

Council States Codes To Coeds

A meeting of all new coeds was called Tuesday night by Ruth Duncan and Dot Phillips, co-chairmen of orientation week, to explain the phases of student government, and to inform them about the House Privileges Board agreement. After instruction they pledged to keep the Honor Code and the Campus Code.

The new girls who registered Jan. 3 were Elizabeth Ann Barnes, Kingsport, Tenn.; Mary Evans Goodwin, Edenton, N. C.; Mary Harriette Hurst, Hamlet, N. C.; Mrs. Barbara Mason Jones, Xema, Ohio; Mrs. Betty S. Kemp, Goldsboro, N. C.; Mildred Augusta Koon, Asheville, N. C.; Mrs. Evangeline Laidlaw, Western Springs, Ill.; Marcia McMillin, Raleigh, N. C.; Mrs. Iris Isabelle Perry, Schoolfield, Va.; Mrs. Josephine Lee Seila, Selma, N. C.; Mrs. Aileen Taylor, Eilkin, N. C.; Betty L. Wilbiard, High Point, N. C.; Anne Wood, Edenton, N. C.

Ruth Duncan has announced that a new method of training program for officers will be initiated. In the future newly-elected officers will start their training immediately after being elected rather than a month later.

A library consisting of blue books from other schools is being collected to get ideas from concerning rules, and to inquire about their Honor Council procedures. The new telephone number of WGA is 6471.

HOUSING

(Continued from first page) ing in men's and women's dormitories and in Eaton and Nash Halls, built as Army barracks for A.S.T.P. students in 1943. This counts three to a room, except in the barracks, and four in rooms in Battle, Vance and Pettigrew.

In dormitories housing women there are 684 coeds, three in most rooms. On the basis of two per room, normal capacity would be only 534.

Men living in dormitories total 2,069. On a two-per-room basis, only 1,514 men could be accommodated, according to figures from Harry S. Comer, in charge of housing University students. The number of men living in Nash and Eaton comes to 136.

Capacity for fraternity and sorority houses, Mr. Comer says, is 575. There is as yet no definite count of students living in rooms rented in town, but some idea may be gained from statistics of former years. In 1941, the year of the highest University enrollment, 963 students rented rooms in Chapel Hill homes. And today there is not a single rentable room available, adds Mr. Comer.

