New N. C. Senator Says Fall Elections To Unseat McCarthy

A Democratic majority in the United States Senate following the fall elections will solve the McCarthy committee chairmanship controversy automatically, predicted U. S. Senator Samuel J. Ervin, Jr., recently in a speech before the Carolina Bankers Conference, meeting at the University.

Senator Ervin, who is a member of the Senate Committee on Government Operations, which Senator McCarthy heads, gave his views on the McCarthy situation as well as other internal and foreign affairs.

Referring to recent resolutions introduced in the Senate to remove Senator McCarthy as committee chairman, Senator Ervin said: "Most of the Democrats in the Senate feel that under the Senate rules the question of the continuance of Senator McCarthy in the chairmanship is a matter for the Republican Senators. I cannot find any great quarrel with this thought."

"To alter the Senate rules in this particular case would be about as wise as using an atom bomb to get rid of a mouse," he continued.

Predicting a natural solution to the issue, Senator Ervin said: "If the Democrats achieve a majority, they will take advantage of the Senate rules to reorganize the Senate and appoint a Democrat as chairman in the place of Senator McCarthy."

Mentioning that some Senatorial colleagues have suggested expelling the Wisconsin senator from Senate membership, Senator Ervin said: "It would be a serious blow to Constitutional government in the United States to expel a Senator from membership in the Senate, no matter how greatly the other members of the Senate might deplore his tactics or his views."

"The question of retaining or removing Senator McCarthy from Senate membership is, in my judgment, a matter for decision by the people who elected him, namely the people of Wisconsin."

Senator Ervin commented on the committee hearings: "I do not believe that any Senate Committee should be allowed to make investigations into subversive activities unless at least a quorum of the members of the Committee are present."

Turning to foreign affairs, he expressed his firm opposition to admission of Red China to United Nations membership, and his belief that the UN will not "manifest such little character as to admit Red China."

Senator Ervin stated that he has always believed in keeping our nation militarily prepared. "The ultimate security for the United States in this very insecure world is dependent upon our observance of Oliver Cromwell's admonition to trust in the Lord and keep our powder dry," he said.

Mural Activities For Last Term Are Shaping Up

Intramural Director Bill Williams has announced that entries in golf, tennis, and softball for the second session of summer school will be open to all until July 30.

Play will be conducted along the lines of that of the first session, with winners in each division being awarded prizes or trophies.

August 2 is listed as the starting date for all competition.

Special consideration was given to the fact that there are no restrictions on eligibility of players on softball teams—just get someone who wants to play and will be there at game time.

Softball managers are requested to come by the Intramural Office before July 30 between 2-5 p.m. for arranging on rules and type of play.

Golfers should contact Ed Kemp at Finley Golf Course for info; tennis entrants may sign up by calling or coming by the Intramural Office.

topic July 29 when the discussion leaders will be R. F. Duncanson, general manager, Sears, Roebuck and Co., Durham; Henry A. Feltus, president, Globe Parlor Furniture Company, High Point; and George Lemons, advertising director, Greensboro Daily News.

On July 30, "Working with People" will be discussed by E. J. Evans, mayor of Durham, and president, United Department Store; George P. Geoghegan, Jr., senior vice-president, Wachovia Bank and Trust Company, Raleigh; and R. O. Huffman, president, Drexel Furniture Company, Morganton.

Summer Scenario

Chapel Hill this week. But what's the use; someone will challenge us with something like: "How about the Rendezvous Room?"

Had to dive for the dictionary after a feature story in last week's Summer Tar Heel, which quoted Ruth Jones as saying she liked coffee kuchen. Seems that kuchen are (and we quote) "a variety of German cake . . . typically one made from sweetened yeast dough, rolled thin, covered with a coating of sugar and spices, and baked."

This just goes to show how technological even old Webster has become. We started in search of a simple definition, and we ended up with a recipe.
