

Daily Tar Heel To Start Fund For Relief Of Poor In Orange County Tomorrow

Dr. L. M. Brooks Is Treasurer Of Fund And Contributions Should Be Mailed To Him.

MUCH SUFFERING EXISTS

George Lawrence, Director Of Welfare Work, To Distribute Food And Clothing To Needy.

A "Campus Relief Fund For Orange County Poor" will be conducted through the Tar Heel beginning with tomorrow's issue. Names of contributors will be published every day in the Tar Heel, and the contributions will be turned in to a committee composed of Louis Graves, editor of the Chapel Hill Weekly, Dr. L. M. Brooks, of the sociology department, Harry Comer, executive secretary of the Y. M. C. A., Ellis Fysal, varsity football player, and Robert Hodges, assistant editor of the Tar Heel.

Dr. Brooks is treasurer of the fund, and all contributions should be mailed to him through P. O. Box 747 or the Alumni building, mailed directly to the "Campus Relief Fund for Orange County Poor," Tar Heel office, or turned over personally to one of the members of the committee.

All contributions go to George Lawrence, director of welfare work in this section. Mr. Lawrence emphasizes the dire need prevailing, and relates a number of cases revealing misery and want. He tells of a widow and her four daughters living in a remote section of Orange county whom he found on the verge of starvation, having no food in the house and no money with which to obtain any. One of the daughters was able to work but could find nothing to do, and the few widely separated neighbors were in too desperate straits themselves to be of any assistance. Another case Mr. Lawrence has had to contend with is that of a negro family composed of the parents and eight children. The man was a tenant farmer whose crop had failed, and his search for other employment had been fruitless; no work was available. The entire family had for some time been existing on a green root known as "creases," quantities of which they picked in the fields. These frequent cases of desperate want encountered afford at times examples of actual starvation, as in those incidents related. Mr. Lawrence estimates there are 25 cases demanding relief.

STONE ADDRESSES SOPHS AT CHAPEL

Discusses Four-Sided Nature Of Man; Is President Chicago Theological Seminary.

Dr. John Timothy Stone, president of Chicago Theological Seminary, spoke in chapel yesterday morning, addressing the sophomores on the four-sided nature of man as related to university training. Dr. Stone was introduced by Rev. D. H. Scanlon, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Durham. His talk was preceded by speeches and addresses delivered at various schools over the country in the past month.

Taking the familiar divisions of man's nature, the physical, mental, moral and spiritual sides, Dr. Stone discussed briefly the steps taken by modern educational policies to develop each of these in the student. He spoke more extensively, however, on the spiritual development of the student, showing how this phase has suffered by new trends in education.

Any school that holds its own today, the speaker said, is laying proper emphasis on physical training, both through intercollegiate and intramural activities. He pointed out also that, as the result of well-directed efforts, intellectual standards are everywhere being upheld. Moral standards, too, he observed, are being supported and their importance rightly recognized by students.

According to Dr. Stone, the modern university is failing to recognize the necessity for spiritual training. This he holds no less important than the other phases of man's development. In a complete system of training the spiritual and inspirational element must be recognized, Dr. Stone declared.

He told his hearers that as students their demands would largely control the situation. Believing strongly in undergraduate influence, Dr. Stone thinks there is more truth in the statement that "the man makes the university" than in that "the university makes the man."

GLEE CLUB HEARD AT SAINT MARY'S

Officials Completing Plans For Entering National Intercollegiate Glee Club Contest.

The University glee club appeared last night in concert at the St. Mary's College auditorium, Raleigh.

In addition to the selections given by the club from its fall tour repertoire, Professor Nelson O. Kennedy offered several piano numbers.

Plans are practically complete for the trip to the national intercollegiate glee club contest in New York, and the Carolina group is most enthusiastic about them. The club will leave by bus on Thursday, March 6, spending the night in Washington. The concert planned to have been given there on that evening, has been postponed until after Easter. The club hopes to arrive in New York on Friday in time for a late afternoon rehearsal. That night, through the effort of J. Maryon Saunders of the Carolina Alumni Association, the group will be entertained by the New York branch of the association. The contest is to be held on the night of March 8, at Carnegie Hall, and the club will start homeward the following day.

The drawing for places in the contest was held in New York, and the following results have been announced: the Carolina club drew place number eight in the choice song group; number three, in the prize song group; and number ten, in the school song group.

The twelve clubs participating in the contest are: Dartmouth, Pennsylvania, Yale, Brown, Fordham, Columbia, Ohio State, New York University, Oklahoma University, Princeton, Carolina, and the Middle Atlantic district winner.

Last year the winners were: Dartmouth, first; New York University, second; and Ohio

DEBATERS WILL GO TO ATLANTA FOR TWO MEETS

Fleming-Jones And Speight In Emory Contest; Williams And Wilkinson With Tech Team.

Two varsity debate teams—composed of J. C. Williams and J. A. Wilkinson, W. W. Speight and McB. Fleming-Jones—leave tonight for Atlanta, where they will meet Emory University and Georgia Tech on "Resolved, That modern science tends to destroy theistic faith." Speight and Fleming-Jones will engage the Emory debaters tomorrow night; Williams and Wilkinson will tackle the Tech team Thursday night. In both encounters the University's representatives will uphold the affirmative side of the question.

