Items of Interest

The UNC Outing Club will meet in the Union at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday to set plans for this summer's activity. Canoeing, backpacking and rock climbing are currently being planned. Anyone interested in these sports as well as beach camping is invited to attend the meeting. Check at the Union Desk for the room number.

William A. Terrill

Dr. William A. Terrill, 57, professor of accounting and business administration, died Wednesday, June 5, at his home. His death was due to heart failure.

Terrill was a member of the UNC faculty for 23 years and was a leader in the accounting profession of North Carolina and the region.

Terrill was the author of Cost Accounting for Management and was contributing editor of Accountants' Handbook.

In lieu of flowers the family requests that contributions be made to the North Carolina Heart Association.

The Course-Teacher Evaluation Commission needs several volunteers to assist in preparing the evaluation for publication. Any interested students should call Ken Herman at 929-8304 after 6 p.m.

"The Feminist Newsletter" is in its second year of bi-weekly publication. Women wanting a sample copy should write to P.O. Box 954, Chapel Hill, N.C.

The Student Health and Welfare Committee will meet at 7:30 Wednesday night at the Union in Suite C. The meeting is open to any students interested in the Student Health Service. Come with ideas and recommendations on what you would like to see in the proposed facility.

Chapel Hill Public Library Wednesday Night Film Series: "The Sense of Wonder": Based on the works of the late author Rachel Carson, this film is a visual expression of her view of nature, its beauty, and the importance of all living things.

Athas wins art fellowship

Daphne Athas, novelist and UNC creative writing instructor, has received a $5,000 fellowship from the National Foundation for the Arts. She is one of 154 creative artists in 33 states to win an award.

Athas, presently in Greece working on a new novel, spent the year teaching at the University of Tehran in Iran under a Fulbright grant. She will return to the University this fall.

Her most recent novel, Entering Ephesus, was selected by Time magazine as one of the 10 best novels of 1971.

SSGB administers loan

by Emily Hightower
Staff Writer

The Summer Student Governing Board (SSGB), functioning during the summer in place of the Campus Governing Council, approved a $15,000 loan for the summer Tar Heel at their June 6 meeting. The loan will enable the summer Tar Heel to continue publication until money allocated in the 1974-75 budget becomes available this fall. The bill, establishing the summer Tar Heel loan, was a compromise of an unsuccessful bill introduced by John Sawyer which would have permitted the summer Tar Heel and The Daily Tar Heel to be considered identical for constitutional and financial purposes.

Sawyer's bill would have provided that any Tar Heel surplus funds be reappropriated to the DTH. According to the bill, the funds could have been used "for purposes of collateral."

Sawyer said he thought passage of his bill would indicate "a formal gesture of good faith to the DTH." The bill would also have established a summer Publications Board consisting of the chairman of the regular Publications Board and any other members of the Publications Board living within a 20-mile radius of Chapel Hill.

Other SSGB members pointed out that under current Student Government law, the chairman of the summer Publications Board is the treasurer of the student body. This position is currently held by Tim Dugan, also chairman of the SSGB.

When Sawyer's bill failed on a 3-3 vote, other members proposed the summer Tar Heel loan bill.

When Sawyer's bill failed, he threatened to walk out of the meeting. At this point, Student Body President Williams insisted that Sawyer sit down, saying, "This is your bill, so don't walk out!" The $15,000 loan was then proposed as an alternative measure.

The SSGB also passed a bill providing for the appointment of a student to the committee currently studying the revision and expansion of the Carolina Student Union. Williams said he would hold open interviews for this position. According to the bill, the committee person Williams selects must be approved by the CGC.

Williams said the duties of the committee person would include seeking input from students and student groups about what current facilities should be continued in the new union and what new ones should be included.

SSGB also voted to join the National Student Lobby, a professional group which lobbies in Washington, D.C. on issues it feels are of concern to students. Williams said the NSL had been highly recommended by William Geer, director of financial aid.

SSGB also allocated $750 to the Fine Arts Festival for use this summer in raising funds and contacting potential performers.

Legal aid available

You work in a restaurant in Chapel Hill. You have just finished paying for a new trailer — it wasn't easy with your salary. One day you start getting threatening phone calls from a bank in Baltimore. The bank says you haven't paid for the trailer. You know you have.

A letter to the bank accomplishes nothing. You don't have the money to hire a lawyer. What can you do to prevent the bank from evicting you from your home?

Call the Chapel Hill-Carrboro Legal Aid Project. If you are a resident of Orange County and cannot afford to hire a lawyer for a civil case, the Legal Aid Project can help you get legal assistance.

According to Kay Goldstein, the Legal Aid Project is sponsored by the Inter-Church Council of Chapel Hill.

Legal Aid clients must meet established criteria and be approved by the screening committee. Goldstein said. Many times, however, when applicants are not eligible for referral to a lawyer, the screening committee can advise them as to where they can be helped, or can help them itself.

"Many of the people we see are connected with the University in some capacity," William Avera, a Legal Aid staff member, said. "For example we interview persons employed by the Physical Plant or the hospital, or by fraternities or sororities."

Marital problems are the basis of many Legal Aid cases. According to Avera, married couples separated for many years often can't afford to get a divorce.

The screening committee consists of two law students and four members of the community, Goldstein said. A member of the Orange County Bar Association is an ex-officio member of the screening committee and is also available as a resource person.
