"THE TREND OF THE TIMES" IS SUBJECT

Talk Will Be Preceded By Welcome Address By Dr. Chase And Response By W. Carey Dowd, Jr., President of North Carolina Press Association

David Lawrence, publisher of the United States Daily and president of the Consolidated Press Association, will deliver the feature address at the opening session of the sixth annual newspaper institute at 8 o'clock tonight in Gerrard hall. Registration for the institute will be opened this afternoon at the Carolina Inn.

Tonight the first meeting will be held with an address of welcome by President H. W. Chase of the University, a response by W. Carey Dowd, Jr., president of the North Carolina Press Association and Mr. Lawrence's address.

The institute is meeting under the auspices of the North Carolina Press Association and the University, and more than a hundred newspapermen from all over this state are expected to attend.

According to Josh Horne, member of the committee on arrangements, "Publishers in our state are going to be told in unmistakable terms why our business isn't as prosperous as those in neighboring states, why we haven't as much money in the bank and as much of this world's goods—why our personal pay envelope misses the total dollars of a publisher of like size and labors somewhere else." Mr. Horne further states that not only are the newspapermen going to be told what is wrong but they are going to be shown how to improve.

Mr. Lawrence arrives in Raleigh this morning where he will speak to a joint luncheon given by the civic clubs of Raleigh at 2:30 today. His speech will be broadcast over the National Broadcasting chain through station WPTF of the Durham Life Insurance Company of Raleigh. A committee from Chapel Hill will meet him in Raleigh, and he will be entertained by Dr. Chase. Following the address here tonight Mr. Lawrence will leave for Greensboro enroute from there for Washington.

"The Trend of the Times" will be the subject of Mr. Lawrence's address. The speaker is one of the foremost journalists of the nation. At the age of 15 he began newspaper work on the Buffalo Express, and upon his entrance of Princeton University he became Associated Press writer for the institution. Graduating in 1910 he continued his work with the Associated Press until 1915 when he became special correspondent of the New York Evening Post.

In 1919 he formed the organization which was later to become the Consolidated Press Association. He writes daily press dispatches which are distributed by means of the Consolidated Press service. In 1926 he organized the United States Daily, a paper devoted

SWEET TO GIVE TWO ADDRESSES ON NEXT SUNDAY

Speaker Student of Kellogg Pact; Well Informed on Recent Disarmament Problems.

Ex-Governor W. E. Sweet of Colorado will speak here January 19 under the auspices of the local Y. He will speak at both the morning and evening services at the Methodist church.

According to H. F. Comer, general secretary of the Y, "Governor Sweet is a very thorough student of the Kellogg Peace Pact and his Sunday morning address at the Methodist church on 'The New Patriotism' will be based largely on the implications of the Kellogg Pact. No subject should be more interesting to members of a university community at this particular time, just as our nation's special delegation, chaperoned by Will Rogers, is reporting in London for the Disarmament Conference.

"The Governor's Sunday evening address will be on a subject which in some respects is even closer home to the interest and welfare of North Carolina. His subject will be 'A Valid Christianity Today.' Governor Sweet's own statement, in a letter, with reference to his treatment of this subject is, 'I have some very clear notions about social and economic questions. Under the title, "A Valid Christianity for Today," I shall speak with wide freedom on the implications of the gospel as applied to industry. My address will run strictly counter to many accepted ideas of the church people in your state, but if industrial ills are ever cured, they must be cured by those who hold strictly to the principles of the Christian Gospel and who want to see them rigidly applied."

EXAMINATIONS FOR LAW SCHOOL BEGIN TUESDAY

The University law school will begin its examinations for the first semester Tuesday, January 21. They will continue through January 25.

No Decision

The executive committee of the University's board of trustees convened yesterday in the office of Governor Gardner at Raleigh.

Governor Gardner, ex-officio chairman, called the committee together as a preliminary to the meeting of the entire board of trustees in Chapel Hill, scheduled for the 28th of this month. Several financial items were settled in order to eliminate some of the details to be brought before the board at the coming meeting.

As is currently known, the fate Memorial hall will be decided on the 28th. Therefore this meeting of the board of directors is drawing widespread interest both among students and the alumni. The question to be settled is whether Memorial hall will be torn down and plans made for the construction of a new auditorium, or whether it will be reinforced and kept in service for another decade.

The hall was condemned as unsafe by experts late last fall. Ever since then the University has been deprived of a place large enough to contain the freshman class in chapel and suitable for the presentation of entertainments.

SENATE INDUCTS NEW OFFICIALS

Senator Rector Favors Reform In Parliamentary Procedure In Dialectic Body.

The winter quarter session of the 131st Dialectic Senate convened last night in its hall on the top floor of New West Building. The meeting, held as an executive session, was devoted largely to the installation of new officers and the inaugural address of the in-coming president. The new officers inducted into office were: President, Garland McPherson; Clerk, C. A. Shreve; Sergeant-at-arms, E. R. Hamer; and Critic, J. C. Williams.

Williams, in a valedictory address relinquishing the office of president, urged the senators to consider their organization an active and influential organ on the campus. Senator McPherson, after receiving the oath and came of office, delivered his inaugural address as president. Re-emphasizing the remarks of his predecessor, he further urged independent thinking on the part of individual senators and the Senate as a body. Though in favor of attention to the art of persuasion, President McPherson laid emphasis upon the less serious aspects of the Senate's activities.