The question of modern science and its relation to religion is a very pertinent one at present. Church authorities throughout the nation have been alarmed by the phenomenal advances of science in recent years. Religious leaders of the present generation are attempting to explain the religious indifference of the civilized world in terms of this great scientific advancement, alleging that science has invaded the field of religion and sapped it of its power and appeal. An interesting sidelight of the Emory-Carolina debate is the fact that Emory is a staunch church school, while the University is considered a stronghold of liberal thought. For a number of years Emory has been a forensic opponent of the Tar Heel University, and all of the contests have been hotly fought (Carolina has a margin of one victory in the series at present). Georgia Tech, whose debaters rank high in intercollegiate circles, is another old foe of the Tar Heels. The rivalry existing between the three institutions is so keen that they could not agree to no-decision debates,

Y CABINETS HEAR ALL COMMITTEES

Joint Session Listens To Reports Of Delegates And Standing Committees.

A joint meeting of the three Y cabinets was held last night at the time of the usual weekly meetings. After the program had been opened with sentence prayers, E. B. Ferguson gave a short report of the deputation team's trip to Fayetteville over the week-end. Grady Leonard also made a report of the trip. H. F. Comer then gave an account of the state Y conference held in Charlotte during the past week. He told something of the work that was done by the Y among the negro schools and colleges in this state.

Ed Hamer, treasurer of the Y, delivered a report of the treasury stating that as yet some of the prospective pledges were still unpaid. Reporting as chairman of the discussion committee, he further stated that meetings had been held lately in one of the dormitories on the campus, and that it was hoped that this group discussion could be extended later into every dormitory on the campus. He urged that the cabinet members who were interested in this work take more interest than had been shown in the past.

Giving a report of the work of the sophomore cabinet for the past year, J. Elwin Dungan, president of that cabinet, stated that up to the present 13 speakers had been on the program of the sophomore cabinet. According to him, it is the plan of the cabinet to bring in state Y representatives from some of the colleges of the state with the purpose of bettering intercollegiate relations, which the Delta Phi literary societies are sponsoring.

A report of the freshman cabinet was given by Jimmie Kurfess. After a motion had been made, the three cabinets voted to send a letter to President Chase from the three Y cabinets stating the regret felt by the cabinets due to his resignation. After an announcement made concerning the Blue Ridge conference, the program was closed with a prayer by Grady Leonard.

Free Movie

Tomorrow night beginning at seven o'clock the school of commerce will sponsor the screening in Bingham hall of two General Electric films: "Cuba, The Island of Sugar," and "Panama Canal." The showing is free to whatever persons care to attend.

Original Lighting Effects And Unique Decorations To Be Carried Out; Stag Tickets To Engineers Only.

The fourth annual Engineers' Dance, which is sponsored by the three engineering societies, will be held next Friday evening at the Carolina Inn with the Carolina Buccaneers furnishing the music.

Advance reports say that the decorations at this dance are to be something quite unique and that there will be some very original lighting effects carried out during the evening.

Already many girls have indicated their desire to attend the affair, which in years past has proven very successful, and with the usual crowd will be up for the Grail dance the following night; it is expected that there will be no lack of the feminine touch at the dance.

Members of the Engineering faculty and their wives will serve as chaperones at the dance. Some of those who will serve in this capacity are Dean and Mrs. Braune, Professor and Mrs. J. E. Lear, Professor and Mrs. E. G. Hoefler, Professor and Mrs. H. G. Baity, and Professor and Mrs. Trimble.

As has been the custom at the engineers' dances in the past, stag tickets will be sold to engineers only, but others may get tickets which entitle them to admission if they bring girls. Tickets may be obtained from the dance committee which consists of J. J. Alexander, W. B. White, D. A. Nims, E. R. Davis, J. B. Pittana, Charles Waddell, 'Chuck' Erickson, Charles West, and J. P. Scurlock. They are also on sale in all three of the senior engineering rooms.

All in all, with the advance reports that are coming from the engineers over in Phillips hall, this affair should prove very enjoyable, for it is proverbial tradition that when the engineers do get dressed up, they put things over in fine style.

NATHAN CONDUCTS PROBE CONCERNING DEATH OF INFANT

Who murdered Richard Harvey, the 15-month old son of 19-year-old, petite Nellie Harvey, colored Chapel Hill servant girl?

This question occupied the attention of Coroner S. A. Nathan and his jury, together with more than a score of witnesses, from early Sunday afternoon to eleven o'clock at night. The jury decided that little Richard "came to his death by foul means, through the administering of poison at the hands of an unknown person."

Nellie lives with Eliza Neville, nee Eliza Lane, 35, estranged wife of Ped Neville, near the "Tintop Alley" section of Carrboro. She claims that Luther Hargraves, Jr. is the father of her child, that he "done promise he'd help keep up dat chile," and says she loved it. But on the night of the murder she was out with James Hargraves, distantly related to Luther, who, she says "is mah frien' now, an' we uz gonna get marrahd."

About seven o'clock Saturday evening young Luther Brewer, friend of the family, decided he would repair an ancient phonograph which rests in the parlor
