

Pickers

Alabama Lee of Durham pickets the National Alliance Against Racism and Repression march held in Raleigh on Thursday. Lee, wearing a Ku Klux Klan uniform and a pendant bearing a picture of Alabama Governor George Wallace, was one of 10 persons representing various white segregationist groups, including the Rights of White People and the American Nazi Party.

"The only ones we're really against are the welfare bums," Lee said. (Staff photo by Ted Melnik)

5,550 students expected in second summer session

by Gregg Davis
Staff Writer

Five thousand five hundred and fifty students are expected to attend the second summer session. Five thousand four hundred and eleven attended the second summer session last year. Dr. Donald Tarbet, assistant director of Records and registration said exact enrollment would not be known for several days. Enrollment for the first session totaled 6,217. Twenty-one point five per cent of those enrolled are out-of-state residents. About 10 per cent are visiting students.

About 450 courses in 36 departments and schools are being taught during the second session of summer school, which began Tuesday. The courses will be offered in seven professional programs and 29 departments in the Arts and Sciences-General College program.

The second summer session is well staffed. Full professors and associate professors are scheduled to conduct classes in addition to several Kenan professors.

A short session, ending July 16, is being taught along with the regular summer session for students unable to complete the full session.

Final exams for the regular session are scheduled for Aug. 5 and 6.

Wednesday was the last day for adding courses. Students may drop courses until one week before the last class day. The University Housing Office should be able to accommodate all summer students seeking University housing for the summer. Connie Nelson, assistant director of housing contracts, said most summer housing arrangements have been made for the second summer session.

Stacy Dorm will be closed in anticipation of a smaller enrollment for the second session. Spaces are still available in Aycock, Graham, Kenan and Cobb dorms.

There are no men's single rooms available in the dorms. Single and double rooms are still available for women students. Nelson added that men students might be placed in the graduate center at Craige dormitory, provided they are at least 21.

Sunday—"Evergreen." Glossy production, presided-over sentiment and nostalgia mark this pleasant 1934 melodrama, based on the Rodgers and Hart musical.

Tuesday—"Seconds." Rock Hudson and Salome Jens star in a bizarre shocker about a bored banker who acquires a new identity and a second life, with horrifying results.

New chairman named

Dr. Roy L. Ingram, who has taught generations of Geology I students, has been named chairman of the UNC Department of Geology. Ingram succeeds Dr. John Dennison, chairman since 1969.

A 1941 UNC graduate, Ingram joined the faculty here in 1947. He served as geology department chairman previously, between 1957 and 1964. He is also a member of the UNC Marine Sciences Curriculum faculty.

Ingram's teaching and research fields are sedimentation, clay mineralogy, marine geology and geology of the Atlantic Coast Plain. His research articles have been published in many professional journals.

He is a fellow of the Geological Society of America (GSA) and a former GSA chairman, southeastern section. He is a past president of the Carolina Geological Society and the Elisha Mitchell Scientific Society.

A native of Harnett County, Ingram received his M.S. from the University of Oklahoma and his Ph.D. from the University of Wisconsin.

He is a member of Sigma XI, National Association of Geology Teachers, American Association of Petroleum Geologists, Society of Economic Paleontologists and Mineralogists, American Institute of Professional Geologists, International Association of Sedimentologists and the Clay Mineral Society.
