

Pugilists To Open Against Gamecocks Tonight

White Phantoms Travel Away For Tilt

Tar Heel Sluggers Rated Slight Favorites Over SC

Courtmen Face Gamecocks at Columbia

McKinney Boosts Tar Heel Quint

By Irwin Smallwood

The team that twice knocked the Phantoms off last season furnishes the opposition tonight, as Coach Ben Carnevale sends his defending Southern champion cagers after their second win of the season over the Gamecocks in Columbia at 8 tonight.

Last time the South Carolinians met Carolina was Friday, December 21, the week-end before the Tar Heels went on their northern swing, and the UNC lads triumphed by some 24 points. However, the quint from south of the border has been improving fast—they knocked off Newberry 67-32 last week—and will give the locals one of their toughest games in SC competition.

As the Tar Heels take the floor, it will be the same starting combination that has been employed all this season, Jim Jordan, Johnny Dillon, Bob Paxton, Don Anderson and Tee Thorne. But held in close reserve will be Jim White, Red Hughes and Bones McKinney, a new addition to the team.

McKinney, who played with State College in Raleigh before the war, has been released from the Army and is now matriculating at Carolina. The six foot five inch basketballer has been the high-scoring star of Camp Butler this season and promises to be a good addition to the local squad, his height under the basket contributing considerably.

Last night, the White Phantoms met High Point College in High Point, but results were not available at Tar Heel press time.

After the game with South Carolina, the Tar Heel cagers, who sport a 12-2 record thus far in the season, will return to Chapel Hill for two home games next, one Wednesday night with State College and one Friday night with High Point College.

The game Wednesday night promises to be one of the best of the season to be played here, since the Red Terrors gave Duke's Blue Devils such a scare last week. They were leading the Dukesters with six minutes to go but weakened before overwhelming reserves to go down in defeat.

Last Tuesday night, Carolina rolled over Davidson in Charlotte, 58-30, for their second win of the season over the Cats. The Tar Heels trailed after seven minutes had gone by, 9-8, but they got going easily and led 29-11 at halftime.

Jim Jordan, one of the leading scorers all year, came through in his true form and hit the hoop for 17 points, with Johnny Dillon, high man so far this year, getting 11. Bones McKinney, playing his first game for Carolina, got six, Jim White, Don Anderson, Jim Hayworth and Ira Norfolk all got four, and Bob Paxton, Red Hughes, Buster Stevenson and Taylor Thorne each got two.

Undefeated Jayvee Team Meets Soldier Foe At 7

Carolina's undefeated Jayvee cage squad, fresh from a thrilling 39-38 victory over Duke's "B" team Tuesday, clash with a strong Special Service Office, 517th Parachute Regiment five from Fort Bragg here tonight at 7:00 in a preliminary to the boxing meet.

Coach Henry House's cagers kept its unscathed record intact and copped its third straight win of the season by coming through in an overtime with the Duke team. In the closing seconds of the game with Duke leading 37-35, Leach sank the tying basket. The overtime saw Duke take one point on a free throw while McSpaden scored a basket, grabbing the lead for Carolina.

The Jayvees protected their two-point lead by freezing the ball until the end of the extra period. The final score was Carolina, 39 Duke 38. Starters in the game tonight are: guards, McSpaden, Leach; forwards Cox, Holt; center, Dayvault. Robinson, Nimitz, and Powell will probably see plenty of action also.

Coach House has stated that the boys are constantly improving. If they continue to play the same calibre of ball that they have displayed in the past three games, they have a good chance of finishing the season undefeated. Assistant Coach McCachren, who is a former captain of basketball at Carolina, is working hard with Coach House to keep the boys in the winning margin.

A glimpse of Ward's powerful "butterfly" stroke as shown above gives a good idea why Ward has been ranked as the Number Two college sprinter in the country. Though chiefly known for his performances in the free-style events he is extremely proficient in the rather unusual butterfly stroke.

High Flying Blue Dolphins Paced By Ward and Twining

Co-Captain Ben Ward from Goldsboro, N. C., is just the No. 2 ranking college tank sprinter in the country, but he has to swim for his life to keep from being No. 2 on his own team!

