

Line Candidates For 1930 Eleven Will Exhibit Wares In Veteran - Rookie Clash

Game Saturday Afternoon Will Give New Men Chance to Show Ability Under Fire.

WILL BEGIN AT 2 O'CLOCK

Replacements for Farris, Eskew, Koenig, Holt, and Harper Will Be Watched Closely in Finale Of Winter Practice Season.

Coach Collins & Co. will exhibit a wealth of new line material for 1930 when Monograms and Rookies clash in Kenan stadium at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the closing feature of the Carolina winter football season.

Graduation of such men as Captain Farris, Koenig, Adkins, Holt, Eskew and Harper left gaping holes that must be plugged if the 1930 Tar Heels are to approach the success of last year's 346-point season.

A number of fine linemen are coming up from the ranks of the frosh and reserves. From the way they show tomorrow the fans will be in a good way to decide what the 1930 Tar Heels are going to be like.

Some especially strong men are coming up from the tackle ranks, where men are particularly needed. McDade and Smith, regular frosh tackles, have been showing lots of class, as also Underwood, a transfer who will be eligible next season.

Hodges and Redding, converted centers, and Collins are other more promising freshman tackles. Rose, Rowe, Daniels and Oliver are promising reserves.

At the guards, Bob Blackwood, a letterman in 1928 ineligible last year, has consistently shown with the best men in spring training. Kerr, a reserve, is looking good. Philpot,

CANDIDATES FOR BASEBALL TEAM CONTINUE WORK

First Outdoor Batting Practice Held; Ashmore and Hearn Working With Hurters.

Baseball practice for varsity and freshman aspirants was resumed on Emerson field yesterday after a four or five-day lay-off on account of the weather. The pitchers and catchers utilized the Tin Can for warming-up purposes during the early part of the week, while candidates for the other positions had to remain content with a temporary cessation of workouts.

For the first time of the season, the batting cage was pulled up behind the plate and regular hitting practice was held yesterday. Several rookie pitchers started off with their mound work, while some 30 or 40 batsmen took their swings at the plate. Phil Sher and "Utility" Praxton, veteran outfielders, seemed to find the rookie style of delivery to their liking and poled out several nice ones that would have been good for singles and doubles in a regular game.

Behind the bat to take the throws for the new moundsmen were Potter, Johnson and Kushner. Captain Maus caught for Wright, Fleming and Edwards, experienced hurlers of last year's squad. With fair weather in view for the immediate future, the coaches, Jim Ashmore and Bunn Hearn, expect to get the men down to steady work to be in shape for the opening game with Springfield "Y" soon after the holidays.

The complete schedule will be released in a few days.

Freshman Football

There will be a group picture of the freshman football team taken this afternoon in Kenan stadium at four o'clock. It is important that all members of the squad be present.

TWO MAIN TRACK MEN MAY BE OUT OF INDOOR MEET

Ty Reid and Ken Gay Will Probably Not Enter Contest; 300 Entries for Meet.

The University trackmen, state champions and Southern runners-up in 1929, will make a strong bid for honors in the first Southern Conference indoor games here tomorrow night, but will be materially handicapped by the last-minute loss of several stars.

Ty Reid, sophomore, who was being counted as one of the Tar Heels' best hurdle bets, is definitely out with an injured knee, sustained in winter football. Ken Gay, letter sprinter, and high Tar Heel scorer last year, will probably be out due to scholastic difficulties.

The Tar Heels will pin their hopes on an array of 29 entries, outstanding among whom are Farmer, sophomore sprinter; Captain Dave Nims, quarter-miler; Perry, letter hurdler; Barkley, veteran distance man; Lowry, cross-country star; Garrett, letter quarter-miler; Bagby, letter high jumper; Adkins, veteran shot putter; Neiman, veteran broad-jumper and vault; and Arnold, vaulter.

The other Tar Heel entries will be Slusser, Case, Goodwin, Gray, Erickson, Weil, Hamer, Horney, Simpson, Wrenn, Melford, Rhodes, Shulenberg, Owen, Brown, Bullard, Smith, Dry and Ruble.

Fans will be particularly interested in the sprinting and hurdling of Slusser and Erickson, both new as trackmen in Tar Heels, but well known as Tar Heel halfbacks, who will compete with such other southern football stars as Armstrong of Tulane, Flippin of Virginia, Chandler of Georgia and Boinneau of South Carolina.

