Professor Popularity Poll Results

Lefler, Mackie, and R. Hobbs Most Popular Professors; Dykstra, Friederich Found Most Unpopular of Faculty

Cecil Johnson, History

The long-awaited Professor Popularity Poll results have been tabulated and the complete results published for the benefit of students, faculty and administration alike.

To the student, this tabulation might serve to guide him in selecting professors for future courses or perhaps to satisfy his sanguinous lust to see his instructors receive that which they have given or even to fulfill their curiosity to see what is the general student opinion of our faculty.

To the faculty this poll may guide them in improving their methods of instruction.

The administration might find this a useful guide when and if they decide to weed out the old stock and refresh our flock with new blood. Results are always a product of a stimulus or cause.

Therefore, the Daily Tar Heel presents the results of the Professor Popularity Poll for all its readers to consider over their morning coffee.—R. C.				21401

A. B. Smith Statement

I have decided to enter the race for the presidency only after ascertaining that I shall be able to fulfill all the demands that this high office will exact of me should I be elected. I am submitting my name to the student body on the basis of my qualifications and past record in student government and on a platform of future action that is designed to lift student government out of the selves apparent. morass into which it has fallen during the war years.

Since returning to the campus I have strived for a better orientation and indoctrination system and a more efficient financial structure in student government and have worked to attain better student entertainment. These efforts have seemed dents of many more hard-won almost futile when the men in privileges, and which may even office have failed to fulfil their obligations to the student body. I pledge that I will continue to in office or not; but I can do much | would like to abolish fraternities.

Under the leadership of weak officers, student government has vielded more and more of its privilege and powers to the administration and faculty. If elected I am determined to halt this backward trend that threatens eventually to deprive the stulead to an end of student govern-

Blount Stewart Pledges:

To avoid having elections declared null and void by appointing a competent elections committee, and to keep the student body from having to vote twice on every issue.

To work for first class entertainment programs by having students acquainted and interested in this work placed on the committee.

Long ago when the Bishop of Texas visited New York, he was taken to a very swanky ball, at which it was evident that the women's dresses were cut very low, both in front and in back. When asked if he had ever seen such a sight, the bishop diplomatically replied, "Not since I was weaned."

She: "Was father surprised when you said you wanted to marry me?

He: "Was he surprised? The gun fell right out of his hands."

Pretty Caller: "May I see the

Sergeant: "Certainly, lady. The CO always has time to see a pretty girl." Pretty Caller: "Well, tell him his wife is here."

Yardbird: "Hi there, Rookie. How's your girl?" Rookie: "Not so good, Yardbird, not so good."

Yardbird: "You always were lucky."—Army Times

To have the publications board greatly improve circulation of the various student publica-

To appoint a special committee to study and investigate the problems of the students and the University in general. Their report will be given to the legislature when it convenes in Raleigh next year.

To work for a central place, on the order of the Toddle House, for the convenience of students in and near the lower quad. I do not advocate dorm stores since we must conserve and utilize all rooming space possible.

To work with the Secretary-Treasurer in investigating financial affairs of all student activities which handle student funds.

To have all freshmen given a book on student government at Carolina, and to acquaint them with their student government as are new women students. To uphold and enforce the honor system, our greatest Carolina tradition.

To appoint a veterans committee which will keep us informed of the veterans needs on this campus-but ever keeping in mind that we are students first and veterans only by circumstance.

To work for wash room facilities in every dorm room on the campus, two telephones on each hall, and to have the dorms painted and made more livable.

To keep a copy of this, my pledges to the student body, and use it while I am in office.

The Judge, disgusted by the number of divorces in town, finally tacked this sign up on the door: "Meditate well, girls, before you make your decision. Remember alimony is next to worthless on a cold night."