That's how tough the competition is among the University of North Carolina's Blue Dolphins, who have monopolized all swimming honors in Dixie for six straight years, and who are gunning for Navy, Cornell, Army, Ohio State, and the Nationals this winter.

Twining Pushes

The lad who is pushing the All-American Ward the hardest for the No. 1 sprint rank in the Tar Heel pond, interestingly, is Charlotte's Richard Twining, son of General Nathan "Champ" Twining, who commanded the Superforts over Japan.

The "Little Champ" had never seen a swimming meet until he came to the Hill, but in one short year, he won two National Junior AAU titles, and his coaches come right out and say he has the makings of the greatest all-around swimmer ever developed in Dixie—and maybe more.

Twining is concentrating on the 100-yard distance right now and Captain Ward on the 50, but if they were to hook up in the same race, it would probably be a toss-up which would touch off first.

All-American

Some people might think that's pretty tough on the No. 2 ranking collegian in the country but not so with the Tar Heels' All-American captain. "Say, we're counting on Dick to dunk several of those big stars up east," as Captain Ward jokes. "And if the coaches decide to put us in the same race, one of us might wind up the No. 1 man instead of Thayer of Army."

Just to keep the record straight, Ward stood No. 4 in the All-American rankings last year, but two of the men above him have graduated, leaving Ward No. 2 and Thayer No. 1.

The handsome 6-footer from Goldsboro, N. C., which is famed far and Capping the main event of a double feature for Carolina fans, Coach Jule Medwin will send his 1946 boxers into their first scrap tonight with South Carolina immediately following the basketball game between the Tar Heel "B" team and Ft. Bragg. The Blue and White cagers lock horns with the soldiers at 7 o'clock, with the ring event scheduled at 8 o'clock.

ED MCGEE

The North Carolina sluggers, boosted by three returning lettermen in Jim Lodge from Mountain Grove, Mo., at 135, Joe Mallard from Jersey City, N. J., at 155, and Johnny Richardson from Hamlet, N. C., at 165, will rule as slight favorites over their invading rivals from South Carolina. Although with only a trio of vets of last year, the Tar Heel roster is in much better standing than before, as two newcomers put new light on matters.

McGee Makes Debut

Ed McGee, 185-pound heavyweight from Hamlet High, will make his debut tonight with the Blue and White after serving time in the Army Paratroops. The other of the newcomers is Bos Beckwith, light-heavy from Raleigh, who has shown excellent form in recent drills.

Coach Fritz Turner will invade Woollen Gym with a squad of fourteen men, including Kelley, 150; Kilpatrick, 138; Kiser, 178; Jones, 126; Piedmont, 126; Holtz, 163; Merchant, 140; Dusenberry, 146; Coran, 158; Anderson, 176; Raines, 143; Swicord, 127; Wall, 171; Saul, 163; Stowers, 126; White, 137; Isom, 190; and Deas, 160. Of these men, the only five with any experience are Piedmont, Saul, Dusenberry, Deas, and White. White is an ex-Marine while Merchant is an Army veteran.

The probable starting line-up for the locals will be:

126-pound—Paul Gordy; 127-pound—Gene Roth; 135-pound—Jimmy Basinger or Jim Lodge; 145-pound—Basil Sherrill or Jim Lenz; 155-pound—Joe Mallard; 165-pound—Johnny Richardson; 175-pound—Bos Beckwith; heavyweight—Ed McGee.

Grid Drills Open Monday Afternoon For Five Weeks

King football comes back into the sports picture next week, with Head Coach Carl Snavely calling a meeting of all interested students in varsity or jayvee football to report to him in room 304 of Woollen gym Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

The meeting Monday will be to discuss plans for the winter practice, and all interested men are urged to attend. It is not definite at present just when drills will get underway because of the weather conditions, but equipment will more than likely be issued early next week in order to be right ready to go once the weather clears.

According to Coach Snavely, the plan is to get in from four to five weeks of winter work, and then take a rest before spring drills get going next quarter.

A very tough schedule is on deck for the Tar Heels this year, with Navy and Miami already being announced as additions. The game with Miami will be in the Orange Bowl stadium in Florida.