Awarded Two Letters

Yank Spaulding, who will play fullback for the Monograms against the Rookies in the closing feature of Tar Heel winter grid work here Saturday, is one of the very few Tar Heel grididers who have been awarded two monograms in one season. Spaulding played in hard luck two seasons, always missing his letter by the closest shade due to injuries. He was high scoring fullback in the state and did such meritorious work last fall that the Tar Heel authorities awarded him a letter for both 1929 and 1928.

Expect Fast Sprints

The sprint lanes in the Tin Can where the first southern conference indoor games will be held tomorrow night, are 60 yards, the longest indoor straightaway in the south, and as long as Madison Square Garden's straightaway.

Which means fast times should be the rule tomorrow night, and especially when entries show such sprinters and hurdlers as Flippin of Virginia, Quinn of Maryland, Farmer of North Carolina, Hamm of Georgia Tech, and Armstrong of Tulane.

BOXERS TO GET MAJOR LETTERS

Athletic Council to Place Sport On Parity with Football, Baseball, Track and Basketball.

Breaking a precedent of 19 years the athletic council Tuesday night added a fifth sport to the list of major sports to make boxing, the youngest of the official teams on the campus, a major sport. The move was made retroactive to include the members of the 1930 squad.

The action of the council came as a surprise to the campus, who had hoped that boxing would be raised to a major sport, but expected the move to become effective with future teams.

Archie Allen, captain of the present boxing team and student member of the council, made the motion at the regular meeting. An amendment to make the ruling retroactive was passed unanimously.

Boxing was introduced on the campus as a sport in 1925 when Bill Cox and Addison Warren formed the nucleus of a team which met Fort Bragg, V. M. I., Washington and Lee and Virginia. It was not until the following year, however, that the athletic association made boxing a university sport and appointed Crayton Rowe as coach. The team that year broke even, winning from V. P. I. and losing to the conference-winning Virginia contingent. Ad Warren, captain of the team, went on to win the lightweight and heavyweight championship in the South Atlantic tournament, heavyweight championship and second place in the light heavyweight division of the junior national tournament and second in the heavyweight division of the senior national tournament.

The record of the team this year reveals an impressive string of victories through the first part of the season. Wins over V. P. I., Virginia, V. M. I., Washington and Lee, and Duke were scored in succession. The team met its first defeat at the hands of the strong Florida aggregation which won the Southern Conference title at Charlottesville last week. An inter-sectional engagement with Penn State was dropped by a 6-1 margin, but the pugilists of South Carolina were defeated by the same margin to complete the season's work.

The last sport to be raised to the status of a major sport was basketball. This newest of sports was introduced at the University in 1911.

An invitation to attend the national collegiate boxing tournament at Philadelphia the 21st and 22nd of March is under consideration by Crayton Rowe.

Passes Will Feature

From the way Freshmen Chandler, Croom and Jackson have achieved success in completing passes in winter grid games at Carolina, it looks as if a great "battle of the air" may be in store for those who see the Monogram-Rookie clash in Kenan stadium Saturday.

These frosh will match throwing arms with Magner, Branch and the other Tar Heel passers who helped carry Carolina through its brilliant 346-point season last year.

Football Ends Saturday

Can intensive winter football make a 1930 football team at Carolina like the 346-point wonder team of last fall? Saturday afternoon's Monogram-Rookie game, closing winter grid work this year, may tell the tale to the host of spectators expected for this annual closing feature of Carolina's winter football season.

SIDE LIGHTS

by Sports Editor

battle in Kenan stadium will ring down the curtain on the 1930 winter grid activities, and will open one of the most active week-ends of the year in regard to sports at Carolina. The first Southern Conference indoor track meet will be held in the Tin Can tomorrow night and will be the climax of sports activities for the week-end.

THE S. I. C. Indoor track meet is another one of the numerous honors that have been accorded to Carolina track recently, mostly through the work of Coach Bob Fetzer. Coach Bob, more popularly known throughout the Conference as "Dean of Southern Track," is one of the main reasons for the acceptance by so many of the members of the Southern Conference of the invitations that were extended for the meet. This Southern Intercollegiate track meet tomorrow night will be the first of its kind, and according to many of the track officials will be the first of a long series of such annual affairs, which will be second in importance only to the outdoor S. I. C. meeting of cinderpathmen.

