Washington Duke hotel in the former place has been designated as headquarters for members of the association. In addition to the gatherings in the Washington Duke, parts of the program will be given on the Duke campus. On Tuesday, December 31, when conferences are held in Chapel Hill, the Carolina Inn will serve as headquarters.

Several members of the University faculty will figure prominently on the program. On Monday at the afternoon sessions of the Hispanic American Association William Whatley Pierson, acting dean of the graduate school, will address the assemblage on "Foreign Influences in the Political Theories of Venezuela." While at the dinner of the Mississippi Valley Historical Association Archibald Henderson, head of the mathematics department, will speak on "A Pre-Revolutionary in the Old Southwest."

On Tuesday, when the association comes to Chapel Hill, a series of discussions will be given on American social history, in Pharmacy hall; ancient history, in Bingham hall; American history, in the Playmaker theatre; English history, in Manning hall, and modern history, in the Playmaker theatre. Several of the sessions were scheduled for Gerrard hall, but, according to Mr. House of the arrangements committee, these meetings will be transferred to the Playmaker theatre.

At 12:30 there will be three luncheons. The luncheon conference on modern European history at Swain hall will be given by courtesy of the University, as will the luncheon on commemoration of the revolution in the West which will be held in the dining room of the Inn.

The joint luncheon of the Historical Association with the Agricultural History Society will be addressed, among other speakers, by J. G. deRoulhac Hamilton of the history department. He will talk on "Agricultural History Materials and Their Collection." The final session before the group returns to Durham will be a business meeting in the Playmaker theatre.

"Contemporary North Carolina" will be the subject on which Robert D. W. Connor, head of the history department, will speak before the dinner of the association in the assembly room of the Washington Duke on Tuesday evening.

The program of the meeting, copies of which were issued here on Friday, indicates that all arrangements have been satisfactorily concluded.

campus activities, are the attributes that will be taken into consideration.

It is the consensus of opinion on the campus that this Hall of Fame will fill a crying need that has arisen at the University in recent years due to the rapid growth to the student body. Not only will this Hall of Fame bestow upon worthy students the recognition that they rightfully deserve but it will acquaint each and every student with the Who's Who of Carolina.

Don't be disappointed if your picture does not appear in the first release. Other issues may bear fruits of your toil.

Season's Greetings

The 1929-30 year, to date, has been a big, eventful one for the University.

The football team won a second State title, won 9 of 10 games, placed 3rd in the Conference, set a new Tar Heel scoring average of 34.6 points a game, and placed second in the nation's scoring.

Chuck Collins became the South's "wonder coach."

The cross-country team won a fourth consecutive Southern Conference title.

The University initiated its first course in aeronautics.

Governor Gardner presented the magnificent new $625,000 library on behalf of the State.

The Playmakers won new laurels on a record Northern tour.

An unknown donor presented the University with $40,000 for its first pipe organ.

Memorial Hall was condemned, and word is that the University is to have a modern, adequate auditorium.

The Tar Heel became The Daily Tar Heel, the South's first college daily.