At the conclusion of the President's address the following new members were admitted to the Senate: John Dickinson, Lawrence Miller, and W. C. McCorkle.

Senator Rector obtained the floor and declared himself in favor of reforms and improvements in the appearance and procedure of the Senate. President McPherson announced that Mr. Howard Y. Williams, who is affiliated with the League of Women Voters, will speak on the campus, and that it had been suggested that the two literary societies join in presenting a debate on the subject of a third party in our government, between Mr. Williams and Mr.

Students Earned Average Of $62.72 By Operating Stores In Dormitories Report Shows

90 Per Cent Of Goods Sold Is Bought From Local Merchants; Stores Serve As Central Point For Handling All Agencies.

Student managers of the dormitory stores earned an average of $62.72 each for their fall quarter's work, according to the report submitted by P. L. Burch, superintendent of the buildings department, and James A. Williams, director of the dormitory clubs. This report was directed to be drawn up at a meeting of University officials Monday morning with Dr. Chase at which the question of the dormitory stores was discussed. The meeting came at a result of an editorial in Saturday's Tar Heel attacking the stores and demanding their abolition.

The report reviews the work of the stores during the fall quarter and emphasizes the fact that they were founded not as competitive organizations to take business from Chapel Hill merchants, but to serve the students living in the dormitories, and to serve as a central point for the handling of all agencies, thus barring solicitors and agents of all kinds from the dormitories.

$7,000 Business Done

The total business done by the stores, according to the report, was $7,009.65. Of this amount one-third was commissions on cleaning, pressing, and shoe repairing. It is pointed out also that the revenue derived from these stores is turned back into the business channels of Chapel Hill. As the store managers buy 90 per cent of their goods from local merchants, the amount of business that the dormitory stores take from the merchants is indeed small.

Dormitories Will Have Discussions

Each Dormitory to Discuss Religious Problems Each Tuesday Night.

According to plans made last Monday night at the junior-senior cabinet meeting of the Y, each dormitory on the campus will conduct a weekly discussion group on subjects relating to "Religion." It was planned that on a set night each week each dormitory would meet in a specified room for the purpose of discussing this subject. Each meeting for the first three weeks of the month will be led by some appointed student. On the fourth week there will be a mass meeting in Gerrard hall, led by some member of the faculty. At this meeting some of the subjects which were brought up in the dormitory discussions will be thoroughly discussed. These discussions will continue for this quarter, then at the end of the quarter a report will probably be published, stating the main points which were brought out about religion. Ed Hamer is in charge of the discussion groups.

GARDEN CLUB TO MEET

Chris Hibbard of Durham will conduct the members of the Chapel Hill Garden Club through his greenhouses this afternoon. All members interested in making the tour may do so by meeting at Davie hall at 8 o'clock. Transportatoin will not be furnished.

a somewhat general misunderstanding concerning the dormitory agencies, the following information was issued yesterday by the committee.

The dormitory agency is the solution of a dormitory problem that has troubled University officials and the Carolina dormitory club for several years. In order to promote better study conditions through the elimination of the former continuous disturbance caused by peddlers, solicitors, and other forms of mercantile gentlemen, and to lessen the possibility of losses by stealing, the Carolina dormitory club recommended to the University that one room be set aside in each dormitory for a Service Room. This room was to handle all pressing, shoe repairing, and handle all merchandise demanded by members of the dormitories. Certain exceptions were made as to the material to be handled, in order to protect the sanitary conditions of the dormitories. The Service Rooms were to be operated by self-help students, selected on account of their need for the work and on basis of their worthiness.

The dormitory agents this past fall were selected originally as telephone monitors. When the agency plan was passed by the University, these men were given first choice for the agencies, as it would have been rather harsh to appoint them and then remove them without some consideration. Of this number, 26 in all, three have been dropped through inability to return to school, one has re-

OLDSMOBILE CAR STOLEN MONDAY

Car Had Made Trip From New York By Having Gas Tank Repaired With Gum.

A remarkably unusual sequence of events was climaxed by the theft of an automobile belonging to George Brown, between the hours of 6 and 7 Monday evening.

This is the automobile in which, as was related in a news story appearing in the Sunday issue of the Tar Heel, Brown and a group of friends were able to make a difficult trip from New York only by constantly repairing the gas tank with chewing gum. In view of the condition of the car the owner is unable to understand how the robbery was accomplished with such apparent ease and success. Although both the Chapel Hill and Durham police have been notified, no clues have yet been obtained regarding the disappearance.

The car was parked at the time of the theft on the street between Emerson and freshman fields where the grade would aid in starting. It is a gray Oldsmobile sedan of the 1925 model and carries a North Carolina license, number 276,969. Brown admitted that the only real value of the machine lay in a comparatively new set of tires. He declared, however, that he valued

New Type Welder

Students of the University, especially those interested in engineering work, are invited by I. M. Tull, proprietor of the Club Service motor company, to visit his garage and watch the operation of a new type electric welder he has installed.

The new machine is a radical forward step in welding, in that it is operated under heavy amperage from an alternating current by the induction method.

Cast iron, difficult to weld by old electrical processes, is easily welded by the new.
