!

Also in the conqueror's box sit the Blue Dolphins, who topped the Lejeune Leathernecks by a watery score of 34-32! Not a bad start, fishermen, keep it up.

We welcome George Stirnweiss, alumnus and national sporting figure, to the athletic staff of Carolina. Where Georgie goes—results ride rampant!!

And wavering never in its course, the wheel marks deeply this mud we call life.

Beauty Ball Photographs

Photographs which were sent to Humphrey Bogart and Lauren Bacall for the Yack beauty contest have been returned to the Yack office. Owners may get these pictures any afternoon between 2 and 5 at the office in Graham Memorial.

Rabbi Budick Named Head Carolina Hillel Foundation

An important addition to the Carolina campus this fall was Rabbi Budick, who in September became the new head of the Hillel Foundation. He came here from the University of Oklahoma, where he organized a Hillel foundation in 1943 and acted as associate professor of Jewish history and Semitics.

He has held a pulpit in Millville, New Jersey; has been civilian chaplain of Bellevue hospital in New York City; and was director of the YMCA in Philadelphia.

He was educated at City College, New York, where he received his B.S.S. and his M.A., and the Jewish Institute of Religion in New York, where he received his M.H.L. and Rabbinical degree. He has done graduate work at Fordham University and N.Y.U. and is a candidate for Ph.D.

The Hillel Foundation is a social, religious and cultural organization bridging the gap between Jewish student youth and the group's heritage.

The first chapter of the foundation was established 24 years ago at the University of Illinois. A group was started seven years ago on the Carolina campus. Growing by leaps and bounds, the organization has expanded until there are now 150 chapters in the United States, Canada and Cuba. It is expected to expand internationally.

Nisei Sociology Graduate First Since War Started

By Sarah Spratt

The University is opening its doors to foreign students for the first time since the beginning of World War II. Initiating the influx of students of Japanese ancestry is Shizuko Hayashi, an American-born coed, of Wapako, Washington.

A graduate student in the school of sociology here, Miss Hayashi may be found daily studying diligently in the library. Previously, she attended the University of Washington in Seattle and Sterling College, Kansas.

"My associates at Sterling College recommended this university to me. The excellent work of the school of sociology here is known in Kansas and even in Wapako," Miss Hayashi declared.

"I made my debut in the South when I began summer school here," she continued. "The significance of Chapel Hill as one of the cultural centers of the South has influenced me to take advantage of its library, its instructors, the courses, and the warm hospitality and friendliness that pervades the campus."

Miss Hayashi is rather small in stature, having a height of about five feet four inches. She has a quiet calmness about her as she speaks in a cheerful manner. The oldest member of a family of three, Miss Hayashi spent nine months in Heart Mountain, Wyoming, a relocation center, during the early part of the war. Her family was released from the center this fall.

The young coed has a scholarship from the Fellowship of Southern Churchmen.

Miss Hayashi mentioned that she had never known many Japanese until she was sent to a relocation center. "The greater part of my life has been spent in Wapako, which is an Indian reservation. Some of the Indians still live rather primitively. They still practice some of their dances, have ceremonies in their worshipping and build fenced cemeteries, which are locked securely."

"Never let it be said that the Indians there aren't intelligent," she continued. "They weave baskets and fish a great deal. During huckleberry season, they gather in caravans and search for the berries. The Indians have their own churches and hospitals, and take part in the government, which is a part of the state and national government."

Industry is developing rapidly in her native town, according to Miss Hayashi. "An aluminum industry is emerging, with power originating from the Grand Coulee and Bonneville dams, nearby."

Miss Hayashi asserted that neither she, nor any member of her family had suffered any means of persecution during the past war. Heart Mountain, a center having around 10,000 Japanese and American born Japanese, became a little town within itself, with the residents busily contributing to the war effort, she related.

When asked if she would like to go to Japan, Miss Hayashi said thoughtfully, "Of course I would like to go there. I visited in Japan once when I was a child, but naturally I don't remember much of the country or my experiences. At the time I visited my grandmother."

"The only thing I don't like about the University campus is its dirt walks," Miss Hayashi said. "The sand gets into my shoes and irritates my feet. Other than that, I am amazed by the beauty of the campus. I have no desire to rave about the beauties of my native state, Washington, as I did at Sterling College," she laughed.

CRIL Endorses Negro Delegates

The Council for Religion in Life voted Saturday to endorse the action taken by the Student Legislative Assembly in inviting Negroes to the 1946 session, announced John Lineweaver, president of the CRIL.

In an official statement released for publication, the CRIL declared,

"With the conviction that no assembly which is not truly representative of all North Carolina students can call itself the North Carolina Student Legislature; that to invite representation of all students at such an assembly is the natural next step in our progress, as students, toward democracy; that the students of this state assembled at Raleigh conducted themselves with dignity and intelligence, and in the interest of justice and democracy,

"We heartily concur in the action taken by the Student Legislative Assembly December 1 at Raleigh to invite Negro college representation at next year's Assembly."

Playmakers Tryouts

All who are interested are invited to try out for the Carolina Playmakers third major production in collaboration with the music department, "The Chimes of Normandy." Tryouts will be held in the Choral Room of Hill Hall Wednesday at 4 and 7:30 p. m.