DUE TO THE EXPENSE of converting the Tin Can into one of the most up-to-date and best equipped indoor tracks in the south, the Tar Heel track officials stated that it would be necessary to charge students as well as visitors for admission to the meet. The track meet and the football game are both extra events from the regular student sports entertainment. The admission price for the track meet will be $1 for visitors and 50 cents for students. Track officials also announce that arrangements have been made so that events will be run off according to schedule.

THE ARGUMENT between the "Anciens et les Modernes" in Kenan stadium will no doubt settle many doubts that some of the alumni have entertained in regard to several of the positions in the Carolina line. The Rookies have several outstanding linemen in their midst, while the "Anciens" will be slightly better provided with backfield material. The numerous gold medals and prizes to be given away to the 20 most outstanding players necessitates the charging of admission for the student body as well as other interested spectators.

Entrance fee for students will be 25 cents while others will be charged $1.

THE S. I. C. MEET affords a rare opportunity to the Carolina students to observe an outstanding array of nationally and internationally known trackmen in action, as well as seeing samples of what the Tar Heels will look like in the spring meets.

CAROLINA TO SHOW 1930 EDITION OF FULLBACKS

A quartet of fullbacks who will carry Rookie colors in the Monogram-Rookie game closing Tar Heel winter grid work here tomorrow look especially strong as varsity prospects for 1930. The men are McAlister, reserve; McNeil, regular freshman fullback last year; Suggs, regular freshman fullback in 1928 but out of college last fall; and Lassiter, a transfer.

With Veterans House and Harden due to be back, and with this quartet of stellar youngsters coming up, the Tar Heels should be well fixed at fullback next year, despite the graduation of Yank Spaulding, North Carolina's high scoring fullback in 1929.

WRESTLERS LEAVE FOR CONFERENCE MAT TOURNAMENT

Captain Woodard Leads State Champions to Lexington in Quest of Southern Title.

Led by Captain Wayne Woodard, the state champion Tar Heel wrestlers left yesterday for the Southern Conference tournament which is to be held at V. M. I. in Lexington, Va., this week-end, starting this afternoon and continuing through Saturday night.

The state champions have had a very successful season, having won from V. P. I., Davidson, State and Duke, and having lost only to V. M. I. in the conference. Matches were dropped to Navy and Princeton, the latter by the close score of 15-13.

The conference meet in Lexington will bring together the best teams in the south in V. M. I., V. P. I., Carolina, and the undefeated Generals of Washington and Lee. The Washington and Lee team has swept all of its opposition before it, having won all of its conference matches and having defeated the crack Army team. V. M. I. has won all of its conference matches and has been defeated only by Navy.

North Carolina will send three outstanding men to the meet in Stallings, 125-pounder, Tsumas, 145-pounder, and Cowper, 175-pounder. Other outstanding men to enter are Graves, V. P. I., 115 pounds; Mitchell, V. P. I., 125 pounds; Fields, V. M. I., and Osterman, W. and L., 135 pounds; Killman, V. P. I., 145 pounds; Mathis, W. and L., and McRay, V. M. I., 155 pounds; Tolman, V. M. I., 165 pounds; Tilson, V. M. I., and Haase, W. and L., 175 pounds; and Davis, V. P. I., and Mitchell, W. and L., unlimited.

The tournament held in Lexington this week-end is the first Southern Conference wrestling tournament, and drawings will be made according to the recognized Bagnall-Wild system.

GOLF TOURNAMENT UNDER WAY TODAY

The second annual "tombstone tournament" of the country club will be held this afternoon as the second of the series of golf tournaments to be held this spring for members.

In this tournament each member will be allotted a number of strokes equal to his handicap plus par for two complete rounds on the course, 52. The contestants will play the course, going just as far as possible on the number of strokes allotted. The resting place of the ball after the final stroke will be marked with the player's "tombstone," a small wooden stake. The member who places his tombstone the furthest down the course will be declared winner of the tourney.

The first of the spring tournaments was held last week, when 18 members competed. The winner of the last week's playing was Dr. R. B. Lawson, who was presented a prize donated by one of the local merchants.

According to information obtained from those in charge of the tournaments, the course at the club has been greatly improved since last year. During the past few months much work has been done, and a new hole, number 7, has been added.

With the excellent condition of the course at the present time and the fine golfing weather, the committee expects a large field of entries in the tournament this afternoon. All golfing members of the club are eligible to play.