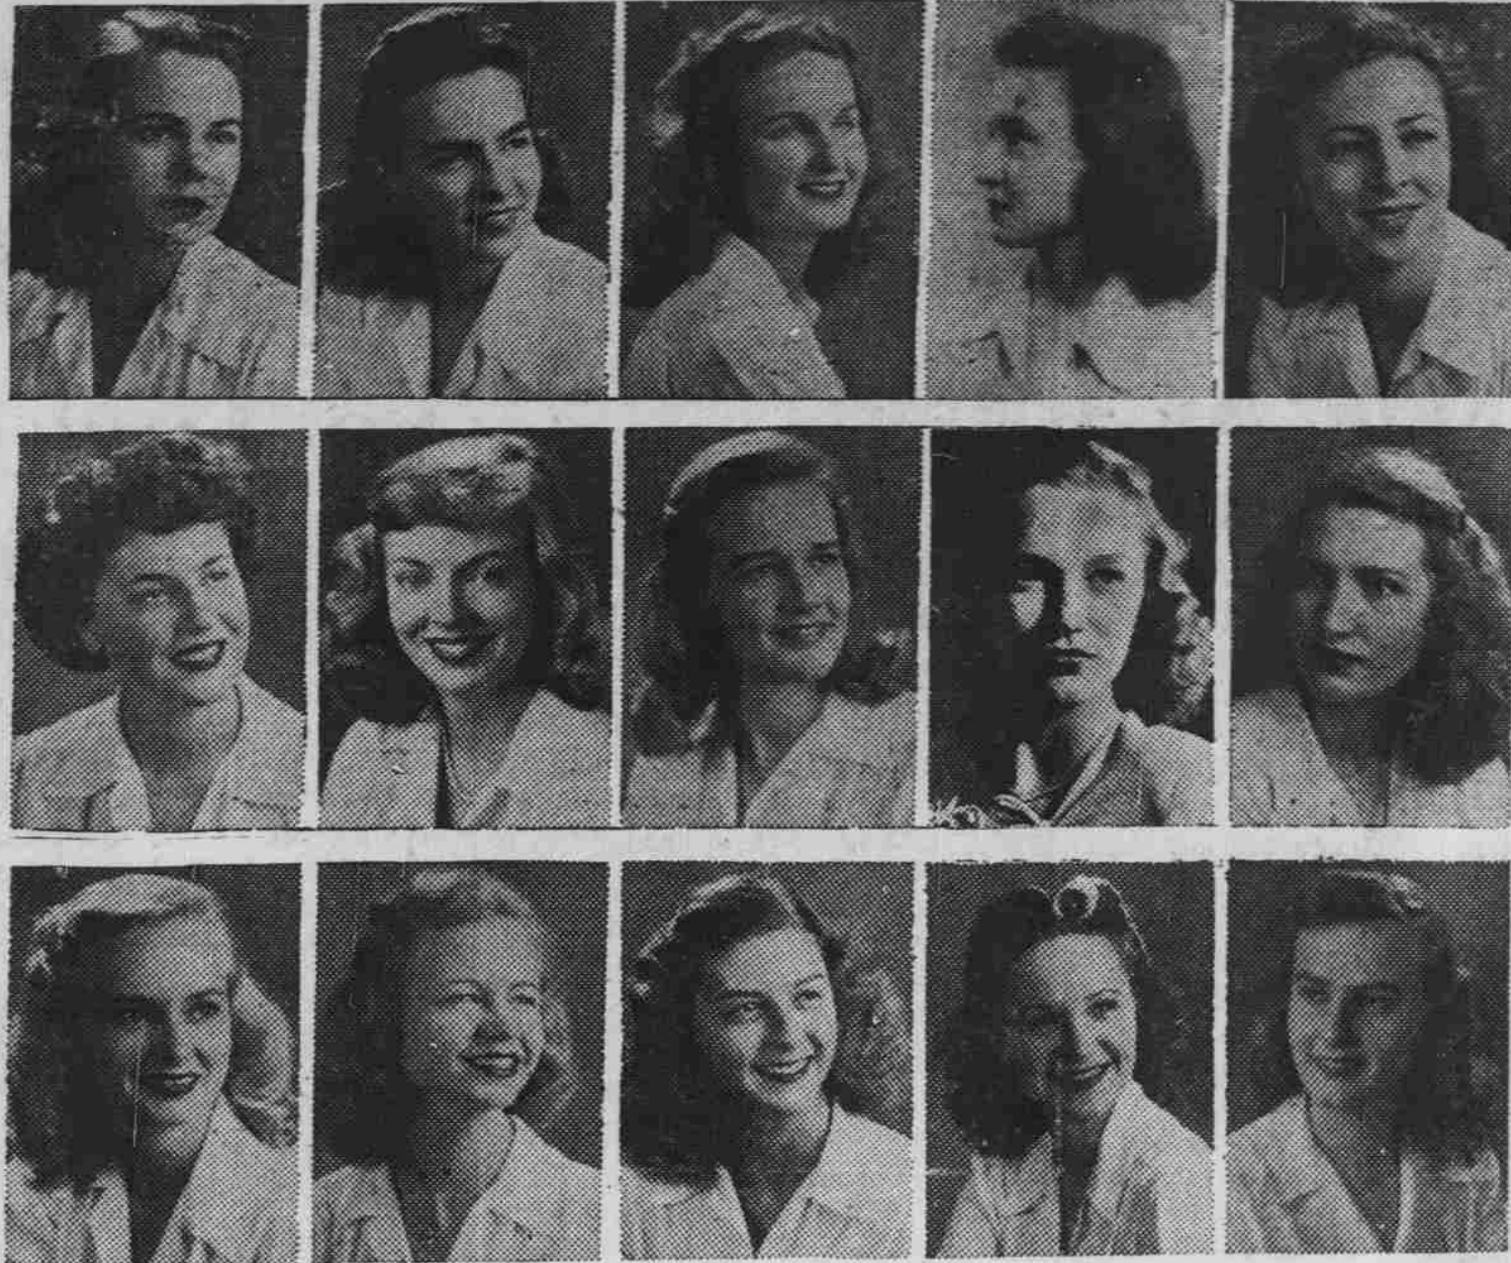

But some break in the situation is expected soon by South Building authorities, who have all expressed desire to help out University students and in particular to aid veterans who wish to bring their wives to live with them here, a move they were advised against last month before they registered.

MUSIC SCHOOL

Experienced Entertainer Mr. Collins, who studied under Stanford Hulshizer at Drake University where he received his B.S.M. in 1936, went to New York in 1937 where he sang for two years as a member of Fred Waring's Glee Club and did announcing for Billy Rose during two years of the World's Fair Aquacade. He also appeared in Jerome Kern's "Very Warm for May" and, just before being inducted into the Army, sang with the Hugh Martin Singers on the Fred Allen Show.

