

College Draft Increase Is Expected

(Special to The Tar Heel)
WASHINGTON—The government is planning to draft 300,000 men by next July 1, and will probably call low-ranking college students at midterm if they already have been deferred, Col. Richard H. Eanes of the Selective Service, told a House appropriations subcommittee this week.

Eanes, who was representing Selective Service Director Lewis B. Hershey, stated however that the 300,000 was a "guesswork figure."

The Selective Service, he said, has been asked to supply more than 300,000 men if necessary, and it has been estimated that the Army alone may need as many as 430,000 men this year to fill discharge vacancies.

Deputy Draft Director Brig. Gen. Lewis H. Renfrow has warned that students failing to get a passing mark on the recent draft deferment tests or students who slip below the required top part of their class may be called by their draft boards at midterm if their induction had been postponed once before.

The recent blanket deferment for college students ended last Tuesday, August 21, and local draft boards now may use the test results as a basis for deferments. Colleges must provide local boards with academic ratings of the draft eligible students.

The new draft law entitles college students to only one mandatory postponement to the end of the academic year. Previously, they could get such deferments repeatedly and stay in college until graduation unless draft boards called them during vacations.

of them removed their masks during the course of the meeting.

Bill Hendricks, grand dragon of the Florida Klan and a candidate for the governorship of Florida, was applauded when he said, "People of the south have died and fought for segregation—we'll keep on fighting."

"The University of North Carolina is a hotbed of communism," Hendricks declared. And "from now on let's keep those politicians who think more of Negroes out of office."

Hendricks several times in his speech referred to the citizens of South Carolina but meant the citizens of North Carolina, these incidents brought laughter from the otherwise passive but curious onlookers.

"There will be many more meetings like this in North Carolina in coming months," Hamilton declared. The Klan is hoping to organize several other Klans in North Carolina in addition to the present Klan in Columbus County.

University officials contacted after the meeting had no comment to make on the remarks of the Klan concerning the University.

Chapel Hill—The local Jaycee's in their regular meeting last Thursday night passed a resolution instructing their delegate to the State Jaycee convention this weekend to ask for strengthening of the state law concerning the Ku Klux Klan.

tions for rooms to enable the University to furnish all of the some 150 students now on the waiting list for a room with dormitory accommodations. Thus for the first time since the last war it would appear that the school will be able to provide dormitory rooms for all students who desire them.

Also for the first time since the war, the capacity of some rooms has been reduced from three men to only two men, decreasing the total dorm capacity from 3,000 to 2,500.

The new men's dormitory, now under construction next to the Monogram Club on the Country Club Road, is expected to be ready for occupancy by the Spring Quarter. It will furnish housing for about 400 students, Wadsworth said.

Last Tar Heel

Today's paper is the last of summer, and is being paid for entirely by advertising rates as the Summer School allowed only for five editions during the second session.

The Daily Tar Heel will begin publishing the first day of classes in the fall and will again be under the editorship of Miss Glenn Abbot Harden who was elected last spring as an independent candidate.

as soloist with the University choral groups, his most recent and memorable performance being that of the title role in Mendelssohn's "Elijah" with the Chapel Hill Choral Club.

The Summer Session Chorus is a regular feature of summer school activities here and has for the last several years presented a concert at the end of the season.

The Playmakers, at their performance tonight, will give the three new one-act plays a trial before a live audience.

The plays—"Dinosaur," by John Clayton, "Blue Jean Gal," by Elizabeth Neill, and "In August," by James P. Pretlow—were chosen from those produced by members of a playwriting class under the direction of John W. Parker.