He served as an announcer at the Fort Jackson Radio Station before going overseas where he participated in the Sicilian campaign. After that he was assigned to Special Services and was in charge of all entertainment in his division.

SPINS

(Continued from page three) each getting 14 points. Seward was the man who controlled the rebounds, and Koffenberger took as his main job bottling up Johnny Dillon and flipping in a few shots of his own.

This in brief tells the story, but still remaining is another regular scheduled game with Duke, and a Southern conference tournament to play. This means probably two more games with the Blue Devils. Next time it will be Duke under the pressure, and the Tar Heels, much improved after correcting the errors made last week, should prove their true mettle and turn back the Dukesters. The greatness of a basketball combination is never destroyed by one or even two losses during a season.

STUDENTS

(Continued from page two) of the lab, several of the paintings are in the "finishing touches" stage, and the rest have taken shape so well that even a layman can tell which are going to be (in the layman's opinion) the best representations. It's truly inspiring—so much so that there have been fleeting thoughts of swapping a typewriter for a palette (only fleeting thoughts, though—the lack of talent is too appalling).

Art lab is over all too soon. Believe it or not, this is one lab that the students honestly enjoy—or so they tell us. And here's a parting note to the instructor: if you wondered who that strange invader in the red skirt was—now you know!

Fraternity Pictures Will Be Made Monday

Pictures will be made beginning Monday, for the fraternity section of the 1946 Yackety Yack.

Photographers from Wooten-Moulton will set up their equipment in one fraternity house each day, and approximately five fraternities will be photographed between the hours of two and nine p. m. Each fraternity will be notified of its appointment by Fred Bauder, fraternity editor, who asks that all fraternity members make a special effort to keep the appointment so that the photographs will be as representative of each group as possible.

Former Playmaker Directs At Biarritz

Major Walter Creech, former Playmaker and professor of dramatic art at the University, is directing "Dr. Knock," a unique French comedy by Jules Romains which is being presented by the Biarritz American University Theater. The play is being given in both French and English on alternate matinee and evening performances. Major Creech is directing the play in its original French version, while Pfc. Robert L. Lippmann, former Carolina student is publicity manager for the Theater Arts Section of the University.

Veterans Plan Housing Drive

Action Introduced To Wire Congress

The University Veteran's Association will devote the major part of its first meeting this Monday launching a campaign to relieve the housing shortage in Chapel Hill. Dewey Dorsett, president, has announced. Dean Carroll of the School of Commerce is to be the evening speaker.

The UVA Executive Committee will recommend to the membership the following program: At least 1500 personal letters be written by the veterans to their own Congressmen; Telegrams from the meeting to major officials in the Federal and Regional Surplus Housing Authorities; an extensive investigation of the possibilities for housing more veterans in town.

Dorsett has stated that, in addition, the UVA will remain on the alert for action on further measures to ensure maximum efficiency in solution of the housing problem. Related issues, as teacher salaries, appropriations for classrooms, laboratory supplies, and library space will not be ignored, he said.

The meeting will be at 7:30 p. m. in Gerrard Hall. All veterans on the campus are urged to attend, new student veterans especially.

Native Fetes Staged By Foreign Students In Graham Memorial

UNC students from more than a dozen foreign countries have been gathering in Graham Memorial every Saturday night for the past several months for parties typical of their homelands.

The affairs, originally started for the Latin American students, most of whom are enrolled in the school of public health, were first begun last October. At that time, having no place to meet, they sought aid from Martha Rice, GM director, who gave them the Roland Parker lounge on the second floor for their social activities.

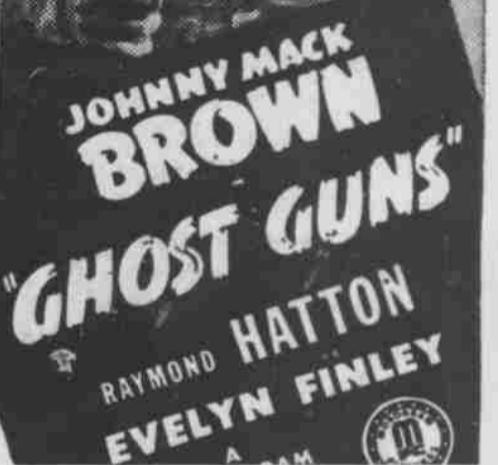

During the last two weeks students attending the parties have hailed from Turkey, Brazil, Puerto Rico, Peru, Guatemala, France, Chile, Bolivia, Colombia, Egypt and several other Central American and Indies countries.

Bringing their own samba, conga, rhumba and other native dance records they engage in their own games and songs, serve and prepare their own refreshments and speak their native languages during the occasions.
